Incident Date and Time:

2018-01-15 10:00 hours

Issue:

Civil disobedience: protesters that were previously at the Victoria Office have returned. Currently 4 first nations people are drumming and dancing in the front of the Victoria Office.

Background:

During November and December 2017, a first nations woman had set up a camp in protest of marine finfish farms. She was arrested and evicted by the Saanich police in December 2017.

Current Status:

FO Ludlow spoke with the lady and asked what her intentions were. She indicated that "her tent was en route and she is going to camp in front of the doors".

Strategic Considerations:

Front door will remain locked. Personnel are using the back door. If they are at the front door, other staff will be asked to leave with the Fishery Officers at the end of the day. The building owner and police will be notified.

Detachment Supervisor
Comments:

[Redacted]
There is concern if they occupy the front doors that the general public will not have access to the office. Also, concern for non enforcement staff coming and going.

I have a few questions before you send out –

Issue – I would remove civil disobedience, is it really civil disobedience or is it a peaceful protest?

Background – who is the first nations woman, I would name her. I would add a bit more background from the previous event reports. I have attached for your information.

Current status – name the lady and what else did she say about how long and what her goal is Strategic considerations – I would wait and add the information you have from safety and security and from Saanich pd here. I would also add the location where the lady is setting up, will this hinder public access? Is there potential of that being an issue in event of an emergency, such as a fire? What is the risk if we do something or not. Is media expected?

Strategic comms – can you contact Ieri and ask for updated media lines and add that here. What will the impact be on our operations, put that here.

Det sup comments – these are good, do you see any other issues?

Chief comments – I have made the comments above, and have learned from last time that we need to talk early and quickly to Saanich pd, real property so they know and can talk with the landlord and to also talk with the other tenant in the building so they can take any action they deem necessary.

About the campaign:

The Musgamagw Dzawada'enuxw have since time immemorial protected salmon and herring for future generations. They have for 30 years been speaking out against fish farms in their territories, but settler governments have ignored Dzawada'enuxw leadership and allowed the fish farming industry to grow. Today 1/3 of the BC salmon farming industry is using Dzawada'enuxw territory to grow Atlantic salmon.

About the action site:

Since August 24, 2017 Namgis and Mamalilikala people have been occupying the docks at Marine Harvest's Swanson Island salmon farm near Alert Bay, stating they will not leave until the farm is removed from their shared territory.

In August 2016 three traditional leaders from Musgamagw Dzawada'enuxw nations served a 72 hour eviction notice to a Cermaq/Mitsubishi fish farm. Actions have continued since that time including August 24th, 2017 when the Musgamagw Dzwadatenuxw asserted their jurisdiction by boarding Cermaq's Burdwood farm (which was served an eviction notice last year and in March 2017 was responsible for a major diesel spill).

About the campaign:

Annual celebration of the spirit of wild salmon through the arts and culture. The Wild Salmon Caravan also intends to affirm inter-tribal relationships that are the foundation of traditional trade and fisheries governance knowledge systems, and use collaboration and creative energy to educate, inform, and transform the industrial storm that is endangering wild salmon. Ancient ceremonies and songs of Indigenous peoples, as well as creative expressions of visual and performing arts, music, storytelling, and guest speakers will call the wild salmon home to the rivers and streams where they play out their lives in birth and death.

Originating in 2014 with the Wild Salmon Convergence, in 2017 the Wild Salmon Caravan is travelling from October 7th-12th from unceded territories of the xwmeθkway̓em (Musqueam), Skwxwú7mesh (Squamish), Stó:lō and Səl̓íwetə?/Sel̓íwituł (Tsleil-Waututh) Nations to the unceded territory of the Secwepemc (Shuswap) People at the Adams River.

Klabona Keepers

FB: "Klabona Keepers"

About the campaign:

Klabona Keepers is an organization of Tahltan Elders and families who occupy and use traditional lands near Iskut, British Columbia known as Tl'abâne, the Sacred Headwaters of the Stikine, Nass and Skeena Rivers. Thousands of people from the northern interior to the coast depend upon the health of these three watersheds for their livelihood and for the wellbeing of their families and communities. Klabona is located in the Klappan highlands, which are Tahltan hunting grounds.

Multiple mining and fossil fuel companies have tried to extract resources without Tahltan consent, with resulting cumulative impacts causing significant damage to fish and wildlife habitat. To ensure the long term sustainable stewardship of Klappan, in 2006 Iskut First Nation elders formed the Klabona Keepers

Elders Society and multiple times served eviction notices and blocked industrial trespass, with resulting arrests of Elders and Matriarchs.

After over 10 years of on-the-ground action to protect Tl'abâne, in February 2017 the Tahltan Central Council and 'BC' government co-authored a plan for co-management that will protect the area from certain types of industrial resource extraction for a 20 year period. The plan is not legally binding and does not terminate existing resource extraction licenses.

About the action site:

Imperial No More is a movement led by a coalition of the Secwepemc, Tla-o-qui-aht, Ahousaht, Wet'suwet'en, and Tahltan First Nations. Imperial No More is calling for an end to all mining and extraction operations of the Imperial Metals Corporation on the unceded indigenous lands of so-called British Columbia.

On August 4, 2014, the Secwepemc Nation established the Yuct Ne Senxiymetkwe Camp, a monitoring checkpoint and encampment at the entrance of the Imperial Metals' Mount Polley Mine. The camp was set up primarily to observe and document the damage caused by the disaster of August 4 when the dam to the mine's tailings pond broke and unleashed 2.5 billion gallons of contaminated water and 4.5 million cubic metres of metals-laden silt into Hazeltine Creek, Polley Lake and Quesnel Lake on the way to the Fraser River Watershed. In August 2016, to mark 2 years since the Mount Polley Mine disaster a gathering of Indigenous land defenders, allies and supporters came together to shut down the mine and to assert sovereignty over unceded territories.

Fish Farm Protest Camp set up Nov 13th on the grass area adjacent to Victoria DFO warehouse entry door.

Background:

<https://www.facebook.com/events/130996970936940/> states:

Please come out to show your support for the fearless protectors who have been occupying illegal fish farms at Midsummer Island and Swanson Island as part of a struggle that's been going on for over 30 years. Yesterday some were served an eviction letter with 3 days notice for "trespassing" in their own unceded territories by Marine Harvest Canada. The women at the Matriarch Camp, originally situated outside John Horgan's office have been acting in solidarity with the nations up north (including the Ma'amtigila, Namgis, Lawitisis, Mamalilikala and Musgamagw Dzawada'enuxw, Kwikwasutinuxw Haxwa'mis and Gawanueuk) for over a month and have recently relocated to the DFO regional office in the unceded territories of the WSANEC peoples.

Please share widely, and stop by if you can!

Current Status:

One person is consistently at the tent with people visiting throughout the day. The protesters have not tried to enter our office or impede operations.

Strategic Considerations:

The front door of the office will remain locked. All personal vehicles are parked on the street.

The Victoria DFO Field office is a leased office space and the building owner would like the protesters evicted. Linda Higgins has logged ticket 4884673 with BGIS. Increased publicity might occur if the protesters are removed.

Natasha

Someone from DFO in Vancouver – I believe Mara returned my telephone call from yesterday afternoon. She advised me that all matters have to go through you (BGIS) and the Real Properties Group for any decisions regarding DFO. She says her Area Chief advised her of that and they do not make these decisions.

The decision is whether DFO want the Landlord to press the charges against [REDACTED] the protester, for trespassing. Also, if they wish a temporary fence installed around the landlord's property. I have a contractor standing by that may be able to arrange that this week.

We are advised that there is a right of way area in one of the corners of the property that is municipal land and they may erect a tent there. We are also advised that they may have a lawn chair in front of the DFO entranceway.

Please advise what your client wishes the Landlord to do.

I have also copied Sergeant Andy Stuart of the Saanich Police Department on this email as we will need his advice who the tenants should call – 911 or non emergency line when they are on the property.

Let me know [REDACTED] once you get some approvals from your client.
Many thanks.

Good morning Anita & Elizabeth,

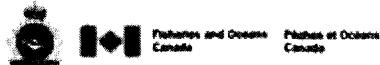

Just a quick note that the protestors are back at our office. Thus far they're drumming and singing out front, but the lead lady says that she may set up a tent directly in front of our door.

I'm going to have to leave today at 3:00PM when all the officers go because there is a fear that the protestors could push their way past me to occupy the building if I leave alone.

No one is sure what will happen tomorrow, but I'm proceeding as though we'll be able to come to work and so I can run the MRS reports needed for the budget review.

Hi Todd,

I have been assigned the aquaculture file and was wondering if you have your Martin Sheen updates saved anywhere. I recall you sending almost daily emails into our NFIS account over the summer and I wanted to review them if possible.

Thanks!

Hi Mandy,

Here are the lines from the previous incident – approved up to the RDG level. I will check with Real Property and then update. Best, Leri

DRAFT

POTENTIAL POLICE REMOVAL OF PROTESTORS FROM NON-DFO COMMERCE CIRCLE PROPERTY IN VICTORIA

Issue

Since November 13, 2017 anti-fish farm protesters have been encamped on a grass area beside a road adjacent to a Conservation and Protection warehouse entry door at the Commerce Circle Victoria office. DFO is a tenant at this location. The Department does not own or manage the property, which houses multiple tenants and is located some distance from downtown Victoria. Other tenants have complained about the protest encampment and the property management company wants the protesters to leave as their occupancy has become a health and sanitation issue. The Saanich police have already visited the site and are expected to return today or tomorrow to reassess the situation and determine next steps, which may include removal of the protesters. It is anticipated that the protesters may try to blame DFO for their removal and create a social media issue. Media attention is likely.

Media lines

- DFO leases office and warehouse space in Commerce Circle, a privately owned and multi-tenanted commercial space.
- DFO has not requested the removal of the protesters.
- The building is managed by Richmond Property Group and they would be the most appropriate contact for any further information.

Good Day,

Please find enclosed ER. When I asked [REDACTED] what her plans were, all she indicated to me is that her tent was, "en-route" and that she would set up under the roof at the front door. She did not indicate for how long.

Leri,

Is there any media lines developed for the last protest here? And can we get some for this new incident?

Report Date and Time:

2018-01-15 10:00 hours

Incident Date and Time:

2018-01-15 10:00 hours ongoing

Issue:

Peaceful Protest: protesters that were previously at the Victoria Office have returned. Currently 4 first nations people are drumming and dancing in the front of the Victoria Office.

Background:

During November and December 2017, a first nations woman [REDACTED] had set up a camp in protest of marine finfish farms. She was arrested and evicted by the Saanich police in December 19th, 2017.

The previous protest occurred from November 13th, 2017 to December 19th, 2017. There was a camp set up adjacent to the warehouse and rally on December 14th 2017, where approximately 75 showed up.

Current Status:

FO Ludlow spoke [REDACTED] and asked what her intentions were. She indicated that "her tent was en route and she is going to camp in front of the doors".

Strategic Considerations:

Front door will remain locked. Personnel are using the back door, [REDACTED] If they are at the front door, other staff will be asked to leave with the Fishery Officers at the end of the day. If access to the front door is blocked it will limit access of staff going in and out of the building, which could pose a threat if there was an emergency (eg. fire). The building owner and police have been notified.

s.19(1)

Strategic Communications:	All staff should be aware that the protesters are taking video. FO Ludlow will contact Leri Davies for communication lines.
Detachment Supervisor Comments:	There is concern if they occupy the front doors that the general public will not have access to the office. Also, concern for non enforcement staff coming and going and that the protesters may try and gain access to the building.

Aquaculture Issues Management List

January 16, 2018

Hot Issues  = Hot topic

[Protected – Solicitor-Client privilege]

Aquaculture act engagement

- CCFAM directed SMC last June [REDACTED] for consideration at CCFAM in summer 2018; this work is on track.
- DFO Engagement was placed formally on hold in December based on some concerns. A CCFAM DM teleconference January 8 discussed reinitiating engagement sessions. Provincial DMs requested further discussion take place [REDACTED]
- AMD will soon award a contract to legal experts to review the Canadian aquaculture legislative and regulatory framework by spring 2018 to support the Minister in his decision. s.14(a)
- Industry lobbying of provincial governments, the Minister's office, and stakeholders for an aquaculture act this spring is creating expectations and uncertainties around timelines for a federal act. These timelines need to be clarified for all parties. s.21(1)(a) s.21(1)(b)
s.23

Vision 2030

- [REDACTED]
- Provinces want to further discuss next steps at a deputy minister level – within next few weeks.

Aquaculture Issues Management List

January 16, 2018

- [REDACTED]
- AMD is consulting the department on the drafting following the DM call January 8. Options for developing the vision under the guise of the SMC are being developed.
- There is unanimous support from provinces to refer the vision to the SMC for development as a follow up to the Aquaculture Development Strategy.
- A one-day workshop was held with CCFAM-SMC Co-Chair (NB) on January 9.
- The draft long term Framework (2030) was announced by the Minister at a BC Salmon Farmer symposium and the Canadian Aquaculture Industry Alliance Policy Forum.

↑ Protests at BC Aquaculture Sites

- There are 23 salmon farms currently operating in the Broughton Archipelago. Of those sites, 20 are located in the claimed traditional territories of First Nations which do not support marine finfish aquaculture (salmon farming).
- Since August 2017, activists (including some First Nations) have conducted protest activities at a number of salmon farms in the Broughton Archipelago operated by Cermaq and Marine Harvest Canada. Demonstrations were also held outside of DFO offices, BC courts and offices of local politicians.
- Protests and site occupations were initially peaceful and caused only minor delays to farm operations. Activities were stepped up in December, when groups entered pens on several sites with divers and kayaks. Several fish were allegedly removed to conduct disease testing.
- On December 22, 2017, injunctions were granted by the BC Supreme Court to Cermaq and Marine Harvest.
- The rulings include an enforcement clause which provides the RCMP with authority to arrest and remove protestors from sites if the injunction is violated.
- Local First Nations have indicated they will continue with protest activities until salmon farms are removed from their claimed territory.

↑ Upcoming Tenure Renewals for BC Aquaculture Sites in the Broughton Archipelago

- 20 of the 23 aquaculture tenures in the Broughton area are set to expire in June, 2018. The Province of BC is under significant pressure from local First Nations not to renew the tenure agreements for these salmon farms.
- DFO marine finfish aquaculture licences for these sites are valid until July 2022, while Introductions and Transfers licences are issued on a regular basis to stock fish on farms in the area.
- [REDACTED]
- The Provincial government has initiated a government-to-government process with the Broughton First Nations related to the upcoming tenure decisions and asked Minister LeBlanc to participate on behalf of DFO.
- Regional DFO officials (Andy Thomson, Regional Director, Fisheries Management) are planning to participate on behalf of DFO. The first meeting is tentatively planned for January 30. [REDACTED]

↑ CAIA Submission on Health Canada Fee Increase Proposal for Drugs and Medical Devices

- CAIA provided comment (Jan. 3) to Health Canada's public consultation on veterinary fees under the Food and Drugs Act. CAIA intends to raise their concerns with Minister LeBlanc.
- Veterinary drugs fees were last increased in 1998 and according to Health Canada, the fees do not currently reflect costs of the Department nor align with other countries.
- Industry claims that "Health Canada is contemplating an unparalleled, massive 500% increase" in fees, which will potentially kill growth opportunities. Further, they claim that Health Canada doesn't fully justify how the proposed fee increases relate to the "private benefits" to industry.
- CAIA proposes that Fisheries and Oceans and Health Canada lobby for sufficient funding to implement a federal minor use minor species (MUMS) program. Until that time, CAIA proposes that VDD should be flexible and waive portions of the application fees for MUMS products.
- DFO has provided a forum in the past for industry, other federal departments and provincial agencies to discuss issues such as MUMs, but DFO has never "lobbied" on industry behalf nor should do so in the future. Any inquiries specific to this fee proposal need to be addressed by Health Canada.

↑ Independent Review of the DFO Fish Health Audit and Surveillance Program

- In Spring 2017, DFO Pacific Region initiated an independent review/evaluation of the Fish Health Audit and Surveillance Program (FHASP).
- This review is now complete and the high level recommendations outlined in the report are as follows:

Aquaculture Issues Management List

January 16, 2018

- Identify clear program goals and objectives
- Establish more robust data management systems and analytical capacity
- Improve timeliness and customization of public reporting and data sharing
- Optimize utilization and analysis of surveillance data collected
- Along with the results of other ongoing reviews (e.g. MAACFA, CESD audit), these recommendations will guide further refinements/improvements to the FHASP, beginning with the clearer articulation of Program goals and objectives, as well as potential changes to the structure/design of the Program.
- Proposed next steps on the FHASP review are as follows:
 - Development of media lines explaining the results of the technical evaluation of the FHASP
 - Share the report with the experts interviewed in the technical review and then with First Nations, BC, industry, and others through existing aquaculture advisory bodies.

↑ Grieg Newfoundland Environmental Assessment

- In July 2016 Newfoundland Minister of Municipal Affairs and Environment initially released the Grieg project from further environmental assessment (EA). The Atlantic Salmon Federation successfully appealed, compelling the Minister to require an Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) by the proponent.
- The EIS process has been undertaken by the Province for the proposed Grieg Placentia Bay Atlantic Salmon Aquaculture Project, and the Environmental Assessment (EA) Committee, of which DFO-NL is a member, has produced a draft of the EIS Guidelines that outline information requirements of the proponent.
- These guidelines were posted online on January 2, 2018 for a 40-day comment period, and will be provided to the proponent on March 8, 2018.
- [REDACTED] DFO is looking into a possible additional DFO representative from Fisheries Management to the panel.
- The legal decision requiring conducting of an EA is currently being appealed by the Province of Newfoundland and the proponent. Arguments were heard on December 14 and 15, 2017.
- Due to the success of the initial appeal by the ASF and public concerns surrounding the project, this public process will reinvigorate opposition to the project, some of which will be directed at the Department due to its mandate.

↑ BC – Ministerial Advisory Committee on Fisheries and Aquaculture (MAACFA)

- In July, 2015, the Province announced that it would examine the rules and restrictions that guide the application and approval process to ensure that aquaculture operations are socially and ecologically sustainable and can co-exist with British Columbia's wild fishery resource.
- Members are from the aquaculture industry, non-governmental organizations and First Nations, as well as the Ministry of Agriculture and the Ministry of Forest, Lands and Natural Resource Operations.
- The Committee is examining establishing a protocol for receiving advice from the Aquaculture Stewardship Council in regard to tenures for new aquaculture sites and the feasibility of improved microbe detection at aquaculture sites arising from the work being undertaken by Genome BC in tandem with the other scientific evidence already available to the Province.

Aquaculture Issues Management List

January 16, 2018

- While these actions are being undertaken, the Province will not consider any further approvals for new salmon aquaculture tenures.
- The Committee's report is expected by the end of January, early February 2018. DFO expects to receive an advance copy of the report and its recommendations.

↑ Risk Assessments

- The first (IHNV) of the risk assessments was released the week of December 18th with an accompanying media technical briefing by the science team.
- Work is well underway on the next series of four risk assessments – on systemic bacterial infections.
- An overall timeline and plans have been discussed with DGs in Ottawa and the RDs in Pacific Region.
- With respect to the PRV risk assessment, there is the need for the completion of on-going research before a robust risk assessment can be started. As such, there is the potential need for additional communications products in the near term.
- [REDACTED] a member of the IHNV risk assessment steering committee) and others issued a press release questioning the transparency of the process, particularly around the non-disclosure of an inter-company viral management plan MOU.
- DFO Science(and Communications) has prepared media lines to respond to this concern over lack of transparency.

↑ Science Panel

- A terms of reference for the panel as well a list have been drafted and sent to the DM and MINO for review. Options for a possible announcement are included in a Ministerial memo being prepared.

On-going Management Issue Update

Cooke Site 1358 Jordan Bay

- The severe storm on January 4th caused damage to Cooke Aquaculture's site in Jordan Bay NS with debris washing up on shore around the area.
- Regional management spoke with several concerned citizens and fishers on January 5 and made them aware of the process for reporting.
- The company has indicated that they do not suspect any loss of fish based on preliminary assessments and provincial counterparts have provided DFO officials the same assessment.
- The incident has been reported to the NS Department of Environment which has the lead in responding. Staff from NS DoE and NS Department of Fisheries and Aquaculture were undertaking a January 8, weather permitting. DFO has offered assistance if needed.

Effluent Discharge from BC Processing Plants

- Since the November 2017 release of video footage of blood and other effluent coming from the Brown's Bay Packing processing plant near Campbell River, the issue of effluent treatment and disease transmission has received significant public and media attention.
- In response to a request by provincial officials, DFO Science collected samples during the first week of December to test samples for the presence of pathogens, including PRV. All samples tested positive for PRV. A Rapid Science Response (RSS) has been completed and provided to the Province of BC. In November, the Province of BC began reviewing the current discharge permit for the

Aquaculture Issues Management List

Brown's Bay plant and referred a draft of an updated permit to DFO (Aquaculture Management Division, Pacific Region) for comment/input. No comments have been provided to date.

- On December 20, 2017, the Province of BC announced a broader review of the regulations and discharge permitting process related to fish plants and the use of pesticides to treat sea lice.
- The Province is responsible for the licensing of fish processing plants. Federally, ECCC is responsible for administering section 36 of the Fisheries Act. However, given DFO's and expertise related to aquaculture, fish health and minimizing impacts to wild salmon, DFO staff are prepared to work with the responsible federal and provincial agencies to support and inform this review by the Province, as appropriate (including coordination with ECCC).

Correspondence from Broughton area First Nations

- Since late November 2017, DFO and the Province of BC have received several letters from legal counsel for the 'Namgis and Dzawada'enuxw First Nations stating their opposition to aquaculture activities in the Broughton Archipelago.
- The letters highlight the need for the federal and provincial government to consult on continued aquaculture activities in the Broughton in general, and specifically, on individual introductions and transfers licences related to sites in their Territory.
- A response drafted on behalf of Minister LeBlanc has been drafted [REDACTED]
- [REDACTED]

AAR reporting

- AMD work on national aquaculture reporting is focused on: a) options for data sets to make public (detailed, site level, aggregated, frequency of drug/pesticide deposits; and b) context to accompany this information for reports from 2016 on marine finfish operations.
- Dialogue with industry through CAIA is ongoing, and feedback will help refine materials to be posted on the DFO website.
- The aim is to strike the right balance between information that is useful to a broad audience, while still respecting business confidentiality.
- Pending these consultations, we will be well positioned to publically post AAR results.

FACTAP

- Announced Dec. 18, but regional offices have been holding discussions with select (i.e., high likelihood of success) candidates prior to this to gauge interest.
- $750k available for distribution this FY. Regions have identified approximately $$872k worth of projects and are actively being encouraged to develop and finalize contribution agreements for these. Requirements for excess funds will be dealt with through multi-year agreements.
- The selection process will be a little different and streamlined this FY, due to the late announcement date. Regional review committees will review proposals immediately as they come in (vs. usual operation of every 3 weeks). Proposals will be funded 'first through the gate' for this FY only.

PARR Annual Meeting

- The annual science meeting to review progress on science projects from previous years and to begin planning for the coming year is scheduled for January 30-31, 2018 in Ottawa.
- It would be useful to share management priorities in the run-up to the meeting so that we can begin the process of determining how we might meet them.

6. Broughton Archipelago Plan (D. Travia)

• Province to provide an update on the January Broughton meeting

- Reconciliation is a central component of the Government of Canada's commitment to developing a renewed, nation-to-nation relationship with Indigenous Peoples, and several processes have been established to support reconciliation efforts.
- DFO will be following the overall direction laid out through these processes to work towards reaching agreements with First Nations in BC around fisheries and aquaculture management and governance issues.
- Our Minister will not be engaging in this government-to-government process directly. There is no direct regulatory decision for the Department related to these sites—DFO has issued federal licences for the continued operation of these sites through June 30, 2022.
- Andy Thomson, Regional Director, Fisheries Management, will participate in the process to provide input and support, as appropriate, as well as information regarding DFO management of aquaculture in BC.
- We do have some questions regarding the proposed government-to-government process:
 - does the Province have a sense of what range of options might be considered when entering into this government to government process?
 - [REDACTED] This would have a significant impact on the industry and employment in small, coastal communities (including First Nations).

s.21(1)(b)

- what about the broader implications for other sectors/industries operating in territory claimed by First Nations?

7. Farm Safety (C. Jackson/L. Neilson)

- Action item from December 4, 2017 AMC: DAC will create a government agency attendee list and bring to AMC for review
- Protests at salmon farm sites this summer have escalated and companies have raised concerns regarding the safety of their workers.
- Industry has approached DFO to see if the Department could coordinate a discussion with other government agencies to see if there are additional measures that governments can take, within our respective mandates, to help ensure farm worker safety.
- Industry used the example of clear markings of aquaculture tenures as a possible improvement that could be made. This would involve the Province and Transport Canada.
- DFO is willing to coordinate/facilitate a discussion on this but we are looking for support from the Province and ideas on who else we should engage.

8. Integrated Geoduck Management Framework (C. Jackson)

- DFO has been reviewing aquaculture applications for geoduck and evaluating them under the new Integrated Geoduck Management Framework (IGMF) since March, 2017.

Since the release of the IGMF, the Project Review Team (PRT) has received 11 applications

- 1 application was rejected as it fell outside the requirements of the IGMF
- 1 application was withdrawn
- 6 applications remain under review at the PRT stage while DFO works with CSSP partners on an approach for ensuring adequate water quality and biotoxin monitoring.
- 3 additional applications are under review by PRT agencies for application deficiencies and/or major concerns.
- None of the applications at the PRT stage are from First Nations.
- DFO is currently working with CSSP partners on an approach for ensuring adequate water quality and biotoxin monitoring to allow for harvest of Geoduck post licensing.
- The Department has received significant feedback from First Nations that the IGMF does not provide enough flexibility to meet their interests /aspirations related to geoduck (aquaculture and/or access to wild).
- DFO is currently examining options on how First Nations interests can be addressed through a variety of tools such as the IGMF, treaty negotiations, and other policies.

Comment [D1]: Lauren, should I make sure these numbers are updated? If so, who would be able to give them to me?

9. Provincial Review of Discharge and IPM Permitting (MOE)

- Effluent Discharge from BC Processing Plants

- Since the November 2017 release of video footage of blood and other effluent coming from the Brown's Bay Packing processing plant near Campbell River, the issue of effluent treatment and disease transmission has received significant public and media attention.
- In response to a request by provincial officials, DFO Science collected samples during the first week of December to test samples for the presence of pathogens, including PRV. All samples tested positive for PRV.
- A Rapid Science Response (RSS) has been completed and provided to the Province of BC.
- In November, the Province of BC began reviewing the current discharge permit for the Brown's Bay plant and referred a draft of an updated permit to DFO (Aquaculture Management Division, Pacific Region) for comment/input. No comments have been provided to date.
- On December 20, 2017, the Province of BC announced a broader review of the regulations and discharge permitting process related to fish plants and the use of pesticides to treat sea lice.
- The Province is responsible for the licensing of fish processing plants. Federally, ECCC is responsible for administering section 36 of the Fisheries Act. However, given DFO's and expertise related to aquaculture, fish health and minimizing impacts to wild salmon, DFO staff are prepared to work with the responsible federal and provincial agencies to support and inform this review by the Province, as appropriate (including coordination with ECCC).

10. Integrated Pest Management (IPM) (L. Lavigne)

- The BC Salmon Farmers Association organized a workshop on Integrated Pest Management on January 10-11. The workshop highlighted the many tools required for pest management (area based management, management thresholds, therapeutics, best management practices). If management thresholds are low, and there few treatment tools available, resistance will develop.
- An Integrated Pest Management (IPM) overview document, which describes the status of IPM in BC, was drafted by the Strategic Working Group (a DFO and industry working group) and discussed at our DAC meeting in October.
- The IPM document examines the core elements of an IPM for aquaculture and the treatments available for sea lice in the different salmon farming jurisdictions along with which of those treatments are available in BC.
- Federal and Provincial governments play a critical role in ensuring various treatment options are available for the aquaculture industry to use. DFO would like to explore with the Province how a longer term strategy for IPM can be developed, similar to IPM strategies for terrestrial farming.
- DFO is looking to work with industry and the Province to develop a work plan to outline next steps and identify short, medium and long term actions that can be taken to support IPM in BC.

11. Freshwater Policies (D. Travia/C. Jackson)

- David Travia will discuss process of ongoing policy development on freshwater fish enhancement and access.
- DFO is currently reviewing the ONA application to add sturgeon to their licence. Provincial comments have been requested. The Department will begin reviewing their request to add rainbow trout in the near future.

12. Fisheries and Aquaculture Clean Technology Adoption Program (FACTAP) (L. Lavigne)

- The Fisheries and Aquaculture Clean Technology Adoption Program (FACTAP) officially launched on December 18, 2017
- Shirley Choi is coordinating this program for the Pacific region
- The program will provide funding of up to $20 million over four years to Canada's fisheries, aquaculture and processing companies to implement market-ready clean technologies, processes, and practices into their day-to-day operations.
- FACTAP can provide funding of up to 75% of eligible project costs, the applicant must also receive funding from provincial or territorial governments of at least 10% of the project cost in cash or in-kind.

13. External Evaluations (C.Jackson)

- There are currently a number of evaluations going on related to Aquaculture management in B.C.
 - i. CESD/OAG audit is nearing completion. The final report is expected to be released in Spring 2018
 - ii. A review of the DFO Fish Health Audit and Surveillance program has been completed and will be shared with the Province shortly
 - iii. A review of the options for the provision of diagnostic services has been initiated. The option of conducting diagnostic testing internally within in DFO will be analyzed first.

14. Minister of Agriculture Advisory Council on Finfish Aquaculture (MAACFA) debrief (D. Travia)

- David Travia will be providing a debrief on the last Minister of Agriculture Advisory Council on Finfish Aquaculture

15. Legislative Reform and Strategic Management Committee Meeting (SMC) updates (D. Travia/L. Neilson)

- D. Travia / L. Neilson to provide an update
- The Last SMC was held in Toronto on September 13, 2017.
- A special SMC conference call was held November 24, following the Minister's announcement of the federal "Vision".
- The SMC Working Group on Aquaculture Legislation and Regulations has had more than a dozen conference calls and a two-day meeting in Vancouver since fall 2017.

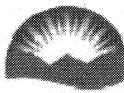

16. Follow up from December AMC and Preparation of March 8, 2018 AMC Agenda (All)

- Refer to agenda from December 4, 2017 AMC

FYI - This doesn't talk about the "Horgan" connection. That I heard from one of the staff at the Victoria DFO office.

It was stated that the Horgan office protest in the main base camp and the DFO protest would be a "day camp" to be done once in a while.

Please find enclosed ER. When I asked [REDACTED] what her plans were, all she indicated to me is that her tent was, "en-route" and that she would set up under the roof at the front door. She did not indicate for how long.

Leri,

Is there any media lines developed for the last protest here? And can we get some for this new incident?

Hi Cam & Mandy,

Three people arrived sometime around 8:15AM and 2 of them drummed/sang loudly in front of the entrance doors facing out into the parking lot through to 11:00AM. A few other people came and went. They have erected a small sign in the garden to the right of the door and there are currently 2-3 people sitting in chairs to the right of the doorway.

It's been very noisy for me today because my workstation is so close to the area they occupy.

All quiet at the moment though.

Hi Jo,

Yes, we've been in contact with Sgt. Andy Stuart of Saanich PD. He has been assigned to the Victoria office protest activity. We are going to be meeting tomorrow to discuss our approach to the protests. Sgt. Julie Fast will also be attending, as well as a representative from Garnett Capital.

You can pass on the Event Report to Saanich PD.

Yes, thanks Claire.

Hi Mandy -

FYI, NFIS Intel Analyst Natasha Chohan and myself have been assigned to the aquaculture protest file in general, which includes such events at your office/your detachment offices.

Just to confirm, did you advise Saanich police? Or was it other police?

Also - can I share this information with Sgt. Julie Fast of the Saanich police, if for some reason she hasn't received it? She's their Intel section head. Julie helps keep us apprised of what actions Saanich PD takes when warranted. If you haven't got her contacts, let me know and I will pass them to you.

I'm out of office today, but still working.

Thanks -

Jo

Criminal Mischief: DFO would have to pursue

- Interfering with our access: entry / exit

Statement of Fishery Officer G. Adams

Approximately 0635 hrs Thursday January 18, 2018 Fishery Officer Adams (FO) entered his office located at 4250 Commerce Circle. At approximately 0745 hrs FO Adams saw 2 people sitting in lawn chairs that had been placed against the front doors of the office. FO Adams recognized these 2 females as the same people that had sat out in front of the office from the beginning of the week. About 10 minutes FO Adams heard a clanging noise at the front doors of the office. Looking from the front counter FO Adams saw a male draping a heavy gauge chain over the door handles of the office, FO Adams recognized this male from the day before, he was wearing a camo jacket and blue jeans. One of the females that was wearing sunglasses began adjusting the chain around the door handles.

FO Adams left the front counter and advised Field Supervisor M. Cormie that the front office doors had been chained up. FO Adams return to the front counter and saw that a cable had been placed around the door handles as well.

The office administer, Andrew Burke approached the office front doors and was denied access to the office. The female wearing the sunglasses, now setting in the chair was holding the chain that was wrapped around the door handles. FO Adams advised Field Supervisor M. Cormie and Detachment Supervisor M. Issue:

Protesters chaining the front door of the Victoria Office, preventing egress to and from the building.

Background:

At approximately 0800 hours the front door of the Victoria Office was chained shut by protesters. The Saanich police attended and arrested [REDACTED] [REDACTED] Crown counsel has approved charges for mischief under the CCC and orders preventing them from attending the Victoria office again. The police have requested formal support from DFO to pursue these charges. Area Chief, Linda Higgins has provided that support. The police have suggested that DFO find a more long term solution at preventing this occurrence from happening again. [REDACTED] indicated that she wants her day in court and that she returned to the Victoria office this week because the building owners dropped the trespassing charges from December occurrences.

Current Status:

[REDACTED]

Strategic Considerations:

A long term solution should be sought to address the protest activity, rather than repeatedly seeking assistance from Saanich Police. The protesters have indicated to Saanich police, that this is an important issue to them and that they will not stop. Concern has been raised by the land owners over potential loss of business, if the other tenants will not renew their building lease due to ongoing protest activity at this site.

Comments:

RE: Front entrance doors chained shut at 4250A Commerce Circle

I arrived at 4250A Commerce Circle to begin my 8:00AM shift at 7:55AM. I parked my vehicle in the street and walked towards the driveway of the building. Our office has been the site of a peaceful protests since Monday, January 15, 2018 and I was expecting to see members of the protest group in the parking lot. I noticed an older white Pontiac Sunfire that I recognized from the past few days of protest leaving the driveway. As I entered the driveway I said hello to a man [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] who was also entering the driveway. I recognized him as occasionally being on site for the protest over the past few days. As I walked towards the entrance doors I realized that two elderly women were seated in chairs directly in front of the entrance doors. I recognized the woman on the right [REDACTED] who had begun her protest with an encampment on the office property several weeks ago. I saw that there was a steel tow chain and a cable-style lock wrapped around the door handles. I believe there was a man standing to the left of the doors and there was another man standing to my right whom I recognized as being a protester who had been on site protesting, drumming and singing since Tuesday, January 16, 2018. The man who I met when I entered the driveway was also now standing in the building entrance area. I do not recall clear specifics about who was doing what at the time, or exactly how many people were present. I believe that as I walked up to the group, both women were turned towards someone standing to the left of where they were sitting, and that person was holding the locking device on the cable-style lock. I remember making a light-hearted comment: "No work today, eh?" and the woman seated on the left turning towards me and smiling light-heartedly. The woman seated on the right, [REDACTED] made a comment to effect that I was taking the situation well. The man to my right, whom I recognized as the drummer, looked at me and said, "There's the back door". I agreed and walked away, exited the driveway, walked down the sidewalk, knocked on the back door and was let in by a member of our office staff. I believe it was Mandy Ludlow. I was not followed around the building [REDACTED] I began working at my desk and did so until the detachment supervisor, Mandy Ludlow, suggested that myself and two other officers leave for the day. We did so, walked to our cars and entered them. I was not followed by any of the protestors and no one made any comments to me.

Good morning,

All this week there have been renewed protest activities at our Victoria field office on Commerce Circle. All precautions are being taken to ensure the safety of our staff.

We haven't received any information that would indicate that similar activities will happen elsewhere, however it is always possible. If I receive any information, of course I will pass it on. Please do the same!

I want to take this opportunity to remind you that security is everyone's business. If you don't recognize someone who is trying to access our buildings – ask them for identification or at least ask them who they are meeting. If you see something that causes you concern – let security and your supervisor know about it.

Use your own good judgement and common sense.

Re: Events involving the actions by protestors on the morning of 2018/01/18, located in front of the DFO office at 4250 Commerce Circle, Victoria, BC, V8Z 4M2.

On the morning of 2018/01/18, I began work at the office at approximately 0700 hrs. In the minutes before 0800 hrs, while I was working at my desk in one of the cubicles, I overheard a fellow employee state to our Field Supervisor that "they were chaining the doors". As staff assessed the situation, and while the supervisors attempted to make contact with management, I got up to assess the situation for myself. I went to the front door and peered out at the protestors who were assembled outside the first set of doors at the lobby entrance. I observed two individuals standing with their backs to me while a third person, who I observed to be a middle aged female of Caucasian decent, appeared to be filming the two said persons with her cell phone. Glancing at the front door handles, I observed what appeared to be a chain wrapped about the circumference of the handles. Listening to the supervisors on scene who were speaking aloud with their concerns and formulating an action plan, I volunteered to address one of the concerns, which was to notify a staff member who was scheduled to arrive at 0800 hrs. I subsequently attempted to call his number but while doing so, learned that he had already arrived. I witnessed the said fellow employee stop and walk away from where protestors were assembled and observed him access the building through the back door. Once he was safe inside, I went back to my desk where I continued to carry on with my work for the day. Not long after I sitting down at my desk, I was advised by our detachment commander that I would be going home along with two other staff members. I was informed that three uniform officers would remain on scene while they waited for police intervention. I was additionally instructed to lock up any files or sensitive material, in the chance that things escalated and the protestors were to access the building. I therefore assembled all my things in preparation for my departure while ensuring that any sensitive information was locked up in the secure filing cabinets existing in house. At approximately 0830 hrs, I and two other staff members departed the building and proceeded to our vehicles. As I walked around the front of the building in order to gain access to my vehicle, I heard one of the protestors (two of them sitting at the front door) call out "Your welcome for the day off!", I acknowledged the statement by saying "Thank you" [REDACTED] and wished them a good day. The protestor who called out to me and who I subsequently addressed in return, I observed to be a middle-aged female of First Nation decent and the same person who I had observed on scene since the protest began. Upon getting in my car and starting it up, I proceeded to drive out of the parking lot (fronting the DFO business address on Commerce Circle), thus marking the end of my involvement in the situation.

0700- arrive at 4250 Commerce Circle for shift.

Approximately 0800 I was photocopying paperwork at the front of the office (near the front windows) and heard my coworkers say that the protesters were back. Shortly thereafter I heard something metal banging against the glass doors at the entrance to the office. FO Gord ADAMS went to the door to see what was making the noise and said that they were chaining the front door closed.

I then went to my cubicle at the back of the office and put my uniform and enforcement gear on.

I returned to the front of the office, I saw that there were two folding lawn chairs sitting in front of the doors and there was what looked like a large tow chain around the handles of the doors. At approximately 0825 I was told by my supervisor (FO Mandy LUDLOW)to go home for the day. I put my civilian clothes back on and exited out the rear door to the building with FO Jordan BROMWICH and the office administrator Andrew Burke.

I walked to the parking lot at the front of the office with BROMWICH, which is where our vehicles were parked. I saw a Caucasian female standing near the entrance to the detachment and two First Nations women sitting in lawn chairs against the two glass entrance doors. I have seen both First Nations women frequently at the DFO office during the ongoing protest over the past couple of months. I have come to know them. [REDACTED]

I got into my vehicle and left.

Subject: Protest at Field Office

Good morning Anita and Elizabeth,

Just a quick note that I am being sent home from work due to First Nations protestors chaining our office doors shut. Mandy Ludlow, the detachment supervisor made the call.

Tomorrow I am away for my Working with First Nations training course.

Best,

Mandy thanks for advising me. I am copying the Saanich police officer who has been working with us and the Landlord plus DFO's agent as this sounds like break and enter I would think if they chain sawed your front door. Did the police take photos of the door damage? Was it the warehouse or office door?

[REDACTED] -- we will need to get a door repair company out there if it requires repairs. Mandy will need to confirm this with [REDACTED] RPG operations so the right company is called for repair or replacement of the door.

Thanks

Good morning Rebecca,

You probably have seen this from others: Protestors have chained the front door of our field office in Victoria. Saanich Police have been called.

Protestors have been back at our Victoria field office every day this week. Until this morning they were peacefully drumming and causing no problems. Staff were taking appropriate security measures.

This morning I received the email below from Mandy Ludlow, one of the Fishery Officers, stating that the protestors have chained the front door.

I just phoned her as her email indicated she wasn't able to get hold of any senior management. She and remaining staff are fine, and Mandy said that the protestors were peacefully sitting outside the front door, however, chains on the front door are a safety concern, obviously.

She, and two other FOs, are remaining for security, all other staff have been sent home. The Saanich Police have been called.

As it is possible that these protests might spill into other sites, I'm going to send a message to all SCA staff reminding them of security protocols.

Thanks

Laura

Please be vigilant in case they come to our offices (not likely-hopefully).

Reminder of office security during protest.

The following are some standard protocols which assist us with preventing occupation of our sites:

1. Ensure all staff are aware of the situation and ask them to practice increased vigilance - to be on the alert for suspicious activity
2. Remind staff not to leave doors and windows open and unlocked, to ensure doors closely properly behind them, and not to let strangers tailgate in behind them.
3. Do not permit members of the public access to operational zones.

4. If there are indications or suspicions of an immediate threat of a sit-in or occupation, lock perimeter doors so as to lock-out the reception zone. Permit access only to employees and trusted visitors.
5. If the building is on lockdown, do not open perimeter doors to speak to suspected protesters or unknown visitors - who may then try to force or wedge themselves in. Ask them their intended purpose through the door or window and calmly explain that the building is on lockdown and only employees are allowed in at this time.
6. Sanitize the public reception zone such that is free from chairs, flagpoles etc., as well as any internal memos, staff directory listings or contact numbers.
7. Ensure visitors and uncleared contractors are escorted at all times and register them in a sign-in/sign-out sheet.
8. Reschedule any upcoming meetings with new visitors/clients or visitors/clients of unknown reliability to a teleconference.
9. Ensure staff have their ID cards and building access passes ready for inspection and visible.
10. If possible, challenge individuals who you do not recognize in the building. If possible, ask them if they are looking for someone or if they need help locating a room. Report the incident.
11. Advise staff to report any attempts of unauthorized entry, the presence of unattended briefcases, bags or parcels in or around the building, and any suspicious activity, vehicles and/or persons in or around the building to a supervisor or security staff.
12. Consider hiring Commissionaire Guard staff to enhance short-term security.
13. Call 9-11 if there is an emergency or threat to safety or property.
14. Call 9-11 if there is a sit-in protest or occupation.

The only way the order will work is if DFO supports the mischief charges.

Saanich police are formally requesting DFO's support in writing to support these charges. Without that they have nothing and will not be responding anymore. Linda can you please discuss this with Mike ASAP? We need it in writing from him and/or rebecca ASAP.

And then we also need a long term solution.

Our Victoria officers are working from Duncan today and will also be meeting with Saanich PD and the building owner to review the situation and look for long term solutions. An injunction is something the owner may want to review but if he doesn't, we need too. I will be discussing with Chris Manore later today.

Brenda, and Adrienne, can you please forward to AEO and ARM staff at the Vancouver Island offices?

Good morning,

This week, there have been a series of aquaculture-related protest activities at the DFO Victoria field office on Commerce Circle. Up until today the protests had been fairly low-key; however, I understand the protestors have chained the door to the building and things may be escalating.

Laura Brown (South Coast, Area Director) is tracking it closely, as is Claire and our C&P colleagues. All precautions are being taken to ensure the safety of DFO staff. We have not received any information indicating that similar protests are planned elsewhere; however it is always possible. Please be extra vigilant around the offices. For example, if you don't recognize someone who is trying to access our buildings, please ask them for identification or at least ask them who they are meeting. If you see suspicious activity or something that causes you concern – let security / DSO and your supervisor know.

If I receive any further information, I will pass it on and ask that you please do the same. In the meantime, if you have any questions or concerns, please contact Brenda, Adrienne or myself.

Thanks,

Sounds like things are ramping up. We should email AMD staff to let them know that there is an aquaculture related protest at the Victoria field office and to be extra vigilant at the offices.

Our Victoria officers are working from Duncan today and will also be meeting with Saanich PD and the building owner to review the situation and look for long term solutions. An injunction is something the owner may want to review but if he doesn't, we need too. I will be discussing with Chris Manore later today.

EVENT INFORMATION

Report Date and Time:

2018-01-18 10:40 hours

Incident Date and Time:

2018-01-18 08:00 hours

Issue:

Protesters chaining closed the front doors to the Victoria office and restricting access to the Victoria Office.

Background:

During November and December 2017, a first nations woman [REDACTED] had set up a camp in protest of marine finfish farms. She was arrested and evicted by the Saanich police in December 19th, 2017.

The previous protest occurred from November 13th, 2017 to December 19th, 2017. There was a camp set up adjacent to the warehouse and rally on December 14th 2017, where approximately 75 showed up.

On January 15th, 2018 [REDACTED] individuals attended the Victoria Office and began protesting in front of the main entrance to the building. They continued to demonstrate in the front of the main doors until January 18th when they were arrested by Saanich police.

Current Status:

Saanich police [REDACTED] spoke with the rest of the protesters who were asked to not return for the rest of the day. All staff have left the building.

Strategic Considerations:

Restricted access to the office poses a safety risk, if staff cannot exit the building. The access to the public and C&P general operations is severely limited due to the ongoing protests.

Strategic Communications:	All staff should be aware that the protesters are taking video.
Detachment Supervisor Comments:	There is concern if they occupy the front doors that the general public will not have access to the office. Also, concern for non enforcement staff coming and going and that the protesters may try and gain access to the building.

Hello all,

Please note that there may be potential media involvement in regards to today's protest/arrest. The group asked [REDACTED] if she could call into the Gunargie OSullivan show. However, [REDACTED] offered to create a hot spot for her through his WiFi.

I searched via open source to find out where Gunargie's radio show is aired and found the following information:

LISTEN TO GUNARGIE LIVE ON COOP RADIO WWW.COOPRADIO.ORG

When Spirit Whispers Mondays 1pm PST
Snc'Whaylh Tuesdays 1pm PST
Late night with Savages Wednesdays 11pm PST
Kla How Ya Thursdays 5pm PST
Listen to The Resonating Reconciliation Documentaries

Gunargie has shared all [REDACTED] videos of the protest on her own Facebook page.

I will continue to monitor and provide updates as required.

Thanks Linda

DFO and landlord asked SPD for "no go" release conditions and will confirm identities of who and what, if any, were imposed. Will advise or you may hear more before I do.

Social media reporting one female remains in custody, apparently refusing to sign anything and the drums are outside SPD.

I spoke to Saanich PD and the two protesters were released on a promise to appear. The informations have not yet been laid, but they likely will be soon, maybe next week.

Hi Linda,

Everyone was told that the office would be closed today, so no one is working in Victoria today except Andrew, who is at a course at IOS and Sean, who I think will be working from home. I am working at the Duncan office, so I'll drive to Victoria with Dave a little later on to provide an update on the protest activity.

Tim, I was monitoring some Facebook action yesterday but our attention was more on the group that chained the doors shut at the Victoria office - supporters of the FN that were protesting in the Broughtons all fall. I would agree with Michelle and yourself - reacting at this point will not generate a positive interaction.

I would focus on some of the science our folks do and report that out - just not sure of the timing.

What I have learned over the past 6 months is that the aqua portfolio is very complex - nothing is cut and dry!

Hmmm. I can see perspectives. I suspect that these commenters are unlikely to be influenced by any further information. In fact, it would likely only exacerbate the situation. If we went with a follow up action, it would be to target the moderate perspective, the ones who read the post but didn't comment.

We are re-profiling existing resources to bolster our aquaculture enforcement capacity, including additional training for fishery officers on the fisheries act s.36 angle, increasing forensic capacity for testing fish for illegal pesticides and other deleterious substances.

I'm leery of catalyzing further negative attention but would be curious to rope in my regional enforcement colleagues for their perspective. Claire and Neil, are you guys aware of the emerging social media situation?

Hi all,

FYI! Please find below comments we received on the aquaculture monitoring post. Due to the number of comments, we may want to engage.

Here's the post for reference: Did you know that DFO fishery officers spend thousands of hours each year on aquaculture monitoring in British Columbia? Enforcement and investigation activities include land, sea and air patrols. Where violations are found, officers can employ a range of compliance options including warnings, restorative justice processes and charges. Learn more at <http://ow.ly/E1Nm30hN1a0>

If they we're doing their job properly the very first thing they should have discovered is that these feedlots are introducing deleterious substances into salmon habitat in contravention to the Fisheries Act! Beside the many other negative influences 'deleterious substance' alone should have been enough to prevent the start of this mess in the first place

Officers CAN employ a range of compliance options including warnings, 😕. Restorative justice processes, (fosters dialogue between victim and offender), *, and charges. According to the document above, there were two warnings issued in 2016 and one charge was pending. Read the document and weep for our coastline.

Maybe they should use an hour or two and get a few samples of clam digging areas instead of steadily keeping it closed.

I'm curious how all you good folk working at our DFO feel about the Minister of Fisheries appealing a judges decision, which mandates direct responsibility for him to test farmed fish for PRV before going from hatchery into open ocean pens? Bit of a "Duh" that he even needs to be told to test for diseases. Does it bother you that he's not testing any fish right now for PRV, but rather breaking the law itself by not following a judges orders? Do you find it disturbing his act of defiance is also ensuring we get diseased farmed fish in our precious coastal waters? If you find out his reasoning, can you please tell the rest of us why would a Minister of Fisheries want diseased farmed fish in our ocean where they can and do infect our wild stocks swimming by.

Subject: FW: Pacific Regional Operation Issues for the Week of January 15, 2018

Hello Mark – for your information, following is an overview of operational issues in Pacific Region this week. Please let me know if you have any questions.

Arrests of protesters chained the front door of the C&P Victoria Office.

On January 18th the front door of the Victoria DFO Office was chained shut by anti-aquaculture protesters. The Saanich police attended and arrested 2 individuals. Crown counsel has approved charges for mischief under the CCC and orders preventing them from attending the Victoria office again. One of the protestors indicated that she wants her day in court and that she returned to the Victoria office this week because the building owners dropped the trespassing charges from December occurrences. The protesters have indicated to Saanich police, that this is an important issue to them and that they will not stop. Concern has been raised by the land owners over potential loss of business, if the other tenants will not renew their building lease due to ongoing protest activity at this site. There is serious concern for the safety of the staff as there was no warning from the protesters before they locked the front doors. All DFO Staff have been directed to work out of the Duncan office on Friday January 19th. Further options are being developed to address this protest activity, including seeking an injunction to prevent further protest at the Victoria Office. Media lines are being developed by communications. Draft guidelines to respond and report on protests were provided to the Region by the National security group and a follow up call is in the works to develop a longer term plan to address the safety concerns, disruption of work, and impact on other tenants in the area.

New research links PRV with jaundice disease in farmed and cultured salmon in British Columbia

In 2017, the Salmon Strategic Health Initiative (SSHI) team, of which DFO is a lead partner, published a paper documenting for the first time the presence of Heart and Skeletal Muscle (HSMI) disease in farmed Atlantic salmon in Canada, as well as a correlation between the prevalence of Piscine Orthoreovirus (PRV) and the occurrence and severity of the observed HSMI lesions. This initial diagnosis of HSMI generated significant attention in the media and the public, much of which focussed on the risks of HSMI transfer from farm to wild salmon populations as well as on government authorization of fish transfers without prior testing for PRV (the latter is also subject of a current Morton versus DFO litigation). Now, the SSHI team has completed new research that shows PRV may also play a co-infection role in the manifestation of jaundice in Pacific salmon, specifically wild and cultured Chinook Salmon. Although the impacts of jaundice on wild fish are not well understood, it is known to cause discoloration of the skin and low levels of mortality (<1.5% per production cycle) in cultured fish. The research findings are expected to be submitted for publication in an international peer-reviewed journal within the next month. If accepted, renewed media and public attention can be expected. These latest research findings have already been shared with Aquaculture Management and with the Canadian Food Inspection Agency (who has the role of enforcing food safety legislation) and both organizations have committed to work together on developing media lines and DFO is considering what management responses may be required.

Recreational Catch Reductions for Yelloweye Rockfish

Significant recreational fishery catch reductions are required for DFO to meet rebuilding targets for the outside stock of Yelloweye Rockfish. The measures required to achieve these catch reductions of this magnitude will likely have a broader impact on overall recreational fishing opportunity and will cause strong negative reactions from recreational fishing interests, who will contact the Minister about impacts. They will also point out the cumulative impact of any Yelloweye measures combined with potential restrictions on Chinook to support Resident Killer Whale recovery and likely reductions in halibut catch limits. In 2016, DFO drafted a rebuilding plan for the outside stock of Yelloweye Rockfish, with “stepped” implementation of catch limit reductions over three years. The 2018/19 season is the third year of stepped catch limit reductions. Commercial fishery catch limits have been successfully reduced by 81% since the inception of the rebuilding plan, however, recreational fishery management measures introduced in the past two years have had little effect in reducing recreational catch. Thus, catch must still be reduced from current levels (55 tonnes) to 14 tonnes to meet rebuilding targets. DFO will present options for achieving catch reductions at Sport Fishing Advisory Board meetings February 2-4. Consultation on the options will occur through February and March prior to decisions on recreational management measures for the 2018 fishing season in early April.

Indications and updates on social media (as of 23 JAN 2018) –

Bottom line upfront:

No indications of any planned actions directed against DFO re: fish farms in social media (as of 23 JAN 2018), at Victoria DFO or any other location.

Indications of 1 planned anti-fish farm rally in Vancouver on 30 Jan 2018 at Canada Place.

Indications that close encounters at the Marine Harvest Swanson Island aquaculture site by activists (occupiers) continues/ongoing.

Note FB= Facebook

- [REDACTED] noted yesterday (22 JAN 2018) and today that she is back at the 'MC' (appears to be acronym for 'Matriarch Camp', which is one of the names given to the anti-fish farm activist camp set up at BC Premier John Horgan's office). She posted yesterday in Facebook that she was trying to catch buses in Victoria-Langford area, which seems to indicate she is back in Victoria generally. It is likely [REDACTED] is there as well.
- The 'Matriarch Camp' has its own public FB page called "Matriarch Camp Food and Supplies" (earliest post was 20 Oct 2017). There are links on the page for supporters to donate prepared meals, camping supplies, $$ funds, etc., and they post updates such as the video taken [REDACTED] and when FO Supervisor Ludlow spoke [REDACTED] on 15 Jan 2018. The FB page also contains links to various other fish farm rally interest groups. When the 'Matriarch Camp' was moved from Premier Horgan's office to Victoria DFO it was also posted as an update to this FB page, with requests to supporters to help with the move. Also contains links to information on prior Swanson fish farm occupation and Midsummer Island occupation. It appears to be a public page meant to update supporters of Fish Farms Out Now. This may be a very good page to watch re: Victoria DFO actions planned, if any.
- Planned rally, Vancouver: There is a planned rally @ 300-999 Canada Place, Vancouver for 30 JAN 2018, 8am – 1pm, "Wild Salmon Forever Rally: NDP Revoke Phish Pharm Permits Now". 53 indicated 'Going', and 227 indicated 'Interested'. The intent listed to declare to BC Premier Horgan displeasure with the fish farm leases; the rally may be planned around a formal meeting between some First nations leaders and the BC NDP Party at the Pan Pacific hotel (unverified). There is no planned action directed at DFO in the poster. [REDACTED] posted to the event that someone from the 'Matriarch camp' will attend.

- [REDACTED] speaking at a meeting @ Namgis (Alert Bay) with indigenous people and Green Party MLA's over the weekend, 21 JAN 2018, the same timeframe that the (first) newest eviction notice issued by First Nations to a Marine Harvest farm appears to have occurred.
- [REDACTED] the Namgis First Nation, indicated in video posted to FB on 21 JAN 2018 that "what we've done today is evicted the fish farms out of the Kwakiutl territory...". [REDACTED]

- CTV BC and CTV National online news picked up the fish farm eviction story on 22 JAN 2018, it appears various First Nations members delivered eviction notices on both days (21 Jan and 22 Jan) : https://www.ctvnews.ca/canada/first-nations-leaders-hand-eviction-notice-to-b-c-fish-farm-1.3771220#_gus&_gucid=&_gup=Facebook&_gsc=ASdvd5G . CLOSE

- [REDACTED] posted video to FB 2 weeks ago (early Jan 2018) that the Swanson Island occupation continues un-interrupted, at least on land; he also shared video that as of 20 Jan 2018 the activists were marking 150 days of occupation at Swanson Island and that there is a planned anti-fish farm rally in Vancouver on 30 JAN 2018 (see above). Video on FB on 19 Jan 2018 indicates that activists are still boating right up to the Marine Harvest fish farm at the Swanson Island site (within an arm's reach of the farm).
- Sierra Club: <https://www.sierraclub.org/sierra/salmon-rebellion> interesting article published 22 JAN 2018, indicates [REDACTED] remains in occupation on Swanson Island (near Marine Harvest fish farm site). Note that Marine Harvest obtained a court order injunction in late Dec 2017 that prohibits anyone from occupying or interfering with their aquaculture farm and surrounding infrastructure at Swanson Island area.

FYI – you may want to share general sense of these events with SCA Director Laura Brown and RDG Rebecca Reid as well.

EVENT INFORMATION

Report Date and Time:

Incident Date and Time:

2018-01-18 08:00 hours

Issue:

Protesters chained closed the front doors to the DFO Victoria Field Office and restricted access.

Background:

During November and December 2017, a first nations woman had set up a camp in protest of marine fin fish farms. She was arrested and evicted by the Saanich police in December 19th, 2017.

The previous protest occurred from November 13th, 2017 to December 19th, 2017. There was a camp set up adjacent to the warehouse and rally on December 14th 2017, where approximately 75 showed up.

On January 15th, 2018 4 individuals attended the Victoria Office and began protesting in front of the main entrance to the building. They continued to demonstrate in the front of the main doors until January 18th when they were arrested by Saanich police.

Current Status:

Saanich police arrested two people and spoke with the rest of the protesters. They were asked not return for the rest of the day. All staff have left the building.

Strategic Considerations:

Restricted access to the office poses a safety risk, if staff cannot exit the building. The chain and lock were cut off, removing the risk. The access to the public and C&P general operations is limited due to ongoing protests.

Strategic Communications:	All staff should be aware that the protesters are taking video.
Detachment Supervisor Comments:	There is concern if they occupy the front doors that the general public will not have access to the office. Also, concern for non enforcement staff coming and going and that the protesters may try and gain access to the building.

- The 'Matriarch Camp' has its own public FB page called "Matriarch Camp Food and Supplies" (earliest post was 20 Oct 2017). There are links on the page for supporters to donate prepared meals, camping supplies, $$ funds, etc., and they post updates such as the video taken [REDACTED] and when FO Supervisor Ludlow spoke [REDACTED] on 15 Jan 2018. The FB page also contains links to various other fish farm rally interest groups. When the 'Matriarch Camp' was moved from Premier Horgan's office to Victoria DFO it was also posted as an update to this FB page, with requests to supporters to help with the move. Also contains links to information on prior Swanson fish farm occupation and Midsummer Island occupation. It appears to be a public page meant to update supporters of Fish Farms Out Now. This may be a very good page to watch re: Victoria DFO actions planned, if any.
- Planned rally, Vancouver: There is a planned rally @ 300-999 Canada Place, Vancouver for 30 JAN 2018, 8am – 1pm, "Wild Salmon Forever Rally: NDP Revoke Phish Pharm Permits Now". 53 indicated 'Going', and 227 indicated 'Interested'. The intent listed to declare to BC Premier Horgan displeasure with the fish farm leases;

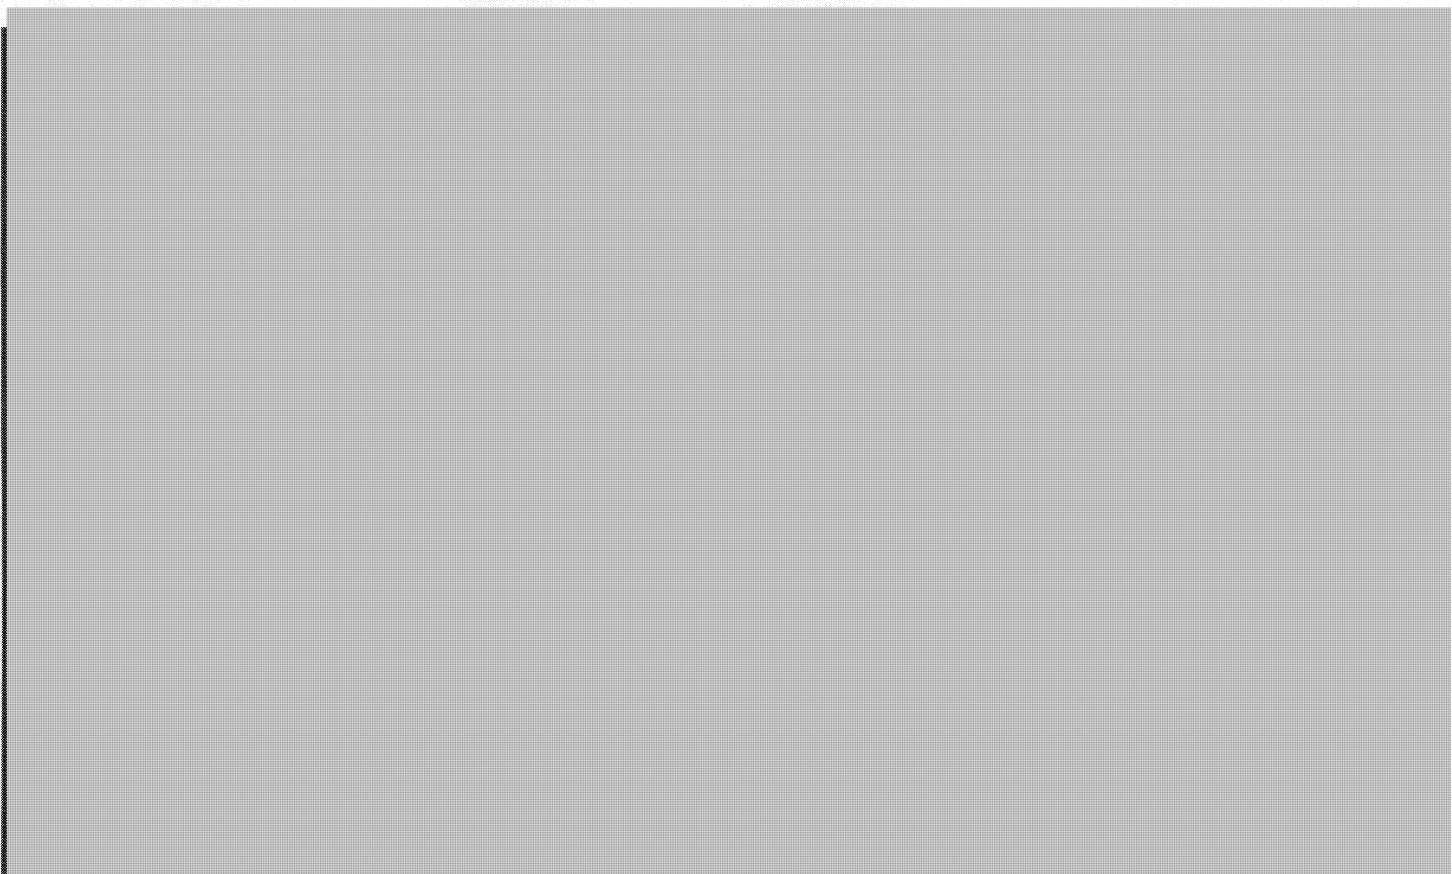

the rally may be planned around a formal meeting between some First nations leaders and the BC NDP Party at the Pan Pacific hotel (unverified). There is no planned action directed at DFO in the poster. [REDACTED] posted to the event that someone from the 'Matriarch camp' will attend.

- [REDACTED] speaking at a meeting @ Namgis (Alert Bay) with indigenous people and Green Party MLA's over the weekend, 21 JAN 2018, the same timeframe that the (first) newest eviction notice issued by First Nations to a Marine Harvest farm appears to have occurred.
- [REDACTED] the Namgis First Nation, indicated in video posted to FB on 21 JAN 2018 that "what we've done today is evicted the fish farms out of the Kwakiutl territory...". [REDACTED]

- CTV BC and CTV National online news picked up the fish farm eviction story on 22 JAN 2018, it appears various First Nations members delivered eviction notices on both days (21 Jan and 22 Jan) :

- [REDACTED] posted video to FB 2 weeks ago (early Jan 2018) that the Swanson Island occupation continues uninterrupted, at least on land; he also shared video that as of 20 Jan 2018 the activists were marking 150 days of occupation at Swanson Island and that there is a planned anti-fish farm rally in Vancouver on 30 JAN 2018 (see above). Video on FB on 19 Jan 2018 indicates that activists are still boating right up to the Marine Harvest fish farm at the Swanson Island site (within an arm's reach of the farm).
- Sierra Club: <https://www.sierraclub.org/sierra/salmon-rebellion> interesting article published 22 JAN 2018, indicates [REDACTED] remains in occupation on Swanson Island (near Marine Harvest fish farm site). Note that Marine Harvest obtained a court order injunction in late Dec 2017 that prohibits anyone from occupying or interfering with their aquaculture farm and surrounding infrastructure at Swanson Island area.

FYI – you may want to share general sense of these events with SCA Director Laura Brown and RDG Rebecca Reid as well.

Nitasha / Jo,

Please see email chain below regarding salmon aquaculture protests. RCMP had asked us to provide a short paragraph on activities to date, and I had wanted to verify whether NFIS-West has a forthcoming threat assessment on protest activity.

The material provided so far, summarised activities done to date by MSOC along with my previous work from NFIS-West. As we discussed, I have forwarded this to you both for further comment.

Also, I have CC'd Suzanne Mitchell, who is the RCMP analyst requesting the write-up.

Please let me know if you have any further concerns in regards to this file.

Best,

Sue,

Thanks for the feedback. I just noticed an awkward sentence in this paragraph:

The Sea Shepherd Conservation Society, a US-based environmental NGO, provided media and operational support to protesters in 2016 and 2017 the anti-aquaculture protest movement.

The part after "2017" should be removed so it reads "The Sea Shepherd Conservation Society, a US-based environmental NGO, provided media and operational support to protesters in 2016 and 2017."

My apologies for any inconvenience caused by this.

Best,

Sue,

As discussed please find attached the summary piece on recent protest activity.

Best,

Rowan

BLUF: Committed protestors opposed to salmon aquaculture in BC increased their mobilization in 2017, showing no sign of abating until satisfactory political resolution is achieved.

Opposition stems from concerns of First Nations sovereignty on traditional fishing grounds and that salmon aquaculture is causing irreparable damage to traditionally caught species.

The objective of these protests, which began in 2016, is to pressure Provincial and Federal governments into ending at-sea salmon farm aquaculture in BC. Protestors continue to seek media coverage through national and local news, and dedicated and well-planned social media publicity campaigns.

The Sea Shepherd Conservation Society, a US-based environmental NGO, provided media and operational support to protestors in 2016 and 2017 the anti-aquaculture protest movement.

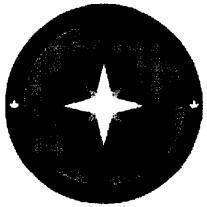

In 2017 protest actions occurred at fish farms, politicians' offices, and DFO sites. Protests were larger than observed in 2016 and are ongoing in 2018. Protests were peaceful overall, however an escalation in tactics occurred as fish farms were occupied, aquaculture operations disrupted, and some protestors positioned themselves so as to be arrested by police and draw further media attention to their cause. Further, on water protests continued in the winter in 2017 despite harsher weather at sea.

So far just following the Viking, but he Viking has gone up out of cell range and is intentionally cruising well beyond the farms as a tactic.

It sounds like [REDACTED] several persons on board.

We are transferring some fish (one load) from Humphrey Rock site to Midsummer.

Yes i have several videos of them, but only after they stopped in front of us.
It was the first they did so I didn't get the time to pick up the camera before we needed to take the manoeuvre to avoid hit them.

We have limited internet access right now, but I will forward it to you as soon as we get good internet.

Joe/Claire -

would the contact from Marine Harvest who emailed Joe Knight be alright with me trying to contact them directly as well? As Andrew pointed out, we need more details. Nothing revealed in social media and open sources so far.

Nitasha Chohan and I have had a look at the known organizers and participants in social media - no indications of this following activity or mentions of any plans found yet.

Rowan Porta @ MSOC-W just obtained a current lat/long for the Viktoria Viking, the ship being tailed:

50 deg 39' 16"

126 deg 10' 56"

Viktoria Viking position as of 10:30 hrs PST, 26 JAN 2018 18:30 Z (see attached image).

Overall - it does not sound like the approach by the 22 ft aluminum vessel was part of an organized attempt to block the supply ship Viktoria Viking or that DFO/RCMP should expect further action today/next few days. DFO NFIS IO & IA's found nothing online or in social media (FB, Twitter, Instagram) to indicate that today's actions were planned online, or any further planned actions today or this weekend. There is a high likelihood that the encounter was opportunistic, as social media indicates that individuals in small vessels are running between Alert Bay or Vancouver Island and Swanson Island routinely, perhaps on supply runs for "Swanson Occupation".

The activity today buzzing around and stopping in front of the Viktoria Viking supply ship was not advertised among the social media accounts of the main organizers of the fish farm activists, including [REDACTED] known social media accounts. As footage may have been taken by the men in the small boat, NFIS staff will continue to monitor to see if it comes up online. [REDACTED] advised Alert Bay RCMP that he was the sole occupant in the small boat.

It sounds like the small vessel with 2 male occupants departed the area of the big ship before noon today, so any threat was fairly short lived and did not involve direct contact. The occupants were said [REDACTED] to be filming Viktoria Viking. We can keep an eye out to see if the footage appears online in the next few days.

I believe [REDACTED] is a familiar name to everyone on this email, but if not, [REDACTED] who has been regularly involved in activism against fish farms, and increasingly so since 2016. His activities include occupation at multiple fish farms, occupation of Swanson Island near a Marine Harvest fish farm site

(current activity), serving eviction notices with assistance at times of the RV/Martin Sheen crew and [REDACTED] organizing activities about fish farms and posting videos and other social media online inviting others to occupy fish farm sites and attend rallies.

[REDACTED] well known to DFO C&P on the North Island. DFO C&P staff know him to very vocal and as an organizer of various First Nation activities, including recent protests, [REDACTED]

Attached are images of some planned upcoming anti-fish farm activities being advertised on Facebook, Instagram and Twitter for Jan 26, Jan 30 and Feb 16, 2018. None of these events involve aquaculture fish farm sites or DFO sites directly.

Please feel free to call me if any questions.

Kind regards,

Johanna Jenkins

Folks as some of you may, or may not know, we have been successful in putting together an intelligence team that will work with SCA to monitor and provide information with respect to protest activity associated to aquaculture fish farms. If you see or hear anything, or receive outside information please forward it on to the following two intel employees:

- Johanna Jenkins, our local Area Intelligence Officer; and
- Nitasha Chohan, an Intelligence Analyst based out of Vancouver

To cut down on email traffic, I ask that you send the information directly to these two people but cc Joe Knight, Detachment Supervisor, so that he is aware of the information and can react to it, should it be of operational importance.

Neil, Johanna has indicated that they would appreciate being copied on the news articles that you find.

Japan seeks upgraded whaling ship in sign hunts will continue

<https://www.channelnewsasia.com/news/asiapacific/japan-seeks-upgraded-whaling-ship-in-sign-hunts-will-continue-9890826>

24 Jan 2018

TOKYO: Japan is considering upgrading its ageing lead whaling ship, a fisheries official said Wednesday (Jan 24), as the prime minister vowed to continue the country's controversial Antarctic hunts despite international protests.

The Fisheries Agency has requested 100 million yen (US$910,000) in the national budget for a study into the future of commercial whaling, an agency official told AFP, including the fate of the 30-year-old Nisshin Maru, the lead vessel of Japan's whaling flotilla.

"That study will include discussions on what to do with the Nisshin Maru - if its life should be extended (by repairs), or should be replaced with a used ship or a new ship, among other ideas," Takato Maki said.

Japan is a signatory to the International Whaling Commission (IWC) moratorium on hunting, but exploits a loophole that allows whales to be killed in the name of scientific research.

Tokyo says slaughter is necessary for in-depth knowledge of whale behaviour and biology, but it makes no secret of the fact that whales killed in the hunts often end up on dinner plates.

On Wednesday, Prime Minister Shinzo Abe confirmed his government's commitment to an eventual resumption of commercial whaling.

"We will pursue all possibilities in order to resume commercial whaling, including opportunities at the September meeting of the IWC," he told parliament, when asked to comment on the nation's policy.

He said he favoured a continuation of Japan's traditional use of whale meat, fat, and baleen "in a sustainable manner based on scientific evidence, just like other marine resources."

In 2014, the UN International Court of Justice ordered Tokyo to end its regular hunt in Antarctic waters, saying the project did not meet conventional scientific standards.

This document is UNCLASSIFIED//FOUO and is the property of the Great Lakes Marine Security Operations Centre (GL-MSOC). GL-MSOC provides this document to your office, agency or department in strict confidence. Inquiries may be directed to the lead analyst listed at the end of this document.

Japan cancelled its 2014-15 hunt, only to resume it the following season under a new programme that it said now had genuine scientific value.

In December, the European Union and 12 other nations condemned Japan's Antarctic whaling programme.

Tokyo says it is trying to prove the whale population is large enough to sustain a return to commercial hunting for a traditional source of food.

In the latest mission, five Japanese vessels including the Nisshin Maru left port in November for the four-month expedition, expecting to kill 333 minke whales.

Japanese whalers have in the past clashed at sea with animal rights campaigners, particularly the Sea Shepherd activist group.

Japan's mass-circulation Yomiuri daily said last week the fisheries agency was planning to buy a new ship or refit one in part to help its whalers evade anti-whaling activists at sea.

Potential for Anti-aquaculture protest at Prime Minister's town hall meeting

DFO is aware of postings in social media indicating that there is a planned anti-aquaculture protest at the Prime Minister's town hall meeting in Nanaimo on Feb 2, 2018. The information has been relayed to the RCMP as well as the Minister's office. DFO has provided background briefing material on aquaculture as part of the PMO's preparations for the town hall meeting.

Broughton updates:

- Although occupiers remain at Swanson and Midsummer protest sites, provisions of the injunction are being respected (i.e. no trespass on tenures)
- On Jan 26th, the Victoria Viking was transporting fish for Marine Harvest Canada from the Humphrey Rocks site to Midsummer Island site. A protest boat entered the Victoria Viking's navigational route, requiring the Viking to change its course to avoid a potential collision.
- The RCMP are investigating and have spoken to the offending boat's captain..

Good morning all, sending the following information on behalf of Rebecca Reid. Apologies for the delay in providing this update, however, we only became aware of this late on January 26th.

Canada / US Halibut Negotiations and reductions in catch

Canada and the US have not reached agreement on halibut catch limits this year. While there was agreement about the need to reduce catch limits coast wide, with both parties agreeing to a goal of a coast wide catch limit of under 36 M lbs, the coast wide catch limit will be 37.2 M lbs. The default protocol under IPHC process is for all areas to revert back to last year's agreed upon catch limits. However, Canada has indicated its intent to implement a more restrictive catch limit than last year through its own domestic process (we have stated we will implement 7.1 M lbs catch limit rather than the 8.32 M lbs last year) in order to respect conservation requirements. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED] Indigenous, Commercial and Recreational interests will be aware of these reductions through their attendance at the IHPC meetings.

Potential for Anti-aquaculture protest at Prime Minister's town hall meeting

DFO was alerted Friday to postings in social media indicating that there is a planned anti-aquaculture protest at the Prime Minister's town hall meeting in Nanaimo on Feb 2, 2018. The information has been relayed to the RCMP as well as the Minister's office and DFO had previously provided background briefing material on aquaculture as part of the PMO's preparations for the town hall meeting.

Thank you for sending this. I haven't had a chance to view their social media this weekend.

My thoughts are that it doesn't look like it will be dying down but it does seem that they are seeking support from others and will continue to protest as they see fit. I don't believe there is any safety harm or risk to our offices etc as their focus continues to be the fish farms. However, I would not be surprised if they did decide to show up at any of our DFO offices, including RHQ, to peacefully protest, especially at the event that will be taking place in Vancouver [REDACTED]

Keep up the good work – you are such great at what you do!

- [REDACTED] FB: shared the following New Event on her profile: "Stand up for Salmon at Justin Trudeau's Town-hall" <https://www.facebook.com/events/367450533726704/>. Event is dated for 02 Feb, 2018 in Nanaimo, BC.

- News media has been reporting for several days that Prime Minister Trudeau's only Town Hall stop will be in Nanaimo, BC on 02 FEB 2018.
- The factual time and location of this Townhall event is not publicly known yet, news media has reported those details will only be posted closer to the event this Friday.

Hi Folks

Meeting yesterday with Prov/FN on lease renewal of Aquaculture sites in Broughton. FN Spokesman Chamberlain adamant that this dispute is between BC (FLINRO, MIRR, Agriculture & MOE) and the 6 FN groups demanding adherence to the consent and consult promises in the UN Declaration and earlier comments by BC. DFO Regional Director was present but not included in discussions.

Attempts by BC to draw DFO into the discussion were thwarted by FN who were adamant DFO not the focus at present. Unknown what "consent" in this vernacular means moving forward as BC did NOT agree to non-renewal of leases at the meeting. Also unknown what reaction this has [REDACTED] and their protests stream.

Noted there were a small group of "Save the Wild Salmon" Protester at Pan Pacific in Vancouver yesterday while the meeting was underway.

Subject: 2018-01-30 - Potential for Protest - RHQ

Importance: High

Hi DJ,

Please note that there is a planned rally taking place at Canada Place today against fish farms. At this time, there is no indication on social media that it is their intention to rally at DFO. However, due to the close proximity to RHQ, there may be potential for those individuals to show up and protest against DFO as well. In recent weeks, two protestors visited the Victoria office and chained the front door shut.

They are typically peaceful protestors but do like to invite the media to these events.

Thanks,

Nitasha Chohan

Hi all,

As per discussions with you all, we've agreed to try and have a brief (10 min if possible) weekly update call re: aquaculture salmon farm protest activities and new information.

I'm proposing we have these call on Thursdays, either around 10:00 hrs or 15:00 hours.

Any different preferences on that? (please cc the whole group if so)

Note that generally, Monday and Tuesdays are hectic with meetings and catch-up after the weekends. Fridays are often travel days. So if you need to propose a different day/ time, please try to keep it between Wed-Thurs.

Thanks all -

Once we have an agreed time, we will get a conference call join in instruction sent out to everyone.

And welcome Sgt. Colin Cook (Alert Bay RCMP), very glad to have you on board!

Who wants to go...carpoolers and drivers wanted!
If you can make it to Nanaimo on Feb 2nd, please show up and ask the hard questions, and demand answers! On all fronts: fish farms spewing diseased fish into wild Pacific salmon migration routes, bullying First Nations whose territory they do not have permission to operate on; pipelines, threats to our coast from tankers, spills, etc. and much more! This is an opportunity to show solidarity and make voices heard!

I will try to be at that for sure. Have to be low key or you won't get past the " screening" but it's the perfect public forum to speak the Truth and see if he will truly Honour the promises. We are honestly running out of time,they are proposing some drastic closures,both Sportfishing and Commercial that will have such a Dramatic impact on the culture and economy that without Real public consultation they could have a Revolt similar to Newfoundlands on their Hands! We live in Interesting times for sure,just hope we can still have an impact . Lots of competing forces out there for sound bites.

February 1, 2018

AQUACULTURE

- We understand the very real concerns of Canadians around aquaculture.
- Canadians rightly expect that aquaculture practices and technology should minimize impacts on wild fish and the environment.
- We will continue to work to ensure that Canada's aquaculture industry is a global leader in producing high-quality aquaculture products in an environmentally sustainable manner.
- Aquaculture is a billion dollar industry in Canada, generating over $2 billion in total economic activity and providing thousands of well-paying jobs to Canadians in our coastal and rural communities.
- Aquaculture provides well-paying, year-round jobs to thousands of Canadians, including more than 50 First Nations, many of whom live in remote, rural or coastal communities.

If pressed on an aquaculture act:

- In June 2017, federal, provincial and territorial ministers responsible for aquaculture agreed to explore a small, federal aquaculture act that would:
 - safeguard the environment;
 - be more permissive than restrictive;
 - not infringe current provincial/territorial statutes and frameworks;
 - consider possible delegation of regulatory instruments; and,
 - respect Indigenous People of Canada and rights holders.
- Indigenous Peoples and key stakeholders are being engaged on aquaculture themes as we explore options.

If pressed on Aquaculture 2030 Vision:

- Alongside our federal-provincial-territorial partners and Indigenous governments, my department is exploring the development of a long-term framework for sustainable aquaculture in Canada, which would build on existing and ongoing initiatives.
- This new vision will further support an aquaculture sector that is well-regulated through effective science-based measures.
- We have already invested close to 200 million dollars in fisheries and aquaculture science and will keep evaluating the scientific evidence to adapt regulations as needed.
- We will foster partnerships that will help us better co-manage our precious ocean resources.
- We will fund new technologies and infrastructure that will help improve the quality, sustainability, and marketability of our fish and seafood.
- We will put into the public domain data that DFO collects through routine reporting and audits.

If pressed on Grieg NL aquaculture:

- After a thorough scientific review, Fisheries and Oceans Canada has approved a proposal by Grieg Newfoundland Salmon Ltd to import triploid European-origin salmon eggs for aquaculture in Newfoundland and Labrador.
- Scientists from DFO and other agencies conducted a thorough peer-review of available data on sterile, triploid fish and determined that risks to the conservation of wild salmon are low.
- No import of eggs will occur until all requisite federal and provincial review processes and authorizations for this project are completed.
- The role of DFO, under the Fisheries Act, is to ensure that aquaculture is sustainably managed across the country. However, approval of the Grieg project lies with the Province of Newfoundland and Labrador.

- The Newfoundland and Labrador Supreme Court recently decided Grieg's aquaculture proposal must undergo a more thorough provincial environment assessment process; this process is underway.

If pressed on Indigenous opposition to fish farms protests

- Our government respects the right of people to voice their concerns in a reasonable manner.
- While British Columbians share differing views on aquaculture, I urge everyone to engage in respectful dialogue when sharing their concerns.
- British Columbians have expressed their concerns about declining wild Pacific salmon stocks. Our government is committed to protecting wild salmon and has invested significant resources towards this effort.
- In particular, we recognize that British Columbia's Coastal First Nations have a historic, meaningful relationship with wild Pacific salmon that is deeply intertwined with Indigenous culture, art, and their traditional way of life.
- Our government is working on a renewed nation-to-nation relationship with Indigenous Peoples, based on recognition, rights, respect, co-operation, and partnership. I look forward to continued dialogue on this and other important issues.
- ~~A court injunction has peacefully ended the fish farm occupation but I look forward to continued dialogue on this and other important issues.~~

If pressed on disease transfer / Morton lawsuit

- Fisheries and Oceans Canada will continue to work in collaboration with the Canadian Food Inspection Agency to deliver the National Aquatic Animal Health Program.
- DFO also has strict regulations and licence conditions in place to ensure the continued health of wild and farmed fish.
- DFO conducts over 100 fish health / sea lice audits each year and conducts regular inspections for farm compliance with conditions of licence.

- Further studies on the interaction of wild and farmed fish, as recommended by the Cohen Commission, are on-going.
- Regarding the Morton case, as it is currently before the courts, it would not be appropriate for me to comment further at this time.

If pressed on PRV and HSMI

- Piscine Orthoreovirus has been found from Washington State to Alaska, including regions where there are no salmon farms. The virus has been associated with Heart and Skeletal Muscle Inflammation.
- PRV has also been detected in Atlantic salmon at BC aquaculture farms, but its presence has not resulted in elevated mortalities.
- DFO Science has reviewed the potential impacts of PRV on the west coast of North America and concluded that there is a low likelihood that PRV has a significant impact on wild Pacific salmon populations. We will regularly review these conclusions as additional research becomes available.
- Neither the World Organisation for Animal Health, the CFIA nor the Province of BC list PRV as a disease of concern in their respective animal health regulations.
- DFO scientists are actively investigating questions related to PRV and HSMI, including under the Strategic Salmon Health Initiative, where DFO scientists are collaborating with the Pacific Salmon Foundation and Genome BC to better understand a range of pathogens present in wild and farmed BC salmon.

If pressed on fish processing effluent

- Environment and Climate Change Canada and the Province of BC are responsible for regulating fish processing plant effluent from an environmental protection perspective.
- The CFIA may also require controls on effluent discharge to manage the risk of a disease outbreak if infected aquatic animals are to be processed.

- Fisheries and Oceans Canada is providing support to its federal partners and BC's Ministry of Environment and Climate Change Strategy in the investigation of this matter.
- DFO's licensing conditions for marine finfish aquaculture outline strict requirements for aquaculture operators to collect, retain, and dispose of any tissues or fluids that are generated when harvesting farmed fish.

If pressed on the Cooke Aquaculture incident

- Although the incident at Cooke Aquaculture is subject to U.S. laws and regulations, the federal government takes this incident very seriously given its proximity to Canadian waters.
- Fisheries and Oceans Canada is committed to the protection of our aquatic ecosystems and the sustainable management of all our aquatic resources.
- The Department is in touch with its U.S. counterparts at the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) as well as the Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife and will continue to monitor this incident with our partners.
- DFO's Atlantic Salmon Watch Program (ASWP) has been monitoring BC waters for escaped Atlantic salmon since 1991.
- As an additional monitoring step, DFO is conducting stream surveys in the areas potentially affected by this event.
- Research has shown that there is a low likelihood of these Atlantic salmon establishing themselves in Pacific waters and that Atlantic salmon cannot successfully hybridize (reproduce) with Pacific salmon.
- Anyone who believes they have caught an Atlantic salmon in B.C. waters should keep the fish and report the capture by calling the ASWP toll-free reporting line at 1-800-811-6010. This line is closely monitored.

- Nous comprenons les préoccupations profondes des habitants des Canadiens en ce qui concerne l'aquaculture.
 - Les Canadiens s'attendent, à juste titre, à ce que les pratiques et la technologie en matière d'aquaculture réduisent au minimum les répercussions sur le poisson sauvage et l'environnement.
 - Nous continuerons à accomplir le travail nécessaire pour veiller à ce que l'industrie aquacole du Canada fasse partie des chefs de file mondiaux pour ce qui est de la production de produits de haute qualité, d'une manière durable du point de vue environnemental.
 - L'aquaculture est une industrie qui représente des milliards de dollars au Canada; elle est une activité économique de plus de 2 milliards de dollars et elle offre des milliers d'emplois bien payés aux Canadiens des collectivités côtières et rurales.
 - L'aquaculture fournit des emplois bien payés et à l'année à des milliers de Canadiens, en particulier aux membres de plus de 50 Premières Nations, qui vivent en majorité dans des collectivités côtières, éloignées ou rurales.

En cas de questions sur une loi sur l'aquaculture :

- En juin 2017, les ministres fédéral, provinciaux et territoriaux responsables de l'aquaculture ont accepté d'étudier la question d'une petite loi fédérale sur l'aquaculture qui :
 - protégerait l'environnement;
 - serait plus permissive que restrictive;
 - n'empiéterait pas sur les lois et les cadres provinciaux/territoriaux actuels;
 - tiendrait compte d'une éventuelle délégation des instruments réglementaires;
 - respecterait les peuples autochtones du Canada et les détenteurs de droits.
- Les peuples autochtones et les principaux intervenants participent au dialogue sur des thèmes liés à l'aquaculture parallèlement à notre analyse des options.

En cas de questions sur la Vision de l'aquaculture 2030 :

- De concert avec nos partenaires fédéraux, provinciaux et territoriaux et les gouvernements autochtones, mon ministère envisage l'élaboration d'un cadre à long terme pour une aquaculture durable au Canada, qui tirerait profit des initiatives existantes et en cours.
- Cette nouvelle vision soutiendra davantage un secteur aquacole bien réglementé au moyen de mesures scientifiques efficaces.
- Nous avons déjà investi près de 200 millions de dollars dans la science de la pêche et de l'aquaculture et continuerons à évaluer les données scientifiques probantes en vue d'adapter les règlements, s'il y a lieu.
- Nous encouragerons la formation de partenariats pour nous aider à mieux cogérer nos précieuses ressources océaniques.
- Nous financerons de nouvelles technologies et infrastructures qui contribueront à améliorer la qualité, la durabilité et la commercialisation de nos poissons et fruits de mer.
- Nous mettrons dans le domaine public les données que le MPO recueille au moyen de rapports et de vérifications de routine.

En cas de questions sur la proposition d'aquaculture de Grieg à T.-N.-L.

- Après un examen scientifique approfondi, Pêches et Océans Canada a approuvé une proposition par Grieg Newfoundland Salmon Ltd visant à importer des œufs de saumons triploïdes de souche européenne destinés à l'aquaculture à Terre-Neuve et du Labrador.
- Des scientifiques du MPO et d'autres organismes ont mené un examen approfondi, revu par les pairs des données disponibles sur les poissons triploïdes stériles et ont déterminé que les risques pour la conservation du saumon sauvage sont faibles.
- Aucune importation d'œufs ne se produira tant que tous les processus d'examen et les autorisations fédéraux et provinciaux requis pour ce projet ne seront pas terminés.

- Le rôle du MPO, en vertu de la Loi sur les pêches, est de veiller à ce que l'aquaculture soit gérée de façon durable dans l'ensemble du pays. Toutefois, l'approbation du projet de Grieg revient à la province de Terre-Neuve-et-Labrador.
- La Cour suprême provinciale de Terre-Neuve-et-Labrador a récemment décidé que la proposition d'aquaculture de Grieg devait faire l'objet d'un processus provincial d'évaluation environnementale plus approfondi; Ce processus est en cours.

En cas de questions sur l'opposition des Autochtones aux exploitations aquacoles

- Notre gouvernement respecte le droit des personnes à faire valoir leurs préoccupations de manière raisonnable.
- Les Premières Nations de la côte de la Colombie-Britannique entretiennent une relation historique et significative avec le saumon sauvage du Pacifique qui est profondément enraciné dans la culture, les arts et le mode de vie traditionnel des Autochtones.
- Notre gouvernement travaille à renouveler sa relation de nation à nation avec les peuples autochtones pour qu'elle soit fondée sur la reconnaissance, les droits, le respect, la collaboration et le partenariat.
- Mes collègues de la Colombie-Britannique ont exprimé leurs préoccupations face à la baisse des stocks de saumon du Pacifique.
- Une injonction de la cour a mis fin de manière pacifique à l'occupation des exploitations aquacoles, mais j'espère que le dialogue se poursuivra sur ce sujet et d'autres questions importantes.

En cas de questions sur la transmission de maladies et le procès Morton

- Le MPO poursuivra sa collaboration avec l'Agence canadienne d'inspection des aliments pour exécuter le Programme national sur la santé des animaux aquatiques.
- Pêches et Océans Canada dispose d'une réglementation stricte et a mis en place des conditions rigoureuses en matière de permis pour maintenir la santé du poisson, sauvage et d'élevage, et traiter les cas de maladie quelconque dans les exploitations, dès qu'ils surgissent.

- Les fermes salmonicoles doivent suivre un plan approuvé de gestion en matière de santé du poisson, assurer une surveillance et faire rapport sur une base régulière, conformément à leur permis.
- Le Ministère mène chaque année une centaine de vérifications sur la santé et le pou du poisson, ainsi que des inspections régulières de la conformité des exploitations aux conditions des permis.
- Conformément aux recommandations de la Commission Cohen, d'autres études sur l'interaction entre les poissons sauvages et d'élevage sont en cours.
- En ce qui concerne l'affaire Morton, comme le dossier est actuellement devant les tribunaux, il serait inapproprié pour moi de la commenter davantage.

En cas de questions sur le réovirus pisciaire et l'inflammation des muscles squelettiques et cardiaques

- Le réovirus pisciaire a été découvert de l'État de Washington à l'Alaska, y compris dans les régions où il n'y a pas d'exploitations salmonicoles. Il a été associé à l'inflammation des muscles squelettiques et cardiaques.
- Le réovirus pisciaire a également été détecté dans le saumon de l'Atlantique dans les exploitations de la Colombie-Britannique, mais sa présence n'a pas donné lieu à des taux élevés de mortalité.
- Le Secteur des sciences du Ministère a examiné les effets possibles du réovirus pisciaire sur la côte ouest de l'Amérique du Nord et conclu qu'il est peu probable que le réovirus en question ait d'importants effets sur les populations de saumon du Pacifique. Nous réviserons régulièrement ces conclusions au fur et à mesure que d'autres recherches seront disponibles.
- Ni l'Organisation mondiale de la santé animale, ni l'Agence canadienne d'inspection des aliments, ni la province de la Colombie-Britannique n'inscrivent le réovirus pisciaire dans leur liste des maladies préoccupantes dans leur règlement respectif sur la santé des animaux.

- Les scientifiques du MPO enquêtent activement les questions liées à la réovirus pisciaire et à l'inflammation des muscles squelettiques et cardiaques , notamment dans le cadre de l'initiative stratégique visant la santé du saumon dans lequel les scientifiques du Ministère travaillent en collaboration avec la Fondation du saumon du Pacifique et Genome BC afin de mieux comprendre une gamme des pathogènes présents dans les saumons sauvages et d'élevage en Colombie-Britannique.

En cas de questions sur les effluents provenant d'usines de transformation du poisson

- Environnement et Changement climatique Canada et la province de la Colombie-Britannique sont responsables de la réglementation des effluents provenant des usines de transformation du poisson du point de vue de la protection de l'environnement.
- L'ACIA peut également exiger des mesures de contrôle des rejets d'effluents pour gérer le risque de propagation de maladie au cours d'une épidémie si des animaux aquatiques infectés sont transformés.
- Pêches et Océans Canada fournit un soutien à ses partenaires fédéraux et à la Stratégie du ministère de l'Environnement et du Changement climatique de la Colombie-Britannique dans le cadre de l'enquête sur cette affaire.
- Les conditions de permis du MPO relatives à la pisciculture marine énoncent les exigences strictes que doivent respecter les exploitants aquacoles lorsqu'ils recueillent, conservent et éliminent les tissus ou les fluides qui sont générés lors de la récolte du poisson d'élevage.

En cas de questions sur l'incident chez Cooke Aquaculture

- Bien que l'incident chez Cooke Aquaculture soit assujetti aux lois et aux règlements des États-Unis, le gouvernement fédéral prend cette situation très au sérieux, étant donné sa proximité avec les eaux canadiennes.

- Pêches et Océans Canada s'est engagé à assurer la protection de nos écosystèmes aquatiques et la gestion durable de nos ressources aquatiques.
- Le Ministère communique avec ses homologues américains de la National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA), ainsi que du Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife, et continuera de surveiller cet incident avec nos partenaires.
- Pêches et Océans Canada, dans le cadre de son Programme de surveillance du saumon atlantique (PSSA), surveille les eaux de la Colombie-Britannique pour y repérer les saumons de l'Atlantique échappés depuis 1991.
- À titre de mesure de surveillance supplémentaire, le Ministère effectue des relevés dans les cours d'eau des zones susceptibles d'être touchées par l'événement.
- Des recherches ont montré qu'il est peu probable que ces saumons de l'Atlantique s'établissent dans les eaux du Pacifique. Elles ont également démontré que le saumon atlantique ne peut se reproduire avec succès avec le saumon du Pacifique.
- Toute personne qui pense avoir pêché un saumon de l'Atlantique dans les eaux de la Colombie-Britannique doit conserver ce poisson et en faire le signalement en composant le numéro sans frais du PSSA suivant : 1-800-811-6010. Cette ligne est étroitement surveillée.

Background:

General and Economic

- In 2010, DFO assumed regulatory control for BC aquaculture management because of a BC Supreme Court decision. Authority is enacted via the Pacific Aquaculture Regulations.
- Marine finfish aquaculture continues to be perceived by some as being dangerous to wild populations—particularly wild salmon, resulting in resistance to industry expansion, particularly Atlantic salmon production.
- DFO continues to employ licence conditions and corresponding compliance measures, and maintains the ability to change licence conditions at any time for the conservation and protection of fish.
- In British Columbia, some stakeholders have turned their focus to the prospects of land-based, closed containment aquaculture facilities.
- While the potential for closed containment aquaculture exists, challenges—including high start-up costs, scalability, and reproducibility—remain. Closed containment systems are biologically and technologically complex, and are currently limited to use for the commercial production of salmon juveniles prior to transfer into net pens for final grow-out. No commercial-scale facilities exist that are comparable to net pen production of market-sized adult salmon.
- Globally, aquaculture production is increasing, while capture fisheries performance has flattened. Human consumption of farmed fish exceeded that of wild fish in 2014.
- Salmon, particularly farmed Atlantic salmon has become the largest single trade commodity (by value) within the global seafood sector, surpassing shrimp.
- Currently, aquaculture represents approximately a third of Canada's total seafood value and 20% of total production. Finfish (primarily salmon) continues to account for the majority of production with about 80% of total volume and about 93% of total value.
- Canada is the fourth largest salmon producing country (after Norway, Chile, and Scotland). The production is equally shared by British Columbia and the Atlantic Provinces.
- More than 60% of aquaculture production is exported; nearly all of the exports are destined to the United States.
- The total value of aquaculture exports in 2016 was over $1.0B Salmon products accounts for 95% of the exports. Atlantic salmon ranks 3rd in Canada's fish and seafood exports by value, after lobster and snow crab.
- Most of the people working in aquaculture are younger than 40. Indigenous Canadians currently participate in almost 6% of all Canadian aquaculture, mostly in British Columbia, but also in Central and Atlantic Canada.

Aquaculture Legislative Reform

- Purpose-built legislation for aquaculture has been discussed and recommended by governments and stakeholders for more than 30 years.
- Six federal departments play a role in regulating the aquaculture sector.
- The aquaculture sector is regulated at the federal level mainly by the Fisheries Act, which is designed for capture fisheries.
- In June 2016, the Standing Senate Committee on Fisheries and Oceans (SCOFO) tabled a report entitled An Ocean of Opportunities: Aquaculture in Canada which looked at the aquaculture legislative and regulatory frameworks in Canada, Scotland and Norway. The report concluded that “it is imperative that new federal aquaculture legislation be enacted.”
- The federal Government Response to the Senate Committee’s report, committed to exploring “how federal, provincial and territorial responsibilities could be clarified through new legislation”.
- In June 2016, the Government of Canada committed to exploring options for a Canadian legislative reform, including the development of an Aquaculture Act.
- At the June 2017 meeting of Canadian Council of Fisheries and Aquaculture Ministers (CCFAM), Ministers agreed to ask federal and provincial officials to accelerate the work under the CCFAM Aquaculture Development Strategy (ADS). Further, Ministers agreed to have Fisheries and Oceans Canada (DFO) explore the feasibility of developing federal aquaculture legislation that would address barriers to industry growth, safeguard the environment, as well as be compatible with existing provincial/territorial regimes.
- The Departmental Plan 2017-18 also committed to have consultations on the development of a federal Aquaculture Act aimed at providing economic sustainability to the industry while ensuring environmental protection and the creation of new jobs.

Aquaculture Vision 2030

- In response to recent, high profile events regarding aquaculture issues, the Department has recently started developing an initial framework for a long-term vision to support sustainable aquaculture in Canada; the Aquaculture 2030 Vision. On November 22, 2017, you announced the Department's early thinking around this preliminary framework at the Canadian Aquaculture Industry Alliance (CAIA), Annual General Meeting.
- The draft Aquaculture 2030 Vision encompasses an evolving set of actions with the goal of achieving an aquaculture sector that is well regulated through effective science-based measures, and in collaboration with FPT and Indigenous governments. Increasing sustainable aquaculture production is essential as significant demand at home and abroad for high quality seafood products is expected to increase. This Vision builds on ongoing work by DFO, but also considers new activities, under four key streams:
 - Collaboration and Governance
 - Innovation for Sustainable Growth
 - Healthy Fish and Ecosystems
 - Transparency and Accountability
- The Vision document is positioned for further discussion with PT partners as the next generation of the ADS. Many of the proposed activities in the Vision will require the support of partners in other federal government departments and provinces/territories, as well as Indigenous Peoples, industry and other stakeholders to ultimately achieve the overarching goals.

Grieg NL Aquaculture

- Grieg NL Nurseries Ltd. and Grieg NL Seafarms Ltd. have proposed a five-year, $251 million aquaculture investment to annually produce up to 33,000 tonnes of sterile European-origin Atlantic salmon in Placentia Bay. The project consists of hatchery construction, establishment of eleven marine farm sites, phased increases in production, and a new processing plant creating 325 direct jobs.s.21(1)(a)
s.21(1)(b)
- The project has a number of regional partners including Oceans Choice International, one of the largest quota holders in the country, as well as the Government of NL, who formally committed to a $30 million equity investment subject to a memorandum of understanding and provincial cabinet approval.
- Grieg NL submitted requests to DFO and the Canadian Food Inspection Agency (CFIA) to import up to 8,000,000 mixed-sex triploid salmon eggs per year from Iceland. The CFIA assessed disease risks, considered pathogen risks to be appropriately mitigated by the Icelandic authorities, and approved importation.
- The federal-provincial Introductions and Transfers Committee assessed genetic and ecological risks of triploid European-origin Atlantic salmon and concluded that the genetic risk from interbreeding between triploid salmon farm escapes and wild salmon is lower than the genetic risk from interbreeding between the fertile Saint John-origin salmon and wild salmon, already authorized for use in aquaculture in NL.
- The Province of Newfoundland initially released Grieg's proposal from further review under the provincial environment assessment process, albeit with conditions. However, on July 20, 2017 the Provincial Supreme Court overturned this decision and is requiring the project undergo an Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) under the NL Environmental Protection Act (EPA).
- [REDACTED]
- The Province initiated the EIS process on November 9, 2017, with a 120-day requirement to provide EIS Guidelines to the proponent by March 8, 2018, at which point, the timeline will be dependent on the proponent to provide the requested information. DFO is a participant on the EIS Committee.
- Grieg NL and the Province jointly appealed the Provincial Supreme Court decision on December 14/15, 2017, though a decision has not yet been made.
- [REDACTED]
- The Atlantic Salmon Federation (ASF) and the Salmonid Council of Newfoundland and Labrador (an umbrella group of salmon angling interests) oppose any marine net pen expansion. It is very unlikely that there is any scenario in which these single-interest groups would support this project.
- Pending the provincial approvals, this project will require full cooperation amongst all players, and will respect of all federal legislation and regulations, such as the Aquaculture Activities Regulations.

Indigenous Opposition to Fish Farms Protests

- There are 23 salmon farms currently operating in the Broughton Archipelago. Of those sites, 20 are located in the claimed traditional territories of First Nations which do not support marine finfish aquaculture (salmon farming).
- Since August 2017, activists (including some First Nations) have conducted protest activities at a number of salmon farms in the Broughton Archipelago operated by Cermaq and Marine Harvest Canada. Demonstrations were also held outside of DFO offices, BC courts and offices of local politicians.
- Protests and site occupations were initially peaceful and caused only minor delays to farm operations. Activities were stepped up in December, when groups entered pens on several sites with divers and kayaks. Several fish were allegedly removed to conduct disease testing.
- On December 22, 2017, injunctions were granted by the BC Supreme Court to Cermaq and Marine Harvest.
- The rulings include an enforcement clause which provides the RCMP with authority to arrest and remove protestors from sites if the injunction is violated.
- Opposition to fish farms continues and a series of protests have been organized the last week of January and early February, including the Prime Minister's planned Town Hall in Nanaimo on February 2, 2018.
- Some NGOs and local First Nations have indicated they will continue with protest activities until salmon farms are removed from their claimed territory. s.21(1)(a)
s.21(1)(b)

Disease transfer / Morton lawsuit

- The Canadian Food Inspection Agency (CFIA) is now the federal lead managing aquatic disease risks under the Health of Animals Act, and has fully implemented the National Aquatic Animal Health Program (NAAHP) in December 2015. The goal of the NAAHP is to prevent the introduction and spread of diseases within Canada. The provinces and industry support the risk-based approach adopted by the NAAHP.
- With the NAAHP fully implemented, DFO is pursuing amendments to section 56 of the Fishery (General) Regulations to eliminate overlap in fish disease management responsibilities with the NAAHP. DFO will continue to support the NAAHP by providing diagnostic testing, research, and science advice.
- On October 12, 2016, Ms. Alexandra Morton filed a third judicial review in the Federal Court pertaining to Piscine Orthoreovirus (PRV). Ms. Morton alleges that PRV can cause the disease Heart and Skeletal Muscle Inflammation (HSMI), which may potentially impact wild Pacific salmon.
- Her first judicial review alleged that our Minister improperly delegated the authority to issue transfer licences to the industry. The court deemed two conditions relating to transfers of marine finfish as having no force and effect. DFO no longer authorizes marine finfish movements under conditions of licence and now requires all movements to obtain an introduction and transfer licence. Ms. Morton discontinued her second judicial review in February 2017.
- Ms. Morton's new application seeks the court to declare that DFO's policy of not testing for PRV and HSMI when issuing licences to transfer live fish to fish rearing facilities in the Pacific Region is unlawful. In addition, Ms. Morton seeks the court to declare that the Minister lacks the jurisdiction to licence the transfer of fish carrying diseases or disease agents that may be harmful to the conservation and protection of fish.
- It is expected that the case will be heard in January 2018.
- [REDACTED]

PRV/HSMI

- Piscine Orthoreovirus (PRV) has been detected in samples of wild fish that were collected decades ago, and it may have been present in Pacific waters prior to expansion of the Atlantic salmon aquaculture industry in BC. PRV also has a known distribution from (at least) coastal Alaska to Washington State.
- PRV is not listed as a reportable infectious agent by the World Organisation for Animal Health (OIE) or the CFIA. Neither the CFIA nor DFO regulate movements of fish based on the presence of PRV.
- DFO Science reviewed the potential impacts of PRV on the west coast of North America and concluded that there is a low likelihood that PRV has a significant impact on wild Pacific salmon populations. DFO Science continues to assess the link between PRV and Heart and Skeletal Muscle Inflammation (HSMI) and the risks of PRV to wild fish.

- The CFIA is the lead federal authority for aquatic animal health in Canada. Via the National Aquatic Animal Health Program (NAAHP), and under various authorities of the Health of Animals Act and regulations, the CFIA is best equipped to quickly and effectively address aquatic disease issues, including fish processing wastewater.
- DFO is an integral partner in the NAAHP, providing the CFIA with diagnostic testing services, research support, and scientific advice. In the case of emerging diseases, DFO scientists and veterinarians work with CFIA officials to assess any fish health risks.

Fish Processing Facility Effluent

- In September 2017, a wild salmon advocacy group circulated video footage of blood and other effluent coming from the Brown's Bay Packing Company fish processing plant in BC. According to group representatives, the effluent had been tested and revealed the presence of PRV. This advocacy group also contributed to the recent W5 program on BC fish farms.
- The videographer of the first video also performed a subsequent dive under a plant in Tofino that processes farmed salmon and took samples of effluent. According to his testing, approximately half of the rockfish in the area that feed on the waste from the effluent pipe were positive for PRV.
- [REDACTED]
- On November 9, 2017, a letter was sent on the Minister's behalf to Minister Heyman, with a copy to the Honourable Lana Popham, BC Minister of Agriculture, and the Honourable Catherine McKenna, Minister of ECCC, outlining the interests of DFO and ECCC in protecting wild fish and preventing pollution. The letter concluded with a recommendation for DFO, ECCC, and the Province of BC to undertake a review of policies respecting discharge from fish processing plants and to take any additional steps that may be required to ensure potential risks are identified and addressed. s.14
- Since then, both the provincial Ministry of Environment and ECCC have initiated investigations based on their respective areas of regulatory responsibility. s.21(1)(a)
- In response to a request by provincial officials, DFO Science collected samples during the first week of December to test samples for the presence of pathogens, including PRV. All samples tested positive for PRV. A Rapid Science Response has been completed and provided to the Province of BC. In November, the Province of BC began reviewing the current discharge permit for the Brown's Bay plant and referred a draft of an updated permit to DFO (Aquaculture Management Division, Pacific Region) for comment/input. No comments have been provided to date. s.21(1)(b)
- On December 20, 2017, the Province of BC announced a broader review of the regulations and discharge permitting process related to fish plants and the use of pesticides to treat sea lice.
- Under the existing legislative and regulatory environment, management of effluent from processing plants is a shared responsibility, involving ECCC, the Canadian Food Inspection Agency (CFIA), and the Province of British Columbia.
- Specifically, fish processing facility effluent is managed by the Province through permits issued under the authority of the Environmental Management Act by the provincial Ministry of Environment and Climate Change Strategy.
- Under the Health of Animals Act, the CFIA may also require controls on effluent during the management of a disease outbreak or disease detection if affected aquatic animals are to be processed. In such a case, the CFIA would work with the facility on their biocontainment procedures to ensure that both solid and liquid wastes will not result in spread of the disease from the facility.
- DFO is not responsible for regulating effluent from fish processing facilities, therefore does not audit or monitor this discharge. However, the Department's comprehensive monitoring and auditing program of farmed fish in BC provides it with confidence that pathogens that cause a significant risk to wild salmon are being addressed prior to harvest, which then minimizes risks when effluent is discharged.
- Further, when farmed fish are harvested at an aquaculture facility, DFO's conditions of licence require the containment of blood within the harvest vessel and prevent its release into the marine environment. The CFIA assumes regulatory oversight, from a food safety perspective, once harvested aquaculture products enter the processing facility.

Cooke Aquaculture Incident

- On August 19, 2017, a Cooke Aquaculture net-pen containing 305,000 Atlantic salmon collapsed about 40 kilometres east of Vancouver Island's southern tip near the San Juan Islands, Washington.

- The New Brunswick-based company removed 145,851 salmon from the collapsed net-pen. In addition, Cooke crews captured 388 escaped salmon using beach seines under an emergency permit issued by the Washington State's Department of Fish and Wildlife (WDFW).
- The WDFW have urged the public to catch as many of the fish as possible. In Canada, DFO is not increasing angling efforts, in order to minimize pressure on Chinook and Sockeye salmon.
- Initial reports indicated, a total of 200,722 (extracted by the company and caught by anglers and Indigenous fishermen) Atlantic salmon out of the total of 305,000 Atlantic salmon ~~were~~ were accounted for ~~at this point~~.
- However, a report based on an investigation by the state government indicated that only 57,000 of the escaped fish have been caught. The report also indicated that structural failure resulted from Cooke's failure to adequately clean the nets of mussels and other marine organisms, which increased drag and weight on the nets.
- Cooke was subsequently fined $332,000.00 for violating Washington State water quality laws. The state government also intends to terminate Cooke's lease to operate the salmon farm but Cooke filed a lawsuit to challenge this on January 4, 2018.
- DFO is closely monitoring the situation. As an additional monitoring step, DFO will survey streams in the fall of 2017 in areas potentially affected by this event. The Department did not detect any significant impacts.
- Research has shown that there is a low likelihood of these Atlantic salmon surviving and establishing themselves in Pacific waters.
- In Canada, provinces where finfish are cultured in the marine environment have strict provincial (Atlantic) and federal (BC) requirements for avoiding breaches of containment and/or reporting escapes. ~~In 2016, the aquaculture industry reported escapes of 23 salmon.~~

Contexte

Général et économique

- En 2010, Pêches et Océans Canada a été chargé du contrôle réglementaire de la gestion du secteur de l'aquaculture en Colombie-Britannique à la suite d'un arrêt rendu par la Cour suprême de cette province. Les pouvoirs sont encaissés dans le Règlement du Pacifique sur l'aquaculture. L'aquaculture marine des poissons à nageoires est toujours perçue comme présentant des dangers pour les populations de poissons sauvages, en particulier pour les saumons sauvages, ce qui donne lieu à une opposition à l'expansion de l'industrie, notamment de la production de saumon de l'Atlantique.
- Le Ministère continue d'établir les conditions de permis et les mesures de conformité qui les accompagnent et demeure libre de modifier ces conditions à tout moment pour assurer la conservation et la protection des poissons.
- En Colombie-Britannique, certains intervenants se sont tournés vers les perspectives offertes par l'aquaculture en parcs clos.
- Bien que l'aquaculture en parc clos soit possible, des défis, à commencer par les coûts de démarrage élevés, l'extensibilité et la reproductibilité, demeurent. Les systèmes de parcs clos sont complexes sur les plans biologique et technologique. Leur utilisation est actuellement limitée à la production commerciale de saumons juvéniles avant leur transfert dans des cages à filet pour achever leur croissance. Il n'existe pas d'installation d'envergure commerciale comparable à la production en cages à filet de saumons adultes de taille commerciale.
- À l'échelle mondiale, la production aquacole augmente alors que le rendement des pêches sauvages stagne. La consommation humaine de poissons d'élevage a dépassé celle des poissons sauvages en 2014.
- Le saumon, en particulier le saumon atlantique d'élevage, est devenu le produit le plus commercialisé (sur le plan de la valeur) du secteur global des produits de la mer, dépassant la crevette.
- L'aquaculture représente actuellement environ un tiers de la valeur totale du secteur canadien des produits de la mer et 20 % de sa production totale. Le poisson (surtout le saumon) constitue toujours la majorité de la production, avec à peu près 80 % du volume total et 93 % de la valeur totale.
- Le Canada est le quatrième producteur mondial de saumon d'élevage, derrière la Norvège, le Chili et l'Écosse. La production est partagée également entre la Colombie-Britannique et les provinces de l'Atlantique.
- Plus de 60 % de la production aquacole est exportée; presque toutes les exportations sont destinées aux États-Unis.

- La valeur totale des exportations de produits de l'aquaculture était plus de un milliard de dollars en 2016. Ces exportations étaient composées à 95% de produits à base de saumon. Le saumon de l'Atlantique se classe 3e parmi les exportations canadiennes de poisson et de fruit de mer sur le plan de la valeur, derrière le homard et le crabe des neiges.
- La plupart des gens qui travaillent dans l'aquaculture ont moins de 40 ans. Les Autochtones canadiens participent actuellement à près de 6 % de l'ensemble de l'aquaculture canadienne, surtout en Colombie-Britannique, mais aussi dans les régions du Centre et du Canada atlantique.

Réforme législative de l'aquaculture

- Il y a plus de trente ans que les intervenants et les gouvernements discutent d'une loi conçue spécialement pour l'aquaculture et en recommandent l'adoption.
- Six ministères fédéraux jouent un rôle dans la réglementation du secteur de l'aquaculture.
- Au niveau fédéral, le secteur de l'aquaculture est essentiellement réglementé par la Loi sur les pêches, conçue pour les pêches sauvages.
- En juin 2016, le Comité sénatorial permanent des pêches et des océans (CPPO) a présenté un rapport intitulé « Un océan de possibilités : L'aquaculture au Canada », dans lequel il étudie le cadre législatif et réglementaire de l'aquaculture au Canada, en Écosse et en Norvège. Il conclut ainsi dans ce rapport qu'« il est impératif d'adopter une nouvelle loi fédérale sur l'aquaculture ».
- Dans sa réponse au rapport du Comité sénatorial, le gouvernement fédéral s'est engagé à étudier « comment une nouvelle législation pourrait clarifier les responsabilités fédérales, provinciales et territoriales ».
- En juin 2016, le gouvernement du Canada s'est engagé à étudier des options pour procéder à une réforme législative canadienne, notamment l'élaboration d'une loi sur l'aquaculture.
- À la réunion de juin 2017 du Conseil canadien des ministres des pêches et de l'aquaculture (CCMPA), les ministres ont convenu de demander aux représentants fédéraux et provinciaux d'accélérer les travaux dans le cadre de la Stratégie de développement de l'aquaculture (SDA) du CCMPA. De plus, les ministres ont chargé Pêches et Océans Canada (MPO) d'étudier la possibilité d'élaborer une loi fédérale sur l'aquaculture qui leverait les obstacles qui entravent la croissance de l'industrie, protégerait l'environnement et serait compatible avec les régimes provinciaux ou territoriaux existants.
- Le plan ministériel de 2017-2018 contient aussi l'engagement de mener des consultations sur l'élaboration d'une loi fédérale de l'aquaculture qui vise à maintenir la durabilité économique de l'industrie tout en assurant la protection de l'environnement et la création d'emplois.

Vision de l'aquaculture 2030

- En réponse aux événements récents et très médiatisés concernant les questions aquacoles, le Ministère a récemment commencé à élaborer un cadre initial pour définir une vision à long terme visant à soutenir l'aquaculture durable au Canada : la Vision de l'aquaculture 2030. Le 22 novembre 2017, vous avez annoncé les premières réflexions du Ministère sur ce cadre préliminaire lors de l'Assemblée générale annuelle de l'Alliance de l'Alliance de l'industrie canadienne de l'aquaculture (AICA).
- La version préliminaire de la Vision de l'aquaculture 2030 englobe un éventail dynamique d'actions dont l'objectif est un secteur de l'aquaculture bien réglementé au moyen de mesures fondées sur la science, en collaboration avec les partenaires F-P-T et les gouvernements autochtones. L'augmentation de la production aquacole durable est essentielle étant donné que la demande importante au pays et à l'étranger à l'égard des fruits de mer de grande qualité devrait augmenter. Cette vision se fonde sur les travaux en cours du MPO, mais tient compte également des nouvelles activités, selon quatre volets principaux :
 - Collaboration et gouvernance
 - Innovation pour une croissance durable
 - Poissons et écosystèmes en santé
 - Transparence et obligation de rendre compte
- Le document qui définit la Vision fera l'objet d'autres discussions avec les partenaires P-T en tant que prochaine génération de Stratégie de développement de l'aquaculture. Bon nombre des activités proposées dans la Vision nécessiteront l'appui des partenaires au sein d'autres ministères fédéraux et provinces/territoires, ainsi que des peuples autochtones, de l'industrie et d'autres intervenants pour atteindre les objectifs globaux.

- Grieg NL Nurseries Ltd. Et Grieg NL Seafarms Ltd. ont proposé un investissement en aquaculture de 251 millions de dollars sur 5 ans pour produire 33 000 tonnes de saumon de l'Atlantique stérile de souche européenne dans la baie Placentia. Le projet vise la construction d'une écloserie, l'établissement de 11 sites d'élevage en milieu marin, des hausses graduelles de la production et la construction d'une nouvelle usine de transformation qui créeront 325 nouveaux emplois directs.
- Le projet compte un certain nombre de partenaires régionaux, dont Oceans Choice International, l'un des plus grands détenteurs de quota du pays, ainsi que le gouvernement de Terre-Neuve-et-Labrador, qui s'est officiellement engagé à investir 30 millions en capitaux propres, sous réserve de la conclusion d'un protocole d'entente et de l'approbation du cabinet provincial.
- Grieg NL a présenté à Pêches et Océans Canada (MPO) et à l'Agence canadienne d'inspection des aliments (ACIA) des demandes d'autorisation pour importer chaque année d'Islande jusqu'à huit millions d'œufs de saumons triploïdes des deux sexes. L'ACIA a évalué les risques de maladies, a considéré que les autorités islandaises atténuaient convenablement les risques pathogènes et a approuvé l'importation.
- Le Comité fédéral-provincial des introductions et des transferts a évalué les risques écologiques et génétiques que pose le saumon de l'Atlantique triploïde de souche européenne et a conclu que le risque génétique du croisement entre des saumons triploïdes d'élevage fugitifs et des saumons sauvages était plus faible que le risque génétique d'hybridation entre les saumons fertiles de Saint John et les saumons sauvages, déjà autorisée dans le cadre de l'aquaculture à Terre-Neuve-et-Labrador.
- Au départ, la province de Terre-Neuve-et-Labrador a dégagé le projet d'aquaculture de Grieg de tout autre examen par le processus provincial d'évaluation environnementale, quoique sous certaines conditions. Cependant, le 20 juillet 2017, la Cour suprême de la province a infirmé cette décision et exige désormais que le projet fasse l'objet d'un énoncé des incidences environnementales (EIE) en vertu de la Environmental Protection Act de Terre-Neuve-et-Labrador.
- [REDACTED]
- La Province a amorcé la processus d'EIE le 9 novembre 2017, avec un délai de 120 jours pour fournir des recommandations relatives à l'EIE au promoteur avant le 8 mars 2018. Le calendrier dépendra alors de la date à laquelle le promoteur fournira l'information demandée. Le MPO est membre du Comité de l'EIE.
- Grieg NL et la province ont conjointement interjeté appel de la décision de la Cour suprême provinciale le 14/15 décembre 2017, bien qu'une décision n'ait pas encore été rendue.
- [REDACTED]
- La Fédération du saumon de l'Atlantique (FSA) et le Salmonid Council of Newfoundland and Labrador (un groupe de coordination des intérêts de la pêche au saumon à la ligne) s'opposent à toute expansion des parcs en filet marins. Il est très peu probable qu'un scénario, quel qu'il soit, pour ce projet remporte l'appui de ces groupes d'intérêts ciblés.
- En attendant les approbations provinciales, ce projet nécessitera une pleine coopération entre tous les intervenants et respectera de l'ensemble des lois fédérales et des règlements connexes, tels que le Règlement sur les activités d'aquaculture.

Opposition des Autochtones aux exploitations aquacoles

- Il y a actuellement 23 fermes salmonicoles en exploitation dans l'archipel Broughton. Parmi celles-ci, 20 sont situées dans des territoires traditionnels revendiqués par des Premières Nations qui ne soutiennent pas la pisciculture marine (salmoniculture).
- Depuis août 2017, des militants (y compris certaines Premières Nations) ont mené des activités de protestation dans un certain nombre de fermes salmonicoles de l'archipel Broughton exploitées par Cermaq et Marine Harvest Canada. Des manifestations ont également eu lieu devant les bureaux du MPO, les tribunaux de la Colombie-Britannique et les bureaux de politiciens locaux.
- Au départ, les manifestations et les occupations de site étaient pacifiques et ne causaient que des retards mineurs aux activités aquacoles. Les activités ont pris de l'ampleur en décembre lorsque les groupes se sont mis à entrer dans les parcs sur plusieurs sites avec des plongeurs et des kayaks. Plusieurs poissons auraient été prélevés pour subir des tests de dépistage de maladies.

s.21(1)(b)

- Le 22 décembre 2017, la Cour suprême de la Colombie-Britannique a accordé des injonctions à Cermaq et Marine Harvest.
- Ces jugements comprenaient une clause exécutoire qui conférait à la GRC le pouvoir d'arrêter et de retirer les manifestants des sites si ces derniers contrevenaient à l'injonction.
- Les Premières Nations locales ont indiqué qu'elles continueront de manifester jusqu'à ce que les fermes salmonicoles soient retirées du territoire qu'elles revendiquent.

Transmission de maladies et procès Morton

- L'Agence canadienne d'inspection des aliments (ACIA) est désormais l'organisme fédéral responsable de la gestion des risques de maladie pour les animaux aquatiques en vertu de la Loi sur la santé des animaux et a pleinement mis en œuvre le Programme national sur la santé des animaux aquatiques (PNSAA) en décembre 2015. L'objectif du PNSAA est de prévenir l'introduction et la propagation des maladies au Canada. Les provinces et l'industrie appuient l'approche fondée sur le risque adoptée par le PNSAA.
- Maintenant que le PNSAA est pleinement mis en œuvre, le MPO amendera l'article 56 du Règlement de pêche (dispositions générales) afin d'éliminer le chevauchement des responsabilités en matière de gestion des maladies du poisson avec le PNSAA. Le MPO continuera d'appuyer le PNSAA en effectuant des tests diagnostiques, en menant de la recherche et en fournissant des avis scientifiques.
- Le 12 octobre 2016, Mme Alexandra Morton a déposé un troisième contrôle judiciaire devant la Cour fédérale concernant le réovirus pisciaire. Mme Morton prétend que le réovirus pisciaire peut causer l'inflammation des muscles squelettiques et cardiaques (HSMI), ce qui pourrait avoir des répercussions sur le saumon sauvage du Pacifique.
- Dans son premier contrôle judiciaire, elle alléguait que notre ministre avait abusivement délégué le pouvoir de délivrer des permis de transfert à l'industrie. La Cour a jugé que deux conditions concernant les transferts de poissons marins sont nulles et sans effet. Le MPO n'autorise plus les déplacements de poissons dans les conditions de permis et exige maintenant que tous les déplacements fassent l'objet d'un permis d'introduction et de transfert. Mme Morton a annulé son deuxième contrôle judiciaire en février 2017.
- Dans sa nouvelle demande, Mme Morton demande au tribunal de déclarer que la politique du MPO de ne pas procéder à des analyses visant à déceler le réovirus pisciaire et la HSMI lorsqu'il délivre un permis de transfert de poissons vivants dans des installations d'élevage dans la région du Pacifique est illégale. Elle demande également au tribunal de déclarer que le ministre n'est pas compétent pour autoriser les transferts de poissons porteurs de maladies ou d'agents pathogènes susceptibles de nuire à la conservation et à la protection du poisson.
- On prévoit que l'affaire sera instruite en janvier 2018.
- [REDACTED]

s.21(1)(b)

Réovirus pisciaire/Inflammation des muscles squelettiques et cardiaques

- Le réovirus pisciaire a été détecté dans les échantillons de poissons sauvages qui ont été prélevés il y a des dizaines d'années, et il pourrait avoir été présent dans les eaux du Pacifique avant l'expansion de l'industrie aquacole du saumon atlantique en Colombie-Britannique. On sait également que le réovirus est répandu (à tout le moins) des côtes de l'Alaska jusqu'à l'État de Washington.
- Le réovirus pisciaire ne fait pas partie des maladies répertoriées qui doivent être signalées à l'Organisation mondiale de la santé animale (OMSA) ou à l'Agence canadienne d'inspection des aliments (ACIA). Ni l'ACIA ni le MPO ne réglemente les déplacements de poisson en fonction de la présence du réovirus pisciaire.
- Le Secteur des sciences du MPO a examiné les effets possibles du réovirus pisciaire sur la côte ouest de l'Amérique du Nord et conclu qu'il est peu probable que le réovirus en question ait d'importants effets sur les populations de saumon du Pacifique. Il continue d'évaluer le lien entre le réovirus pisciaire et l'inflammation des muscles squelettiques et cardiaques (HSMI) ainsi que les risques du réovirus pisciaire pour les poissons sauvages.
- L'ACIA est le responsable fédéral de la santé des animaux au Canada. Grâce au Programme national sur la santé des animaux aquatiques (PNSAA) et aux divers pouvoirs qui lui sont conférés par la Loi sur la santé des animaux et ses règlements, l'ACIA est bien équipée pour régler rapidement et efficacement les problèmes liés aux maladies aquatiques, notamment aux eaux usées des usines de transformation du poisson.
- Le MPO est un partenaire à part entière du PNSAA et fournit des services de diagnostic, un soutien à la recherche et des avis scientifiques à l'ACIA. Dans le cas des maladies émergentes, les scientifiques et les vétérinaires du MPO travaillent avec des fonctionnaires de l'ACIA afin d'évaluer les risques pour la santé des poissons.

Effluents des installations de transformation du poisson

- En septembre 2017, un groupe de défense du saumon sauvage a fait circuler une séquence vidéo montrant du sang et d'autres effluents provenant de l'usine de transformation du poisson de Brown's Bay Packing Company en C.-B. Selon les représentants du groupe, les effluents ont été testés et on y aurait détecté la présence du réovirus pisciaire. Ce groupe de défense a également contribué à la récente émission de W5 sur les exploitations aquacoles en C.-B.
- Le vidéographe de la première vidéo a également fait une plongée par la suite sous une usine à Tofino qui transforme le saumon d'élevage et y a prélevé des échantillons d'effluents. D'après ses tests, environ la moitié des sélastes de la région qui se nourrissent des déchets des tuyaux d'évacuation d'effluents était atteinte du réovirus pisciaire.
- [REDACTED]
- Le 9 novembre 2017, une lettre a été envoyée au nom du ministre à l'intention du ministre Heyman, dont une copie à l'honorable Lana Popham, ministre de l'Agriculture de la Colombie-Britannique, ainsi qu'à l'honorable Catherine McKenna, ministre de l'Environnement et Changement climatique Canada, soulignant les intérêts du MPO et d'ECCC dans la protection des poissons sauvages et la prévention de la pollution. La lettre se terminait par une recommandation au MPO, à ECCC et à la province de la Colombie-Britannique d'entreprendre un examen des politiques concernant l'écoulement des usines de transformation du poisson et de prendre toutes les mesures supplémentaires nécessaires pour déterminer et traiter les risques éventuels.
- Le ministère provincial de l'Environnement et ECCC ont par la suite lancé des enquêtes en fonction de leurs domaines de responsabilité réglementaire respectifs.
- En réaction à une demande des représentants provinciaux, le Secteur des sciences du MPO a recueilli des échantillons au cours de la première semaine de décembre en vue de détecter la présence d'agents pathogènes dans les échantillons, notamment celle du réovirus pisciaire. Tous les échantillons prélevés ont révélé la présence du réovirus pisciaire. Une réponse rapide des Sciences a été complétée et transmise à la province de la Colombie-Britannique. En novembre dernier, la province de la Colombie-Britannique a commencé à examiner l'autorisation de rejet actuelle de l'usine de Brown's Bay et a invoqué l'ébauche d'une autorisation mise à jour au MPO (Division de la gestion de l'aquaculture, région du Pacifique) aux fins de commentaires. Jusqu'à présent, aucun commentaire n'a été formulé.
- Le 20 décembre 2017, la province de la Colombie-Britannique a annoncé un examen plus large des règlements et du processus de délivrance d'autorisations de rejet relatif aux usines de transformation du poisson et à l'utilisation de pesticides pour lutter contre le pou du poisson.
- En vertu du cadre législatif et réglementaire actuel, la gestion des effluents des usines de transformation du poisson est une responsabilité partagée impliquant ECCC, l'Agence canadienne d'inspection des aliments (ACIA) et la province de la Colombie-Britannique.
- Plus précisément, les effluents des usines de transformation du poisson sont gérés par la province par le biais d'autorisations délivrées en vertu de la Environmental Management Act par le BC Ministry of Environment and Climate Change Strategy (ministère de l'Environnement et de l'Action en matière de changement climatique de la C.-B.).
- En vertu de la Loi sur la santé des animaux, l'ACIA peut également exiger des mesures de contrôle des effluents lors de la gestion des cas d'épidémie ou de la détection des maladies si des animaux aquatiques infectés sont transformés. En pareil cas, l'ACIA collaborerait avec l'usine en vue de revoir ses procédures de bioconfinement pour s'assurer que les déchets solides et liquides n'entraîneront pas la propagation de la maladie à partir de l'usine.
- Le MPO n'est pas responsable de la réglementation des effluents provenant des usines de transformation du poisson; par conséquent, il ne vérifie pas ni ne surveille le rejet. Toutefois, le programme exhaustif du ministère en matière de surveillance et de vérification du poisson d'élevage en Colombie-Britannique nous porte à croire que les pathogènes qui posent un risque important pour les saumons sauvages sont traités avant la récolte, ce qui minimise les risques lorsque les effluents sont rejetés.
- De plus, lorsque les poissons d'élevage sont récoltés dans une installation d'aquaculture, les conditions de permis du MPO exigent le confinement du sang dans le bateau de récolte et empêchent son rejet dans le milieu marin. L'ACIA assume la surveillance réglementaire, du point de vue de la salubrité des aliments, une fois que les produits aquacoles récoltés entrent dans l'usine de transformation.

Cooke Aquaculture Incident

- Le 19 août 2017, un parc en filet de Cooke Aquaculture contenant 305 000 saumons de l'Atlantique s'est effondré à environ 40 kilomètres à l'est de la pointe sud de l'île de Vancouver, près des îles San Juan, dans l'État de Washington.
- L'entreprise, basée au Nouveau-Brunswick, a retiré 145 851 saumons du parc effondré. En outre, les équipes de Cooke ont capturé 388 saumons fugitifs à l'aide de sennes de plage dans le cadre d'un permis d'urgence délivré par le Department of Fish and Wildlife de l'État de Washington (WDFW).
- Le WDFW a invité le public à capturer autant de poissons que possible. Au Canada, le MPO n'accroît pas les efforts des pêcheurs à la ligne afin de réduire au minimum la pression sur le saumon rouge et le saumon sockeye.
- En tout, sur les 305 000 fugitifs, 200 722 saumons de l'Atlantique (retirés par l'entreprise et capturés par des pêcheurs à la ligne et des pêcheurs autochtones) ont été récupérés pour le moment.
- Le 8 septembre 2017, les équipes de Cooke, associées à un entrepreneur en récupération et un entrepreneur d'enlèvement des déchets, ont éliminé les trois autres parcs du site 2 de Cypress Farm à la suite des inspections réalisées par l'entreprise et les organismes d'État concernés.
- Le MPO continue de suivre la situation de près. À titre de mesure de surveillance supplémentaire, le MPO effectuera à l'automne 2017 un relevé dans les cours d'eau des zones susceptibles d'être touchées par l'événement.
- Des recherches ont montré qu'il est peu probable que ces saumons de l'Atlantique survivent et s'établissent dans les eaux du Pacifique.
- Au Canada, la pisciculture en milieu marin est encadrée par des exigences provinciales (Atlantique) et fédérales (C.-B.) strictes concernant l'évitement des brèches dans le confinement et la déclaration des évasions. En 2016, l'industrie aquacole a signalé 23 échappées de saumons de l'Atlantique.

Just now - [REDACTED] the rest of their party just got up and left (13:34), [REDACTED]; shaking a rattle; and now "SHAME" is being chanted by a handful of folks, which is not permitting other speakers to ask a question.

One woman (not identified) shouted that "You won't even talk to them".

Investigation and Panel Review of the Cooke Aquaculture 2017 Cypress Island Net Pen Failure

- On January 30, 2018 a report on the investigation and panel review of the 2017 Cooke Aquaculture's Washington State Cypress Island Net Pen Failure was released.
- AMD is currently reviewing the investigation and panel review report on the Cooke Aquaculture escape in Washington State to better understand what occurred and if there are lessons to be learned from this incident.
- DFO's Pacific Aquaculture Regulations and Conditions of Licence for aquaculture in BC require licence holders to take various fish escape prevention measures including maintaining cages and nets; we are considering whether any further mitigations measures should be required in the future.

Aquaculture Science Advisory Panel

- February 2, the Minister announced that he has asked Canada's Chief Science Advisor, Dr. Mona Nemer, to lead an independent expert panel on aquaculture science.
- The panel is to provide recommendations on "the appropriate use and consideration of scientific evidence in protecting the marine environment in decision-making on aquaculture" as well as "advice on the communication of this science, and associated decisions, to Canadians".
- A terms of reference for the panel as well participant a list has been drafted and sent to the DM and MINO for review.

Provincial and First Nations Meeting on Finfish Aquaculture in the Broughton Archipelago

- On January 30, 2018, Ministers and senior officials of the province of British Columbia met with First Nation governments from the Broughton Archipelago in Vancouver to discuss tenure renewals in the Broughton area that area expiring in June 2018. At the request of the Province, DFO officials also attended this meeting.
- First Nations expressed their desire for negotiations to remain between Provincial and First Nations governments and requested that DFO not participate in future meetings related to this process.
- Following the meeting, Provincial and First Nations governments issued a joint statement expressing the participants' intent to honor the implementation of the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples, and confirmed "a consent-based government-to-government process focused on the current fish farm operations in the Broughton area, and the protection of wild salmon."
- [REDACTED]

Broughton updates:

- Although occupiers remain at Swanson and Midsummer protest sites, provisions of the injunction are being respected (i.e. no trespass on tenures)
- On Jan 26th, there was an incident with one of the boats transporting fish to the Marine Harvest Midsummer Island site. A protest boat entered the vessel's navigational route, requiring it to change course to avoid a potential collision.
- The RCMP are currently investigating.

Subject: Conference call re: Aquaculture Protest updates - postponed to 1000 hrs Feb 15

Hi Folks,

My apologies, it seems we still are not in a state to get up and running on these weekly update phone calls yet.

There will be no call tomorrow (Thurs. 8 FEB 2017) due to several other commitments for the DFO folks.

I am going to send an invitation out today re: starting this weekly call on THURSDAY 15 FEB 2018.

Claire or Linda - can we use one of your conference call lines for this regular call? I have access to one as well but it is currently otherwise tasked for job competition purposes. Thanks!

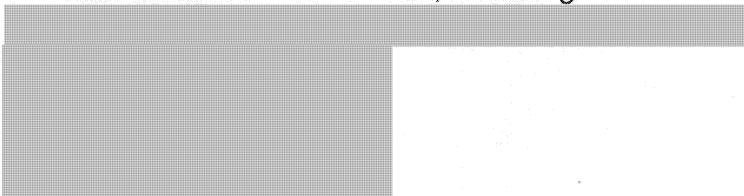

In place of tomorrow's call, here is a brief summary update:

BLUF:

The tone in social media (FB and Twitter) is one of frustration, but the actions proposed to deal with it are peaceful – fundraising events, speaker events, rallies that do not involve blockades and sharing online of posts and newspaper articles speaking negatively about fish farms.

Recent and ongoing events:

PM Trudeau held a Town Hall event at the Vancouver Island University gymnasium on Friday 02 FEB 2018. Several persons of interest (POIs) involved in occupations of aquaculture sites and the Victoria DFO office attended the town hall, inclunding:

An un-identified person (unknown if affiliated) posed the PM a question about salmon farms and diseased fish; before the Town Hall was over the group of about 8-9 Indigenous members rose and departed the gymnasium while shaking rattles and refusing to acknowledge PM Trudeau when he welcomed them to remain. [REDACTED] posted in social media that just before their very public exit [REDACTED]

Other than these POIs, there were dozens of other activists / general signs and shows of protest/protest signage regarding aquaculture salmon fish farms at the Town Hall event. The event was fully peaceful outside the venue (other non-peaceful events including excessive shouting and throwing a water bottle at the PM occurred within the venue, handled by security, not involving the above POIs).

The Swanson occupation FB page added an APTN Network video in which [REDACTED] states 'he never acknowledged us' re: PM Trudeau at the Town Hall event.

[REDACTED] has posted video on FB which she claims is of fish feed being delivered to the Swanson Island fish farm "every few weeks". The intent of the video appears to be to awe her audience about quantities of movement of farmed salmon feed.

There is some minor social media conversation comments about blocking the supply vessel (to fish farms), BUT no concrete or clear plans for such actions is evidenced.

There are 3 fundraising events by activists, one online event and 2 higher profile planned fundraising events for 16 FEB 2018 (same night, currently listed at 2 different Vancouver area churches). Speakers are advertised including [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] the 2 women arrested in regards to chaining and locking the DFO Victoria front doors, have asked the public to rally with them on their First Appearance court date of Monday, 19 FEB 2018, 1300-1600 hrs, an event posted on FB called, "Court Support for Wild Salmon Warriors". Advertised as a support rally march from the Victoria Public Library on Broughton Street (Victoria) to the courthouse at 850 Burdett Ave.

Johanna Jenkins

Hi Jason –

We've had an RFI request this morning of a somewhat urgent nature – there is an expectation of protests @ the DFO Victoria office commencing again as the protestors who chained the DFO front door in late January were advised that charges against them were dropped. Saanich PD advised C&P staff that the protestors indicated to Saanich PD they 'want their day in court' and that DFO staff should be on high alert for protest action to re-appear at the Victoria C&P DFO site (Commerce Circle).

What C&P is seeking from us is help assembling a product which outlines, for a judge, the rationale for DFO seeking an injunction order. While it is up to C&P to establish that, they need some assistance putting together a brief product which outlines the history (synopsis bullet point form history of events) as well as an assessment of 3 things:

1. Likelihood of the POI's to pose a further/future safety concern to staff at the DFO Victoria C&P Office (the last protest involved chaining the DFO front doors and a refusal to unchain them, while staff was in the building, which is a very concerning safety risk)

s.16(2)(c)

2. Likelihood of the POI's to pose a further/future risk to operational use of the DFO Victoria C&P Office (on 2 protest events, staff was impeded from being able to move work vehicles in and out of the compound at that office and for safety reasons (see bullet above), staff was moved to another work location which impeded operational work plans.
3. Likelihood of the POI's to impede the Public from accessing services at the DFO Victoria C&P Office

And perhaps a brief statement re: risks involved on any of the 3 items above not being risk managed as much as possible.

This concern came to light yesterday as Saanich PD advised they were dropping all charges against the 2 individuals arrested in January 2018, and that at least 1 of those POIs declared they still want their day in court. Note that 1 of the 2 POI's was also arrested at this DFO site in December 2017; it is highly likely she has escalated to chaining up the DFO front doors after she had those December charges dropped against her as well (I have been advised she had told DFO staff she would not go away and wanted to go to court).

In light of the fact that Nitasha and I were already tasked at keeping an eye out for concerning comments or actions by these POI's, Nitasha and I have already been discussing assisting the C&P Officers with this RFI.

Could you please advise.

Thanks-

Johanna Jenkins

Info at the bottom re: Marine Harvest putting in nets/activities [REDACTED] and the possibility of the company's routine processes which indicate re-stocking activities may draw focus from activists, who are still operating in the area (specific mention [REDACTED]). Swanson Island is the main location where there is still an 'occupation' camp by activists, next to the Marine Harvest facility.

RCMP Sgt. Isles (cc'd) [REDACTED]
Head's up for DFO, Joe and Greg.

BETH/JOE/GREG/COLIN/ANDREW/JAY: NFIS - BLUF:

- It seems VERY LIKELY [REDACTED] will be quick to respond to any other fish farm activities he finds objectionable today or in the next few days.

Evidenced by:

- 1 HR ago (approx. 11:30 PST) [REDACTED] posted a video to his FB account that he was en-route to check on a diesel spill at "Port Elizabeth" fish farm site. In the video [REDACTED] DFO, Fed. Govt., Provincial Govt. and fish farms. [REDACTED] he is getting tired of "doing the job of DFO" and that people will be held accountable.

- [REDACTED] also posted about an Event on FB called "Heckler's Town Hall" @ 19:00 hrs tonight (08 FEB), location as "Swanson Island Fish Farm". Not much details otherwise though.

[REDACTED] very vocal, [REDACTED] with postings in social media the last few days.

As mentioned to most of you earlier, [REDACTED] not getting having an opportunity to speak with PM Trudeau at the Town Hall event in Nanaimo last Friday. [REDACTED] has been vocal in APTN media and social media since then [REDACTED]. Several of his followers in social media have responded with comments re: stop fish farms, stand with 'them', etc. (no specific threats or plans however).

It's still being kept relatively up to date, I see that the Burnaby area Kinder Morgan 'Shut Down' and 'Swanson Occupation' info from late 2017 has been updated to this website. I check it periodically to see what's shaking. On the main homepage there is info as recent as today's date.

Donors to put Steve Irwin back to sea

<https://www.sunshinecoastdaily.com.au/news/donors-to-put-steve-irwin-back-to-sea/3327405/>

by Bill Hoffman 6th Feb 2018 5:00 AM

A FUNDRAISING campaign is well on the way to achieving its $200,000 target to get a conservation vessel named after the late Steve Irwin back out to sea.

Sea Shepherd has now raised more than $150,000 of the total needed to overhaul the engines on the 59m (194 foot) Motor Yacht Steve Irwin.

Originally a Scottish Protection Agency conservation enforcement vessel called the FPV Westra, it was purchased by Sea Shepherd named the Robert Hunter after a Sea Shepherd co-founder before been named after the late Crocodile Hunter in 2007.

It carries a crew of 45 and a helicopter and has been engaged in active harassment of the Japanese whaling fleet in the Antarctica as well as research work around the globe.

The fundraising campaign was bolstered by a substantial donation on January 29 this year.

Following the overhaul Sea Shepherd plans to take the M/Y Steve Irwin from its home port in Williamstown, Victoria, back to the Great Australian Bight.

An international volunteer crew will lead the expedition to put cameras below the waves to uncover more of the treasures of that richly bio-diverse ecosystem.

At the completion of the Bight expedition, the vessel and crew would set their sights on the Adani coal mine through Operation Reef Defence.

Hi Allison,

I looked for more information on the demonstrations today – I think this is all the information we have right now. I will check in again tomorrow.

Demonstrations at the Marine Harvest Dalrymple Hatchery in Sayward, BC

On Tuesday, February 13, 2018, at 11:30am Marine Harvest Canada (MHC) called the RCMP to report that approximately 10 demonstrators were protesting at the gates of Dalrymple Hatchery Site in Sayward, BC (just north of Campbell River). MHC staff identified [REDACTED] amongst the demonstrators. Although the protest occurred mid-day, there were no reports of interference with the movement of vehicles to and from the facility. Sayward RCMP has been notified and will monitor the situation and will remain in contact with MHC. There have been no apparent criminal offences being committed at this time.

Well unfortunately, she has misunderstood crown counsel. Or crown misunderstood what Linda said. Linda Higgins had asked crown if restorative justice could be an option with dealing with these charges as opposed to just dropping them. Then she would have her day to talk about fish farms with DFO.

I asked Leri Davies if ANYONE from aquaculture is planning on talking with them or something and have heard nothing.

Good Morning,

Yesterday I received information via the Saanich Police department that Provincial Crown prosecutor John Labat (not sure on the spelling of the last name) has decided to drop charges against the protesters. I have spoken with Saanich police and they are of the belief that the protesters will be back on Monday. Saanich does not believe that they would physically harm anyone, however they do believe they will "up" their tactics. They want their day in court and it has been taken away from them, and chaining the front doors didn't work, so they will likely try another avenue.

I have spoken with my Area Chief and Acting Director for C&P, Linda Higgins and we would like to continue operations regardless of the protesters being at the office. There is concern that they will block access in and out of the front of the office. We are moving our operations elsewhere for next week, or until further notice.

If you require further information feel free to contact me. I am working out of the Duncan office today and can be reached via cellphone at [REDACTED]

Good afternoon Andy,

I was just informed that the protesters are having their charges dropped. Is there anyway we can still have conditions that they stay away or are we starting all over again?

It's going to take a considerable amount of time for us to have an injunction looked at. Also, we really have to prove they are restricting access of our services to the public.

Please let me know,

Thanks for all your help with this, Andy.

Trent and Mandy, given the unfortunate decision of the crown council, would there be any benefit in getting together next week sometime to formulate a game plan if the protestors return?

Thanks,

The Saanich Police were called to the site by the Property Management Company but they were not removed. Police are reassessing the situation as it is now a sanitation issue. (RO Event Report ProtestCamp3)

2017/11/30 Time: 0819

Sign-age on shelter and associated tent reads "We Stand With Namgis & Musgamagw Fish Farms Occupations, Fish Farms Out Now! Wild Protect Sockeye.

[REDACTED] said they go to the Red Barn Market or get picked up by vehicle for bathroom use. A female was observed by a Commerce Circle property tenant going to the bathroom in the treed area behind the warehouse. This was at 5am Monday morning. (RO ProtestCamp3)

December 7, 2017

C&P were alerted to plans for a rally at the DFO office that is scheduled for December 14, 2017 at 12:00pm. FO Cormie contacted Saanich PD's lead investigator for this file, Sgt Andy Stuart. She alerted him to the upcoming protest and learned that they did not have plans to attend at this point.

FO's Cormie and Osselton met with [REDACTED] one of the protesters associated with the tent erected next to the DFO warehouse. FO's learned that she had had a meeting with the property owner (possibly property manager), but she was not made aware of any sanitation concerns. She explained to the FO's that they are picked up in the morning and the afternoon/evenings every day to use facilities elsewhere. She was protesting in order to have the aquaculture permits revoked. She also wants to bring more awareness to the issue so that hopefully new solutions can be considered for fish farming practices.

December 14, 2017

A rally in support of the protest took place at the DFO office in Victoria with about 75 people in attendance according to Saanich PD. No police issues were encountered. (Saanich PD Analyst email)

A sign was posted on C&P's front door stating "All eyes on you! -Love Department of Wild Salmon".(MC Event Report 5)

December 15, 2017:

The camp remained in place by the DFO warehouse. A protest supporter approached the DFO office and spoke with Fishery Officer Gord Adams. He wanted information about fish farm authorization, Wild Salmon Policy, legislation information and wanted to speak with an aquaculture contact.

Saanich Police was contacted.

MC Event Report_Protest camp5

Fishery Officer Cormie heard back from Sgt. Stuart of Saanich PD. He informed FO Cormie that the property owner, [REDACTED] initially spoke with the protesters about two weeks ago and they mutually agreed that the protesters would leave after two weeks. Saanich was waiting to hear back [REDACTED] likely tomorrow at the earliest, to see what his thoughts are on the matter of the campers remaining on the property now that it's been two weeks. They would come up with a plan from there. (MC Dec. 15 email)

December 18, 2017:

New Facebook post - ...At the request of the DFO, last week, the owner of the property at 4356 Commerce Circle, where the DFO offices are located, demanded that the Wild Salmon Matriarch Camp be taken down and vacate the premises or be subject to arrest for trespassing. Police are expected on site Monday, December 18th. ...Supporters are being asked to make themselves available on shift all day to witness and protest the possible arrest...

(MC Event Report Update 6)

December 19, 2017:

Saanich Police Department arrested one protester, the main representative of the camp at the Victoria DFO office. The protesters later took down the camp next to DFO's warehouse. The protest rep indicated that she may come back to the property in front of DFO's front doors to continue the protest. The protester intended to set up a new camp on municipal property adjacent to the property on which DFO's office/warehouse are located. (Saanich PD)

A group of approximately 11 people stood near the street above the DFO office and chanted in protest. They also yelled through the window at one of the C&P employees.

Facebook posts were created regarding the protester's arrest and there were plans to continue to protest at various times in front of DFO in the future. They will be posting times. Other Facebook posts show support for the protester who was arrested and in support of removal of open net fish pens in the Broughton Archipelago area. They encourage supporters to bring their concerns to various political representatives.

s.19(1)

No camp was observed near the DFO office.

Hi –

Could one of you please look over and reply back if this will meet your needs?

I already spoke with Nitasha (IA) and she will start putting together a bulletin style timeline and info once we have all the info from you.

What we still need from you is: ALL information regarding the locked doors event that occurred in January. That info, beyond the Event Report, has not been received yet in NFIS. Any information share to you by Saanich PD would be most helpful, as they led the arrests, etc. and can speak to intent and tone; if you do not have any information from Saanich PD, please let me know ASAP and I will contact them directly.

Hi Mya –

Yes please, we'd like those. Was there any reports that Saanich PD shared back to you (even a report to Crown, etc.)?

We want to speak to the likelihood of the individuals (POI's) to escalate their tactics again, using DFO as the mechanism to get attention. Saanich PD seem to be the ones who most recently interacted with the POIs, so that would be most helpful. Do you have time for a brief phone call?

Subject: Protestors have chained the doors at our field office on Commerce Circle

Good morning Rebecca,

You probably have seen this from others: Protestors have chained the front door of our field office in Victoria. Saanich Police have been called.

Protestors have been back at our Victoria field office every day this week. Until this morning they were peacefully drumming and causing no problems. Staff were taking appropriate security measures.

This morning I received the email below from Mandy Ludlow, one of the Fishery Officers, stating that the protestors have chained the front door.

I just phoned her as her email indicated she wasn't able to get hold of any senior management. She and remaining staff are fine, and Mandy said that the protestors were peacefully sitting outside the front door, however, chains on the front door are a safety concern, obviously.

She, and two other FOs, are remaining for security, all other staff have been sent home. The Saanich Police have been called.

As it is possible that these protests might spill into other sites, I'm going to send a message to all SCA staff reminding them of security protocols.

Thanks

Laura

I couldn't get ahold of any of you so I called rob Tompkins. He provided some advice.

I am sending everyone home but myself, Mya and gord to maintain security of the building. The saanich police are coming to arrest them. I am worried it will inflame the situation.

The Protestors just chained our front door. They have not chained the back door yet. They are aware we have a back door. Can someone please call my cell [REDACTED] and provide some guidance.

The Saanich police are on their way.

1 Overview

This document contains the Business Continuity Plan for:

VICTORIA AREA OFFICE
4250 Commerce Circle
Victoria, BC
V8Z 4M2

The Business Continuity Plan identifies the continuity, response and management activities required to be performed at the site in response to a significant incident.

Significant Incident a significant incident is one which has the potential to:

- threaten the health and safety of workers or prevent significant numbers of them from getting to work
- cause damage to or prevent the normal use of corporate facilities or assets to an extent that normal operating procedures cannot correct the situation; and
- Disrupt or prevent essential business functions from being carried out at a minimum acceptable level.

1.1 OBJECTIVES

The objectives of the BCP are:

- to ensure that essential business functions can be resumed with the least amount of disruption from the onset of an incident and can continue to be performed at the highest possible level of service until such time as normal operations are restored;
- to ensure that the response to incidents is carried out in a time-sensitive manner, safeguarding the lives and health of employees and protecting resources and sensitive assets to the maximum extent possible; and
- To ensure that response and continuity management is effectively carried out through the provision of accurate assessments and progress updates to support informed decision making.

1.2 ACTIVITIES

The plan is organised into three types of activities as illustrated in diagram 1:

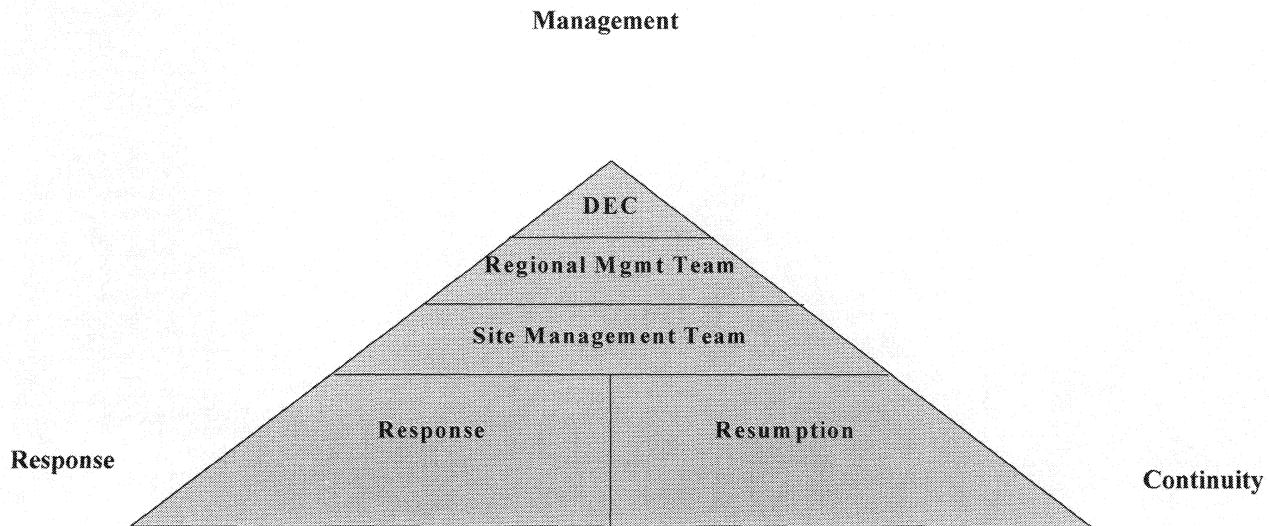

Diagram 1: organisation

Response	activities to assess, control and contain the incident and its impacts (e.g. safety and protection of site personnel, protection of sensitive assets, damage assessment) and to monitor and report to management.
Continuity	activities, which temporarily re-establish the delivery of essential business functions, possibly at reduced levels (e.g. establishing an alternative site, providing temporary systems and tools, contacting essential staff).
Management	review of assessments and progress updates and carrying out decision making during the response and continuity period.
Restoration	activities designed to re-establish all functions and operations at normal (pre-incident) service levels (e.g. clean-up and readying of the damaged facility or outfitting a new facility)

1.3 PLAN ORGANISATION

Section 1	defines the purpose, structure and focus of the plan
Section 2	contains an event/activity diagram depicting all key BCP activities
Section 3	defines each of the response actions to be carried out
Section 4	defines each of the continuity actions to be carried out
Section 5	defines the management actions to be carried out
Annexes	BCP procedures and contact lists to be deployed

2 Event/Activity Diagram

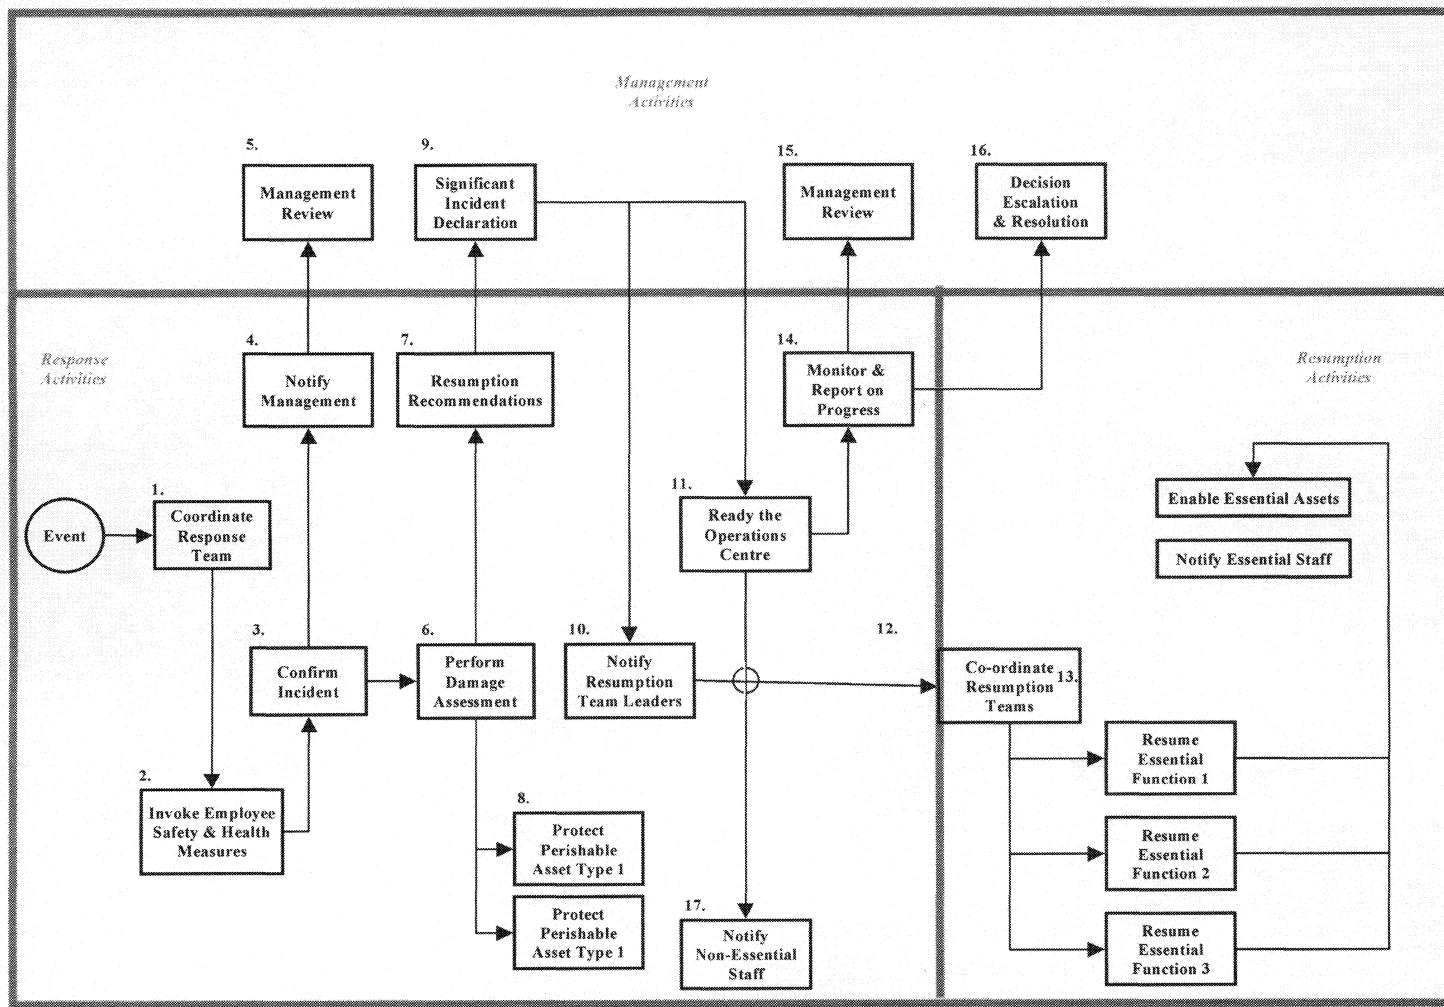

Key BCP activities are set out in the following event/activity diagram. The diagram can be used as a quick reference for the BCP implementation exercise.

Each activity shown in the diagram is explained in more depth in the following sections of this document:

Response – Section 3

Continuity – Section 4

Management – Section 5

3 Response

The response team leader initiates the BCP. See Annex A: Response Team Leader for the name and phone numbers of the response team leader and alternates.

Note: Alternates are to be contacted when the response team leader is not available; they are responsible for carrying out all of the response team leader's responsibilities.

The response team leader or alternate is normally the first person to be contacted in the event that an incident occurs or is anticipated to occur.

A) Invoke Employee Safety and Health Measures

In the event that the incident takes place during working hours, the occupational health and safety committee chair or an alternate ensures that the following activities have been initiated, as appropriate:

- trip the alarm
- evacuate the building
- contact the local authorities
- organise first aid treatment for the injured
- secure the premises

It is expected that the above activities would have already been implemented. However, in the event any of the above activities is not underway, the occupational health and safety committee chair or an alternate initiates the action using the contacts set out in Annex B: Safety and Security Contacts.

For activities already underway, the occupational health and safety committee chair or an alternate will validate that the appropriate actions are being taken.

Note: for each type of perishable or hazardous asset on this site, contacts are included in Annex B.

B) Co-ordinate Response Team

The response team leader or alternate co-ordinates the response team by contacting each team member as appropriate to the situation.

The leader advises team members of the situation, provides any details that are known at the time and requests each team member to invoke their respective response procedures.

If necessary, an off-site meeting is to be called at the alternate site identified on the cover page (e.g. in the event that the incident causes the site to be unusable).

See Annex C: Response Team Members for the name and phone numbers of the response team members and alternates.

C) Confirm the Incident

In the event the incident occurs outside normal working hours, the first response team member on the site confirms the incident to the response team leader by providing an initial appraisal of the apparent nature, scope and magnitude of the damage.

Details to be included in this initial appraisal are set out in Annex D: Initial Incident Appraisal.

D) Notify Management

After the initial appraisal has been communicated to the response team leader, the leader notifies the appropriate management contact person(s) and communicates the details from the initial appraisal.

The management contact person notifies management team members as may be appropriate, alerting them of the incident and apprising them of the preliminary assessment.

The management contact and the procedure for notifying management are set out in Annex E: Management Notification.

E) Perform Damage Assessment

Upon arriving at the site, the facilities rep (PWGSC) performs a detailed assessment of the facility, its infrastructure (e.g. power, water, etc.) and its contents (furnishings, carpets, etc) and the systems rep performs a detailed assessment of the systems (networks, computers and software).

In the event expert help is required, facility and systems reps have a list of contacts (e.g. structural engineers, electrical engineers, air conditioning technicians, database specialists, etc.).

In the event there is any specialised equipment (e.g. scientific equipment) necessary for the continuity of any essential functions, procedures and contact names for each type of equipment will also be included in Annex C: Safety and Security Contacts.

Assessments may involve the performance of tests to help ascertain the degree of damage and the safety of the facilities and systems for use.

Assessments will be performed in accordance with the procedures and using the damage assessment report set out in Annex G: Damage Assessment.

Assessments are submitted to the response team leader.

F) Protect Hazards and Assets

As soon as response team members (and their contacts) have completed their damage assessments, they are to proceed immediately with the protection of hazardous assets as well as other assets.

Hazardous assets found on this site are identified in; and procedures and contacts for the handling of these assets are identified in Annex H: Hazardous Assets.

G) Continuity Recommendations

After damage assessments have been received from the appropriate response team members, the response team leader prepares and submits continuity recommendations to management.

Continuity recommendations are set out in a report done in accordance with Annex I: Continuity Recommendations Report.

Recommendations will focus on the immediate requirements for resuming essential functions (e.g. an interim move to a temporary site or repair the damaged site), and the longer term possibilities for restoring normal operations (e.g. salvage/repair or demolish).

H) Notify Continuity Team Leaders

Management, after having reviewed the damage assessment and continuity recommendations, may declare a significant incident, which initiates the continuity plan. The response team leader, upon receiving the declaration, notifies continuity team leaders to initiate their continuity plans and procedures.

I) Ready the Operations Centre

An operations centre supports management and communications activities (tracking, report co-ordination, updates, decision escalation, inquiries, record keeping, etc.) during BCP implementation.

In the event the site is sufficiently large to warrant an operations centre, the admin rep will establish the centre and co-ordinate its activities.

In the event that the facility is not usable, the admin rep will request that an interim facility be set up for the Operations Centre.

Until such time as the interim facility is established, the response team will meet at the location set out on the cover page.

The admin rep will establish the operations centre using the contacts and procedures identified in Annex J: Operations Centre.

J) Notify Non-Essential Staff

The response team will initiate and co-ordinate the fan out process for Notifying Non-Essential Staff what is expected of them (e.g. remain at home or come to work).

K) Incident Specific Response Actions

While all of the above are standard actions, which tend to be carried out regardless of the nature of the incident (e.g. fire, flood, winter storm, etc.), there are also incident-specific response actions that may be undertaken.

Incident-specific responses are unique to a fire, or a flood, or a building occupation, to be carried out in concert with the standard actions identified above. They are listed in Annex K: Incident-Specific Response Actions.

4 Continuity

Once management has declared a significant incident, the response team leader contacts the continuity team leaders and advises them to implement their continuity plans and procedures. The small size of this facility means that staff is on both response and continuity teams.

Continuity team leaders are those listed in Annex A: Response Team Leader.

Note: Alternates are to be contacted when continuity team leaders are not available; they are responsible for carrying out all of the continuity team leader's responsibilities.

A) Co-ordinate Continuity Teams

The continuity team(s) leader(s) or alternates co-ordinate the continuity of their essential services by contacting each team member as appropriate to the situation.

The leaders advise team members of the situation, provide any details that are known at the time and request each team member to invoke their respective response procedures.

See Annex C: Response Team Members for the name and phone numbers of the continuity teams' members and alternates.

B) Resume Essential Functions

Upon notification by the continuity team leaders, continuity team members proceed with the continuity plan activities and procedures.

Continuity activities include contacting essential staff and securing the necessary facilities, tools and equipment necessary to resume each essential function.

Essential functions to be resumed at this site are identified in Annex F: Priority Assessment.

C) Monitoring and Communicating

The admin rep, using the operations centre, is responsible for receiving and communicating status updates, assessment reports, inquiries, problems and management decisions.

These functions will continue to be performed throughout the response and continuity phases and on into restoration.

Monitoring and communications activities are carried out in accordance with the procedures and using the reports identified in Annex O: Monitor and Report on Progress.

5 Management

Throughout the BCP exercise, management is responsible for progress reviews and key decisions. Reports for management review and requests for management decisions are made by the response team leader, who uses the operations centre to gather information from those implementing BCP. These reports and requests are sent by the response team leader to the management contact(s) identified in Annex E: Management Notification, who communicates decisions back to the response team leader.

A) Management Review (Incident Appraisal)

Upon receipt of the preliminary appraisal (Annex G) of the incident from the response team leader, the management team reviews and appraises the situation.

B) Significant Incident Declaration

Upon receipt of the detailed assessment and continuity recommendations as presented by the response team leader, the management team makes the decision to declare a significant incident. The declaration is communicated from the management team through the management contact to the continuity team leader, who communicates the message to the continuity team leaders.

C) Management Review (Progress monitoring)

Upon receipt of progress reports submitted by the response team leader through the management contact, the management team reviews and appraises the BCP.

D) Decision Escalation and Resolution

During an incident, matters may arise which require escalation to management for decision. These matters are forwarded by those engaged in response or continuity activities to the response team leader. The response team leader provides information to the management team through the management contact. The management contact communicates the decision to the response team leader who forwards it to the initiator.

Annex O: Management Authorities identifies a number of different types of decisions, along with which level of management (NHQ, RHQ or Site) is required to authorise decisions.

Hazardous Materials

A list of hazardous materials on site is noted below. Handling of these materials is outlined in the WHMIS manual that hangs near the warehouse east entrance door.

Boats and Motors:

Boats have built in fuel tanks which are kept fuelled. Motors may contain volumes of fuel in small quantities. These items belong to a number of Sectors: C&P

Propane Bottles:

Two twenty pound propane are stored in the warehouse fuel storage room. One or two single use propane bottles (small volume) are kept at the work bench in the warehouse. These items belong to a number of sectors: C&P.

Containers for fuel (gas):

A number of 5 gallon fuel tanks are on-site in the fuel storage room. These items belong to a number of Sectors: C&P.

Oil/Solvents/Paints:

There are numerous containers filled with a variety of Oils/Solvents/Paints stored in the warehouse. Some of these are found in the cages used by each sector for storage, some are found loosely stored on shelves around the main shop area. These items belong to a number of Sectors: C&P

Firearms and Ammunition:

Pressurized Air Cylinders (SCUBA tanks):

A number of pressurized scuba tanks are stored in the warehouse. Some are stored in the inner storage room, others are in the main area of the warehouse. If heated or punctured, the non-flammable air will explosively expand, causing a hazard of flying metal fragments.

ANNEX K: INCIDENT-SPECIFIC RESPONSE ACTIONS

K-1 Building Fire

The area is covered by Saanich Fire Department. The initial response fire station is Station #2, located at 4595 Elk Lake Drive. Additional equipment, if required, would be dispatched from Station #1 at 760 Vernon Avenue.

Fire Evacuation Plans are posted in 4 locations throughout the building. Each posting includes a map outlining the nearest exit from that location, as well as an alternate exit. Each posting also notes the location of all fire extinguishers, and lists the designated muster station.

All personnel are to muster at the top of the driveway, on the grass next to the building sign. Personnel, as well as any visitors in the building at the time, are requested to not leave the area until it is confirmed that everyone exited the building safely. The designated Fire Officer will perform a head count.

It is the duty of the Fire Officer (see below) to ensure that all personnel and visitors have exited the building. The Fire Officer may designate someone to check the washrooms to ensure they are vacant.

Fire Officer: Roy Osselton
 (250) 363-0242

Alternate #1: Mya Cormie
 (250) 363-3009

Personnel are reminded that they are not to attempt to fight fires or perform rescues without the proper training and equipment.

K-2 Tsunami

As defined for this purpose, a Tsunami event is associated with a series of waves generated by an undersea disturbance such as an earthquake. Landslides, volcanic eruptions and even meteorites can also generate a Tsunami. This may in effect destroy property and infrastructure such as roadways, underground and above ground services and buildings, generally disrupting normal activities and business function.

EVACUATION PLAN

1. Notify staff
2. Secure the office.
3. Ensure all public and other clients evacuate the site safely to high ground.

K-3 Earthquake

The Victoria Area Office is identified as being in an Earthquake zone.

Action

1. If you are inside, stay there. Hide under your desk, in an archway or in a corner. Stay away from windows. Protect your head and face.
2. If you are outside, stay there and get clear of the building and over head wires.
3. If you are in a vehicle, pull over and stay in the vehicle. Avoid overpasses bridges and tall buildings.
4. Remain in your protected spot until all shaking has stopped. Anticipate after shocks, they may occur soon after the first quake.
5. Remain calm and help others.

After the earthquake, the recovery of station operations will require the following actions:

1. Check yourself and others on the site for injuries. Treat as best you can.
2. Check building for structural damage and hazards.
3. Check for electricity or leaking gas. Do not use an open flame.
4. Check water delivery and effluent systems for leaks
5. Wear sturdy shoes and other protective clothing to clear broken glass or debris.
6. Activate and monitor one VHF radio and listen for emergency communications. Turn on one AM/FM radio and listen for emergency instructions.
7. Stay at least 10 m from downed power lines.
8. Be aware of possible after events.
9. If the building must be evacuated, remove all emergency supplies with you. This might include pumps, generators, emergency rations, boats etc.

K-4 Hazardous Materials / Oil Spill / Natural Gas Leak

In case of a hazardous material / oil spill / natural gas leak, the following Initial Actions must be carried out.

Action

Our staff have no access to shut off hydro or gas. Contact should be made with landlord in order to have hydro, gas and other hazards shut off to reduce the risk of fire and explosion hazards. Staff will make attempts to:

1. If spill is small, clean up and move to point 6.
2. Muster all personnel. Ensure their safety. (Personal Protective Equipment)
3. Secure the area. Restrict access to emergency responders. Ensure responders are wearing PPE.
4. Assess the spill – i.e. type of Hazmat / fuel, quantity spilled, hazards and risks.
5. Initiate Containment/Isolation Strategy (IF SAFE TO DO SO).
6. Contact Environment Canada (1-604-666-6100).
7. Contact the Provincial Emergency Program (PEP) (1-800-663-3456)
8. Complete and submit completed spill form.
9. Complete Containment – Storage of recovered product, place in secure storage.
10. Advise all above authorities when completed.

K-5 Bomb Threat

To prepare for a Bomb Threat:

Ensure all staff are aware of the following procedure.

Action

1. Respond to the bomb threat by following these procedures:
2. When bomb threat received: Listen, speak in a calm voice and do not interrupt the caller.
3. Prompt the caller for information i.e. When will the bomb explode, where is it, what does it look like, where are you calling from, what is your name. (record the answers)
4. Ask someone to call the RCMP.
5. Evacuate all personnel, as you exit the building, search the immediate area for unusual objects. Don't touch anything. Report anything unusual. Ensure that all site visitors touring the external and internal parts of the facility are evacuated also.
6. Muster in the parking lot located at the front of the building.

To recover from a bomb threat:

1. Management will talk with staff about any effect the experience has had on them, and initiate Critical Incident Stress program if necessary.
2. Review the above procedures to ensure completeness.
3. Review building security.

K-6 Demonstrations and Building Occupation

If there are rumours of a possible demonstration, employees should immediately inform the Chief of C&P.

Action

1. Notify staff to prepare for an orderly evacuation of the facility if such action becomes necessary. Ensure that a check is done for site visitors touring the external and internal parts of the facility, and advice them to leave, (if possible).
2. Inform local police.
3. Take measures to enhance access control, (use dead bolt on key access doors).
4. Secure information and assets (petty cash, data files) in locked cabinets.
5. Cancel visitor appointments, delivery personnel, cleaners, contractors, etc.

Demonstration/Occupation in Progress:

1. Consider safety of remaining staff (evacuation).
 2. Maintain communication with Chief of C&P, and have in place an alternate location for contact, (home).
 3. Have in place a meeting area away from facility for further consultation with demonstrators, (local Inn).
 4. Disable computer network communications and phone communications.
 5. Notify police of status and request assistance as required.
 6. Do not provoke demonstrators or engage in verbal or physical altercations.
 7. Monitor and document events during occupation, (tape recorders, cameras, video, and notes).
 8. Minimise personnel movement in and out of facility areas.
 9. Attempt to prevent food and drink from being brought into the premises.
 10. If possible, control entry and prohibit re-entry of illegal occupiers who leave the building.
 11. At the request of the Chief of C&P, assist designated spokesperson that will be dealing with demonstrators.
 12. At the request of the Chief of C&P, have designated person inform illegal occupiers by prepared statement that a meeting place has been arranged. Departmental representatives will meet with their representative at a mutually convenient time after they leave the building (statement to be prepared by Communications staff at RHQ).
 13. At the request of the Don Radford, Area Director, request local RCMP remove the demonstrators.
1. Regional Contingency Plan for Illegal Building Occupations is Attachment A of this document.

Note from the Protestor's facebook post regarding Monday, looks like its all downtown:

Please join us in a good way for a big rally to be held in support of [REDACTED] longtime Indigenous activists battling foreign fish pharms that have invaded Musgamagw Dzawada'enuxw and 'Namgis traditional waters.

The pair were arrested and charged after blockading the entry to the federal Department of Fisheries and Oceans in a powerful statement to draw attention to the sudden collapse of wild salmon stocks as a result of the dangerous and negligent practices of Atlantic fish farming. The decimation of wild salmon is yet one more example of the continuing attack on Indigenous food security and resilience and the overall orchestrated genocide against First Nations communities.

They are currently occupying space next to Premier Horgan's office in Langford in an ongoing act of solidarity with frontline Indigenous wild salmon warriors.

We will gather in Spirit Square (so-called Centennial Square) at 12:30 pm and then march to the atrium of the Public Library. We will rally there for awhile, and then march down to the courthouse in solidarity for the 2 pm hearing. We encourage you to link arms with these courageous women and support them as these come face to face with these colonial oppressors.

Good Morning,

Yesterday I received information via the Saanich Police department that Provincial Crown prosecutor John Labat (not sure on the spelling of the last name) has decided to drop charges against the protesters. I have spoken with Saanich police and they are of the belief that the protesters will be back on Monday. Saanich does not believe that they would physically harm anyone, however they do believe they will "up" their tactics. They want their day in court and it has been taken away from them, and chaining the front doors didn't work, so they will likely try another avenue.

I have spoken with my Area Chief and Acting Director for C&P, Linda Higgins and we would like to continue operations regardless of the protesters being at the office. There is concern that they will block access in and out of the front of the office. We are moving our operations elsewhere for next week, or until further notice.

If you require further information feel free to contact me. I am working out of the Duncan office today and can be reached via cellphone at [REDACTED]

EVENT INFORMATION

Report Date and Time: 2018-02-16 12:00 hours

Incident Date and Time: Potentially 2018-02-19

Issue:

Protesters may return to C&P Victoria office and to protest or block access of the office to employees and the public.

Background:

In December 2017, protesters camped out at the Victoria office for approximately 30 days until they were arrested for trespassing.

In January 2018, protesters returned to the Victoria office after charges were dropped. They chained the front doors of the office closed. They were arrested and charged with criminal mischief.

On February 16th, 2018 Provincial Crown notified Detachment Supervisor Ludlow that they were dropping the recent charges against the protesters. The prosecutor and Saanich police believe the protesters will be back to conduct activity that would result in having a day in court.

Current Status:

The Victoria C&P staff are making plans to conduct operations elsewhere for next week and until further notice. Staff are working with NFIS to create an application for an injunction.

Strategic Considerations:

The Saanich PD are concerned protesters will return with young children again, and do not want to conduct arrests with little children around. They are concerned protesters will escalate activities to achieve an arrest. These activities could include vandalism and complete blocking off of the building.

Victoria C&P staff will conduct operations either out of IOS or Duncan C&P office. There is preference

Detachment Supervisor
Comments:

The back door is operational, however not an easy access point for anyone with a disability (no staff are mobility challenged).

Area Chief/Regional Chief
Comments:

Social media reaction attached. I discussed alternative options with prosecutor such as restorative justice [REDACTED] Victoria officers will attempt to negotiate with protesters when they return and keep a detailed log.

Hi Mandy,

RJ may be a viable option but RJ can also be used outside of the Criminal Justice system.

I can not speak for Crown Counsel but I doubt they would allow this as usually the Accused in a criminal file has to agree to RJ and if they don't follow through the charges are proceeded with as per normal.

One option maybe for DFO to have an intermediary reach out [REDACTED] and see if she is willing to engage in mediation with DFO at the table.

Andy,

I was speaking with Linda this morning after she spoke with the Crown Prosecutor this morning. Would it be possible if your shop does have to arrest protesters again, that you guys could put the first appearance date further away (maybe 90 days) so Restorative Justice could be a consideration? We have found this process very useful in the past and does not result in person(s) having a criminal record.

Hi Murray – one more piece of info when you address Denis about this RFI request. One of the 2 women arrested in January for chaining the DFO Victoria front doors and who was arrested previously in December 2017 for refusing to leave the same site at the landlord's request has posted to her social media that:

- she is unhappy charges against her have been dropped (she and others were trying to rally a march to the Victoria courthouse around the anticipated 1st appearance, originally scheduled for Monday 19FEB2018),
- that the 'federal prosecutor' would not approve the charges of mischief against her,
- that the federal prosecutor has advised her to set up/they could help facilitate a meeting with DFO and that the amount of people that could come meet with DFO was unlimited (as many people as they like)
- she has never had any intention of speaking with DFO or Govt. herself and would like her supporters to tell her how to proceed with this offer.
- See also the statement below Nitasha shared, as a head's up to C&P staff Victoria

Interesting. I have no idea who the federal prosecutor is in this case or who from DFO would be involved. I've cc'd DJ from DFO Security with this email as well.

Should this be shared to more senior DFO/Regional as I mentioned? Unclear here.

Thanks –

Jo

Hello all,

I would highly recommend that staff are made aware of the potential risk of escalating protests and take notice towards any disruptive activity, peaceful or not. Given that [REDACTED] intention is to get arrested, the risk for harm is significantly high whether the harm is against staff or assets. She has attempted to "get her day in court" by previously trespassing and for mischief and was not successful. She could potentially cause more harm this time around given that she is eagerly seeking a day in court.

Please note that a video was posted on [REDACTED] Facebook page asking for guidance from the gigames and matriachs on how to proceed as the federal prosecutor has advised her that he won't be approving charges. He has apparently offered her a sit down meeting with DFO so she is waiting for guidance from people to see what her next steps will be. Below is a loose transcription of the video.

"Federal prosecutor not approving the latest charges of mischief against [REDACTED] so we are not even on the docket. His counter offer is that "we" (the matriachs and gigames) can set up a meeting with DFO. There would be no limit for our people to be allowed in to answer and to question these people and put some hard pressure on them. He offered the way of being able to do it. She said she thanked him and takes the guidance of the gigames and matriachs so I'm putting it out there. I have never had any intention of talking to the DFO or from the government because my position has always been that the gigames and the matriachs need to be at the table. I'm awaiting word from everybody on this. Can you let me know how to proceed? I have his phone number and I can give it to the gigames that want to start setting this up or just want to answer to the guy about the charges. This is really interesting news because they definitely don't want me in court, they don't want this on file anywhere. Today is a good day"

[REDACTED] Yesterday was the first time I talked about the strategy I was going to use , always with [REDACTED] as a reminder to hold my cards close .. so damn they knew and they def don't want me in court .. since our position has always being the we hold space for all our people back home since we were able to do some work within this urban city .. so as excited as i am .. this is still not ceasing the permits and licenses which was our gigames demands that holding space they become our stand as well . the most exciting thing is we ARE making progress , and know they didn't want me in court .. the special prosecutor even said I know you wanted to get arrested and have your day in court .. even being arrested was a careful strategy that almost failed ..LET this not be our only demands of being sovereign people and truly nation to nation will always be my end goal . I wanna move back where my ancestors roam . I wonder if they grieve we are gone . Now time alone finally , to weep and pray .. i am swept into a cycle of images in shadow all around . they know ahh yes they know .. we will again go back to the land and live as true human beings ,they are restless for our return .. this is my vision

Yes, no problem asking. The event report I send out, forwarding yours, goes to rebecca, Mike, Jay, I will include Andy staurt and it goes to the director of real property too. All will be included, however, I can add DJ.

Laura is already part of our sca list so you actually already sent it to her.

[REDACTED] very good question.

Linda,

Should we be keeping safety and security in the loop with this protest stuff? Reason I ask, is johana just called me and asked if they are involved. Should I forward info to them?

Also, she asked about the rest of the upper management. I said Mike and Jay are on the event reports distribution list and if Mike (or you as an actor) thought it was necessary you would speak with rebecca Reid and or Laura brown.

Please let me know if I am correct,

I have no information that a sit down with DFO was actually offered. Mandy mentioned that there had been talk of seeking Restorative Justice (C&P to Prov. Prosc.), which would not proceeding now that there are no charges. It's possible [REDACTED] was even alluding to that, since C&P staff are the only ones Mandy is aware of from DFO who spoke with the Prov. prosecutor at all. Hard to tell.

I note through [REDACTED] social media that the planned march 'Event' from Centennial Square to the Court House in Victoria scheduled for Monday 19FEB to support [REDACTED] going to court has now been cancelled. [REDACTED] had also posted a video that he was en-route to support [REDACTED] on that march her a court appearance (which is no longer happening). The cancellation of that show of support may also heighten the risk that someone direct activities at a DFO site (counter-intuitive as that is, just based on the history here and the advisement from Saanich PD).

Thanks,
Jo

Would a provincial crown prosecutor offer such a set up? She makes it sound like he prosecutor had already spoken to someone in DFO.

Thanks Jason -
Mandy was able to clarify just now that [REDACTED] was very likely speaking on her social media about the Provincial Crown prosecutor (Victoria) dropping charges, not a Federal prosecutor (that makes more sense). The C&P staff SCA have been in touch with the Provincial prosecutor in the last couple days about this issue and the charges being dropped.

Hi Murray – one more piece of info when you address Denis about this RFI request. One of the 2 women arrested in January for chaining the DFO Victoria front doors and who was arrested previously in December 2017 for refusing to leave the same site at the landlord's request has posted to her social media that:

- she is unhappy charges against her have been dropped (she and others were trying to rally a march to the Victoria courthouse around the anticipated 1st appearance, originally scheduled for Monday 19FEB2018),
- that the 'federal prosecutor' would not approve the charges of mischief against her,
- that the federal prosecutor has advised her to set up/they could help facilitate a meeting with DFO and that the amount of people that could come meet with DFO was unlimited (as many people as they like)
- she has never had any intention of speaking with DFO or Govt. herself and would like her supporters to tell her how to proceed with this offer.
- See also the statement below Nitasha shared, as a head's up to C&P staff Victoria

Interesting. I have no idea who the federal prosecutor is in this case or who from DFO would be involved. I've cc'd DJ from DFO Security with this email as well.

Should this be shared to more senior DFO/Regional as I mentioned? Unclear here.

Thanks –
Jo

Hi Mya –

Yes please, we'd like those. Was there any reports that Saanich PD shared back to you (even a report to Crown, etc.)?

We want to speak to the likelihood of the individuals (POI's) to escalate their tactics again, using DFO as the mechanism to get attention. Saanich PD seem to be the ones who most recently interacted with the POIs, so that would be most helpful. Do you have time for a brief phone call?

Hi –

Could one of you please look over and reply back if this will meet your needs?
I already spoke with Nitasha (IA) and she will start putting together a bulletin style timeline and info once we have all the info from you.

What we still need from you is: ALL information regarding the locked doors event that occurred in January. That info, beyond the Event Report, has not been received yet in NFIS. Any information share to you by Saanich PD would be most helpful, as they led the arrests, etc. and can speak to intent and tone; if you do not have any information from Saanich PD, please let me know ASAP and I will contact them directly.

Thanks Mandy and Mya –

Subject: How Long Should We Stay Away for?

Good Morning Linda,

Knock on wood, the protesters haven't showed up yet. How long shall we stay away for (while they don't show up).

The thing that worries me is that the prosecutor told her that DFO wants to sit down and talk, I believe that was you discussing RJ with him. [REDACTED]

I have asked Leri if Aquaculture has developed their own media lines and do they have plans to talk with that group?

Cheers,

Just received (I replied to the DFO sender).

- I had a listen to the video posted to the 'Swanson Occupation' FB profile 40 minutes ago, 19 FEB 2018. [REDACTED] says,
"we've sent our letters and we encourage everybody to do the same to continue to apply pressure on this government to make a decision about what they are going to do with this place because you're going to see a very very volatile situation and an escalated scenario out here if we don't see some action and it worries me because we don't want to do this...".
- [REDACTED] asks in the video that people to go to their MLA's, etc. He also advises he/they will be trying to celebrate 6 months of 'occupation' tomorrow (20 FEB 2018 / day 180) and that he/they are not giving up.
- [REDACTED] advised he will be giving an update later today. As he says all this, he is traveling close by the Swanson Island fish farm site.
- [REDACTED] other activists were in Vancouver at end of last week, attending/giving talks and fundraising, no concerns flagged. [REDACTED] was also in Victoria over the weekend [REDACTED] 1 of 2 women arrested for chaining shut the Victoria DFO front doors in January 2018.
- [REDACTED] the notice of those dropped charges came about on Thursday/Friday last week. [REDACTED] posted to FB that the "federal prosecutor" (likely the provincial prosecutor) offered to arrange a meeting between concerned Indigenous folks and DFO.
 - No further updates found on social media/open source about a meeting with DFO – therefore any concerns [REDACTED] or others regarding such a meeting, whether planned or not, remains UNKNOWN.
- [REDACTED] posted about 4 hours ago (19 FEB 2018) the following, "just now crawled out of my tent,, what a great day not to be in court damn gotta do it again why must they make my job difficult lol for realz contracts and leases haven't ceased".

Overall,

- indications appear highly likely that [REDACTED] intends to escalate protest actions again to draw attention to her cause about fish farms/aquaculture;
- indications appear likely that [REDACTED] others located near/at Swanson Island are intending to draw attention to their cause as well in the next 24 hours, independently or in direct support [REDACTED]

Well unfortunately, she has misunderstood crown counsel. Or crown misunderstood what Linda said. Linda Higgins had asked crown if restorative justice could be an option with dealing with these charges as opposed to just dropping them. Then she would have her day to talk about fish farms with DFO.

I asked Leri Davies if ANYONE from aquaculture is planning on talking with them or something and have heard nothing.

Good morning Mandy. Any updates? This was posted to the Fish Farms Out Now Facebook page:

Federal prosecutors have dropped all charges against the matriarch camp women warriors. DFO did not want to go to court to answer to their continued industry collusion and gross incompetence. Stay tuned for updates in this, including a meeting with DFO and hereditary leaders. [REDACTED] is one wise woman who knows and uses the power she holds for the good of her people and the Salmon of our coast.

Good Morning,

Yesterday I received information via the Saanich Police department that Provincial Crown prosecutor John Labat (not sure on the spelling of the last name) has decided to drop charges against the protesters. I have spoken with Saanich police and they are of the belief that the protesters will be back on Monday. Saanich does not believe that they would physically harm anyone, however they do believe they will "up" their tactics. They want their day in court and it has been taken away from them, and chaining the front doors didn't work, so they will likely try another avenue.

I have spoken with my Area Chief and Acting Director for C&P, Linda Higgins and we would like to continue operations regardless of the protesters being at the office. There is concern that they will block access in and out of the front of the office. We are moving our operations elsewhere for next week, or until further notice.

If you require further information feel free to contact me. I am working out of the Duncan office today and can be reached via cellphone at ([REDACTED])

This was the plan even before the last update I shared.

So I spoke with Linda, who spoke with Mike Carlson. We will be working away from the office at least for this week.

I am not Sean or lara's supervisor so I don't know how this applies to them. But this is what our direction is.

Linda has asked the prosecutor to put his conversation with the protester in writing for Rebecca Reid and for ottawa.
This is where we are at now. There is concern because DFO has no interest in speaking with the protesters at this time.

I will keep you guys apprised as I learn things and please keep me up to date after you do drive bys of the office.

Thanks for your patience everybody.

Good evening,

Just looking at open source, they have cancelled their protest at the Courthouse. [REDACTED] she has been promised a meeting with DFO (she says this was arranged by Crown?) . Looks like they are arranging meals and such through this week to be going to John Horgan's office. No mention of Commerce Circle or DFO related protest.

Morning Sean,

FYI, we were seeing the same in NFIS over the weekend re: no planned protests for DFO Victoria. I also saw that as of Sat. evening (17th Feb), [REDACTED] was receiving a dinner donation at their matriarch camp, there was no further information to indicate that the camp would have moved Premier Horgan's office in Langford (they post some of those movement updates on their FB "Matriarch Camp Food and Supplies" profile).

Would you be able to cc me as well on any further info updates/changes? Would you like to be apprised of any news myself or Nitasha (NFIS assigned IA) become aware of?

Thanks,
Jo

Good morning,

Over the weekend there's been no indications in the most commonly used social media platforms and open sources of any protest actions planned for the Victoria DFO Office (or any other DFO office).

[REDACTED] posted video on Facebook on 16 FEB 2018 that mischief charges against her had been dropped, that she believed this was a way to keep her from getting her day in court and she wanted to hear back from others (her associates) regarding an offer from the prosecutor's office to organize a meeting between Indigenous members and DFO. There have been no further postings on the matter.

There were at least 2 events in Vancouver on Friday involving several of the known activists from the Broughton Archipelago area fish farm occupations, speaking at public venues/churches about fish farms and conducting fundraising. These appear to have been entirely peaceful.

Just received (I replied to the DFO sender).

- I had a listen to the video posted to the 'Swanson Occupation' FB profile 40 minutes ago, 19 FEB 2018. [REDACTED] says,
"we've sent our letters and we encourage everybody to do the same to continue to apply pressure on this government to make a decision about what they are going to do with this place because you're going to see a very very volatile situation and an escalated scenario out here if we don't see some action and it worries me because we don't want to do this..." .
- [REDACTED] asks in the video that people to go to their MLA's, etc. He also advises he/they will be trying to celebrate 6 months of 'occupation' tomorrow (20 FEB 2018 / day 180) and that he/they are not giving up.
- [REDACTED] advised he will be giving an update later today. As he says all this, he is traveling close by the Swanson Island fish farm site.
- [REDACTED] other activists were in Vancouver at end of last week, attending/giving talks and fundraising, no concerns flagged. [REDACTED] was also in Victoria over the weekend [REDACTED] 1 of 2 women arrested for chaining shut the Victoria DFO front doors in January 2018.
- [REDACTED] the notice of those dropped charges came about on Thursday/Friday last week. [REDACTED] posted to FB that the "federal prosecutor" (likely the provincial prosecutor) offered to arrange a meeting between concerned Indigenous folks and DFO.
 - No further updates found on social media/open source about a meeting with DFO – therefore any concerns [REDACTED] or others regarding such a meeting, whether planned or not, remains UNKNOWN.
- [REDACTED] posted about 4 hours ago (19 FEB 2018) the following,

"just now crawled out of my tent , what a great day not to be in court damn gotta do it again why must they make my job difficult lol for realz contracts and leases haven't ceased".

Overall,

- indications appear highly likely that [REDACTED] intends to escalate protest actions again to draw attention to her cause about fish farms/aquaculture;
- indications appear likely that [REDACTED] others located near/at Swanson Island are intending to draw attention to their cause as well in the next 24 hours, independently or in direct support [REDACTED]

Good start Nitasha. A few questions to develop a bit:

"The Saanich Police Department were contacted to inform that there were serious safety concerns as staff had been chained into the office"

What was the "safety concerns" ? did Saanich specify?

Similarly, regarding "On January 19, 2018, the Victoria office remained closed due to the increased concerns for staff safety."

What were the increased concerns?

And regarding "There is a high likelihood that the safety of staff and assets may be jeopardized in order [REDACTED] to achieve her objective."

What will the jeopardy consist of and how this is linked to [REDACTED] objective?

Subject: RE: Draft 1 - Victoria RFI

Safety concerns were expressed by DFO staff as:

- An escalation in physical behaviour [REDACTED] expressed as the previously trespass only protest had escalated to physical mischief and blockading of a main entry and exit point for staff and public;
- The blocked front door posed a significant increased threat to life or limb should the building need to be evacuated, for instance in the event of a fire or other catastrophe like an earthquake;
- The escalation included statements [REDACTED] that she would block the main DFO entry/exit indefinitely (an unreasonable amount of time from a safety perspective);
- The DFO office was obstructed [REDACTED] with chains and their persons so that the public was also prevented from accessing all DFO resources at that location.

On January 19, 2018, the Victoria (DFO) office remained closed due to the increased concerns for staff safety." - The increased concerns were:

- The recent and un-forecasted escalation in behaviour [REDACTED] about employing tactics which pose a physical danger to DFO staff, police officers and the public. The escalation in behaviour has included, in order:
 - Threats of protest
 - Peaceful protest at DFO site
 - Trespass at DFO site
 - Blocking of vehicle access for DFO staff and public, disruption to DFO operations
 - Depositing human waste on the DFO leased site (increase to hazardous waste and disease for staff and public)
 - Using a threatening tone with a Fishery Officer who offered information and a possibility to meet the correct DFO staff (refers to social media video posted of FO Ludlow spoken to aggressively [REDACTED] who advised she did not want any help from FO Ludlow)
 - Vague threats of protest actions against DFO on social media (ongoing)
 - Attempts at public shaming of DFO staff and police (via social media posts of video and pictures with captions disparaging DFO, DFO staff and Saanich Police)
 - Locking the DFO front doors with chains such that staff inside the building bore higher risk of injury in the event of an emergency
 - Locking the DFO front doors such that the public could no longer access DFO services at that site.

The further jeopardy is actually a partial unknown (medium risk) in that whether there will be an escalation of actions against DFO or 'steady state' of protest is not indicated. However on 19 JAN 2018, [REDACTED] indicated in a statement on her Facebook account that she would have to do this all again, which appears to allude to repeating the attempt to get charged with something to be able to go to court about it. Therefore there is indication [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] will continue to seek to violate criminal code enough to get arrested. Further [REDACTED] focused her protest and arrest activities for several months on just 2 sites, DFO Victoria and Premier John Horgan's office, making these 2 sites the likely focus of her social media declaration on 19 JAN 2018. That posting was ""just now crawled out of my tent,, what a great day not to be in court damn gotta do it again why must they make my job difficult lol for realz contracts and leases haven't ceased"." [REDACTED] indicated she does not intend to stay peaceful or quiet.

Narrative of Protest Activity at 4250 Commerce Circle

November 13, 2017

A protest camp set up outside of the DFO Office warehouse at 4250 Commerce Circle on the grass area adjacent to the south warehouse entry door. The camp site was roadside and visible from the office entrance. This information was passed to Roy Osselton by a member of the public. (Roy Osselton (RO) Event Report ProtestCamp3)

November 14, 2017

Roy Osselton personally observed the roadside fish farm protest camp site set up and visible from the office entrance at 4250 Commerce Circle. Roy Osselton created the Event Report (Camp3) and emailed the report, photograph of the camp, and protest pamphlet to Linda Higgins. A copy of the event report and photograph was also emailed to Jay Fulks. Roy Osselton left a phone message with the Saanich Bike Squad and advised them of the protest camp.

November 15, 2017

Roy Osselton spoke to Sgt. Andy Stewart, Community Engagement Division, Saanich Police. It was arranged to contact Sgt. Stewart if anything happened out of the ordinary. The Saanich Police File number is 2017-27410. Roy Osselton advised Mandy Norton that there is an open Facebook "Fish Farms Out Now" invite for supporters. 41 people showed interested, and about 7 actually showed up. Roy Osselton emailed Mandy Norris the Facebook link for the "Fish Farms Out Now". Saanich Police visited the site. There were no issues from that.

November 16, 2017

Roy Osselton updated Mandy Norris. There is no change at the Commerce Circle protest camp and nothing at the Trans Canada Hwy Duncan Office.

November 27, 2017

Roy Osselton spoke to Sgt. Andy Stewart, Community Engagement Division. No change at Commerce Circle protest camp. It was agreed that Sgt. Andy Stewart would call weekly for an update.

November 28, 2017

The Saanich Police were called to the site by the Property Management Company but they were not removed. Police are reassessing the situation as it is now a sanitation issue. (RO Event Report ProtestCamp3)

November 29, 2017

An updated event report was created and by Roy Osselton: Sign-age on shelter and associated tent reads "We Stand With Namgis & Musgamagw Fish Farms Occupations, Fish Farms Out Now! Wild Protect Sockeye. <https://www.facebook.com/events/130996970936940/>

There were two female campers; [REDACTED] There are daily visitors to the site. No washroom facilities on site. [REDACTED] said they go to the Red Barn Market or get picked up by vehicle for bathroom use. A female was observed by a Commerce Circle property tenant going to the bathroom in the treed area behind the warehouse. This was at 5am Monday morning. (RO ProtestCamp3)

December 7, 2017

C&P were alerted to plans for a rally at the DFO office that is scheduled for December 14, 2017 at 12:00pm. FO Cormie contacted Saanich PD's lead investigator for this file, Sgt Andy Stuart. She alerted him to the upcoming protest and learned that they did not have plans to attend at this point.

FO's Cormie and Osselton met with [REDACTED] one of the protesters associated with the tent erected next to the DFO warehouse. FO's learned that she had had a meeting with the property owner (possibly property manager), but she was not made aware of any sanitation concerns. She explained to the FO's that they are picked up in the morning and the afternoon/evenings every day to use facilities elsewhere. She was protesting in order to have the aquaculture permits revoked. She also wants to bring more awareness to the issue so that hopefully new solutions can be considered for fish farming practices.

December 14, 2017

A rally in support of the protest took place at the DFO office in Victoria with about 75 people in attendance according to Saanich PD. No police issues were encountered. (Saanich PD Analyst email)

A sign was posted on C&P's front door stating "All eyes on you! -Love Department of Wild Salmon".(MC Event Report 5)

December 15, 2017:

The camp remained in place by the DFO warehouse. A protest supporter approached the DFO office and spoke with Fishery Officer Gord Adams. He wanted information about fish farm authorization, Wild Salmon Policy, legislation information and wanted to speak with an aquaculture contact.

Saanich Police was contacted.

MC Event Report_Protest camp5

Fishery Officer Cormie heard back from Sgt. Stuart of Saanich PD. He informed FO Cormie that the property owner, [REDACTED] initially spoke with the protesters about two weeks ago and they mutually agreed that the protesters would leave after two weeks. Saanich was waiting to hear back [REDACTED] likely tomorrow at the earliest, to see what his thoughts are on the matter of the campers remaining on the property now that it's been two weeks. They would come up with a plan from there. (MC Dec. 15 email)

December 18, 2017:

New Facebook post - ...At the request of the DFO, last week, the owner of the property at 4356 Commerce Circle, where the DFO offices are located, demanded that the Wild Salmon Matriarch Camp be taken down and vacate the premises or be subject to arrest for trespassing. Police are expected on site Monday, December 18th. ...Supporters are being asked to make themselves available on shift all day to witness and protest the possible arrest...

(MC Event Report Update 6)

December 19, 2017:

Saanich Police Department arrested one protester, the main representative of the camp at the Victoria DFO office. The protesters later took down the camp next to DFO's warehouse. The protest rep indicated that she may come back to the property in front of DFO's front doors to continue the protest. The protester intended to set up a new camp on municipal property adjacent to the property on which DFO's office/warehouse are located. (Saanich PD)

A group of approximately 11 people stood near the street above the DFO office and chanted in protest. They also yelled through the window at one of the C&P employees.

Facebook posts were created regarding the protester's arrest and there were plans to continue to protest at various times in front of DFO in the future. They will be posting times. Other Facebook posts show support for the protester who was arrested and in support of removal of open net fish pens in the Broughton Archipelago area. They encourage supporters to bring their concerns to various political representatives.

December 20, 2017

No camp was observed near the DFO office.

January 15th, 2018

2018-01-15 10:00 hours

At approximately 10:00 hour's 4 first nations people attended 4250 Commerce Circle and were drumming and dancing in the front of the Victoria Office. FO Ludlow spoke [REDACTED] [REDACTED] and asked what her intentions were. She verbally informed FO Ludlow that "her tent was en route and she is going to camp in front of the doors. FO Ludlow provided [REDACTED] with a sheet of paper with the Aquaculture contact information on it and her business card. FO Ludlow informed [REDACTED] that Aquaculture is not managed in this office.

January 16th, 2018

Protesters drummed and.....-need someone to provide info who was in the office that day

January 17th, 2018

Three people arrived sometime around 8:15AM and 2 of them drummed/sang loudly in front of the entrance doors facing out into the parking lot through to 11:00AM. A few other people came and went. They have erected a small sign in the garden to the right of the door and there are currently 2-3 people sitting in chars to the right of the doorway.

January 18th, 2018

At approximately 08:00 hours [REDACTED] observed looping metal chain around the front doors to the Office located at 4250 Commerce Circle. A padlock was observed being pushed closed connected to the chains.

FO Cormie contacted Saanich Police Department to inform them that the front door was chained shut.

FO Ludlow spoke with FO Tompkins to obtain advice on what to do. He advised her to send all non-essential staff away and secure all Protected Information and firearms.

FO Ludlow spoke with the Director of Conservation and Protection, Michael Carlson who advised her to have all staff leaves the location.

Saanich police attended 4250 Commerce Circle [REDACTED]

Hello all,

Please find attached a screenshot of a status update posted [REDACTED] It looks like she [REDACTED] [REDACTED] will be together as of Friday, February 21, 2018. It is noted that these two women were arrested when they chained the front door shut at the Victoria office. There is no indication that they are planning a protest but there is always the potential since [REDACTED] has made it clear that she wants her day in court since her mischief charges were dropped.

Hi Mandy,

are RHQ or NHQ developing a plan for the future, should the protest activity continue? It is not fair to the local C&P office to bear the brunt of the associated disruptions without someone from higher up the chain planning to address this. We can provide on the ground information, but we shouldn't be the ones to resolve this, as it has little to do with us at a local C&P level. This is causing a serious impact on us locally, especially since we aren't even able to work out of the office now.

Thank you,

So I spoke with Linda, who spoke with Mike Carlson. We will be working away from the office at least for this week.

I am not Sean or Iara's supervisor so I don't know how this applies to them. But this is what our direction is.

Linda has asked the prosecutor to put his conversation with the protester in writing for Rebecca Reid and for Ottawa. This is where we are at now. There is concern because DFO has no interest in speaking with the protesters at this time.

[REDACTED]

I will keep you guys apprised as I learn things and please keep me up to date after you do drive bys of the office.

Thanks for your patience everybody.

Hi Nitasha,

You already have the below update from Sgt. Julie Fast (Saanich PD Intel Section co-ordinator) below, but please note she corrected us [REDACTED] We should highlight that in the Bulletin, as C&P staff in Victoria [REDACTED]

Beyond that – I am sending out a separate cover email re: where some of this info should be getting to. [REDACTED]

I won't belabour it more than that, but I am trying to get this important info where it likely needs to go. I've cc'd you in the email for you awareness.

Hi Jo,

I can't provide a copy of our police report...that would have to be a request through our FOI coordinator at FOI@saanichpolice.ca<<mailto:FOI@saanichpolice.ca>>.

[REDACTED]

Their first court appearance was set for the beginning of this week but after reviewing all the circumstances of the case, Crown did not believe that Criminal Code charges were appropriate and would not help to resolve the over-riding dispute. It is their opinion that DFO should be seeking a civil injunction (as you already know).

[REDACTED]

As far as our involvement from this point on, patrol will be responsible for responding to any calls for service. Sgt. Andy Stuart was acting as our liaison officer [REDACTED] I am continually monitoring things from my desk and have prepared an information package for our patrol officers in the event that they are required.

And when staff is back on Commerce Circle, please direct them to call our non-emergency line, 250-475-4321, if they require non-urgent police assistance, and 911 if there is an immediate need for police (such as chained doors). Each time they call, a new file will be generated which will help track how things are going.

Let me know if you need anything as we move forward,

Hi Julie,

We (DFO/NFIS) are working on an assessment of protest activities which have occurred at the Victoria DFO office [REDACTED] [REDACTED] were arrested 18 JAN 2018 for mischief (chaining up the main front entry of the DFO building with DFO staff inside).

I've cc'd our DFO NFIS intelligence analyst working on this Nitasha.

Would it be possible to obtain the police report from those arrests or a summary/notes from Saanich police of events from that day?

DFO, NFIS and Security branches, are doing assessments for our decision makers re: threats and escalations from the protestors (the arrested ones and others).

Shorthand – we believe there's a strong likelihood that [REDACTED] others will return; [REDACTED]

I also wanted to make sure I am sharing back to your agency, as arrests for criminal behaviours fall on Saanich PD officers. DFO believes the threat is strong enough that staff were moved out of the office for this entire week.

I apologize for not having been down to an Intel meeting in quite some time – I am working on obtaining a vehicle for March's meeting.

Thanks,

Jo

Good Morning,

I have spoken with my staff and we all share the same concerns. These specific protesters are very unorganized and unpredictable. They have not attended the office this week. These protest activities are not going to stop anytime in the near future. We all believe that we are well prepared to deal with whatever comes at us next as it happens. We would all very much like to return to the office on Monday and get on with our business. We have had a good week in the field, but need to get back into the office in order to continue our operations.

We have organized marine mammal training in Victoria Monday and Tuesday with Gen and science. Can we continue with this? We require access to the office and warehouse in order to prepare for this.

Can we return to the office at 0700 on Monday? And can Mya drop her duty gear there tonight after the CSSP patrol? Providing no one is around?

No indications of protests being planned today/this weekend (Nitasha and I agree). Nitasha did point out to bear in mind that the protestors at the Victoria end of the Island do not often relay their plans in social media in advance, they tend to show up and then invite others to support them. ██████████ indicated that they were going to be 'reunited' today, which is not a lot of information ██████████ has routinely been on trips away from their "Matriarch Camp" at Premier Horgan's office, ██████████ appears to remain there full time.

Subject: potential conference call regarding sca protest activity

I was speaking with NFIS and DJ Lawrence this morning regarding the latest information about protest activity at the DFO Victoria Office. There isn't any indication of protests today or over the weekend and it is not likely we will receive any notice. C&P staff are resuming normal operations at the Victoria office on Monday Feb 26

I suggest we have a SCA and Aquaculture C&P conference call as soon as possible to discuss the current status of protests and discuss our expectations of staff in the event of protest activity. For sites, I have put together the following information. It is rough and I am still running it by DJ Lawrence but I think it will be useful.

For the aquaculture operations plan, maybe we can emphasize expected actions as well. There still seems to be some uncertainty as to what is expected of staff and what is expected of the police.

With an information call, I think we can clarify expectations and dispel any rumours. Thoughts?? I further propose we invite Johanna Jenkins as our area intelligence officer.

Last step is for me to follow up with Mike, as he has spoken to Rebecca about support from NHQ to solve or help solve these situations as the protesters are seeking resolutions that are out of our power to give.

Draft agenda for call (in no particular order)

1. Status of protest activity at DFO Victoria Office

- b. Current status
 - c. Tactical intelligence
 - d. Expectations of staff
 - e. Future planning – narrative development, NHQ support, injunction, owner requesting trespass charges or further mischief
2. Status of protest activity at aquaculture sites (by site)

Hi Jo,

I just watched the video. I agree that there is definite risk of the protest movement increasing given that they all seem to be getting together.

I apologize that I haven't responded right away. [REDACTED]

Thanks,

[REDACTED] posted video to "Swanson Occupation" FB page, time stamped approx. 11:00 hrs on 21 FEB 2018 – urging watchers to go to politicians to speak against fish farms.

[REDACTED] also stated, "...we're not going to go anywhere". In the video [REDACTED] appears to be at the dock on Swanson Island, across from the Swanson Island Marine Harvest Aquaculture site.

<https://www.facebook.com/GETTHEFISHFARMSOUT/videos/2012094855731619/>

[REDACTED] posted a video on her FB account, which was also shared to "Swanson Occupation" FB page, time stamped approx. 11:00 hrs on 22 FEB 2018 – in the video she gives watches a synopsis of the controversy about salmon farming (her point of view) and challenges the fish aquaculture industry to a debate, any of their scientists against just her in a debate. She advises that She also urges all watchers to contact local MLA's often to give thoughts about whether fish farm tenures should be renewed or to contact BC Premier John Horgan.

Note also – Saanich PD (I fwd'd you email Nitasha under separate cover) corrected info for us:

We should make sure Derek/Jason are aware that Saanich PD would like to be kept looped in as well, as they must respond to any criminality that results from protests at the DFO Office.

Continued indications that the movement is not showing signs of going quiet.

Hi Murray, Derek and Jason,

Please see the information from Sgt. Julie Fast (Saanich PD Intel section coordinator) in the email below mine. There are a couple points of concern here, which are outside of what NFIS coordinates or would typically advise about in our correct roles within NFIS.

However, I think it is important to pass these on to the correct channels in DFO and C&P, which include, but are perhaps not limited to:

- Mya Cormie / Mandy Ludlow / Linda Higgins (C&P Victoria responsibilities, staff safety responsibilities);
 - Mike Carlson / Laura Brown (SC Area Director) / Andrew Thompson (DFO reporting responsibilities; building closure responsibilities)
 - DFO Security (DJ Lawrence is Acting Manager) ; RPSS – Lisa Kerr
 - Jay Fulks (RCMP Liaise / advisor)
 - Rebecca Reid (RDG Pacific Region)
 - Possibly others ?

And the concerns are:

- [REDACTED] arrested for mischief after chaining shut and physically blocking the Victoria DFO Office doors) has expressed she will have to escalate the profile of her cause again, as her mischief charges were dropped by the Provincial prosecutor;
 - [REDACTED]. Further details are not available.
- There appears to have been a miscommunication (non-DFO in nature, but heavily implies DFO involvement) [REDACTED] a federal prosecutor was offering her a meeting to be set up between DFO staff [REDACTED] plus any other persons [REDACTED] wished at the meeting. 2 corrections have come forth about that:
 1. The prosecutor who spoke [REDACTED] about this topic was the Provincial prosecutor who dropped the mischief charges against her; there was no federal prosecutor involved and no prosecutor representing DFO (information relayed to IO Jenkins by SCA C&P Chief);
 2. To SCA C&P's knowledge, no such offer by DFO has been made.
 - Therefore there is potential and a high likelihood that [REDACTED] other protestors may escalate in dangerous behaviours in the event they request such meeting to proceed with DFO and DFO doesn't participate, even though the Dept. has made no offer and was not aware the impression of an offer had introduced by a Provincial prosecution representative.
- There appear to have been gaps in communications to C&P Aquaculture and possibly other DFO staff (unverified) in Campbell River, whose offices present equally tempting targets for protest activities; the assessment of temptation and likelihood of protests to develop at Campbell River C&P offices is due to history of protestors attending at various Aquaculture company headquarters in Campbell River and an established history of associates of Campbell River area protestors [REDACTED] targeting the Victoria DFO office in a manner which posed safety concerns for DFO staff.
- Additionally, [REDACTED] keeps expressing in social media that if things do not change to his group's demands, 'something' will escalate.
[REDACTED]

So. From this point, where should these concerns and information be going? I have expressed to C&P staff, RCMP and Saanich PD that I am not the correct conduit for conversations about next actions for DFO, only the correct conduit for receiving information so Nitasha and I can stay apprised of ongoing protests and any effects for C&P and DFO.

Please advise.

Hi Jo,

I can't provide a copy of our police report...that would have to be a request through our FOI coordinator at <mailto:FOI@saanichpolice.ca>. [REDACTED]

Their first court appearance was set for the beginning of this week but after reviewing all the circumstances of the case, Crown did not believe that Criminal Code charges were appropriate and would not help to resolve the over-riding dispute. It is their opinion that DFO should be seeking a civil injunction (as you already know). [REDACTED]

As far as our involvement from this point on, patrol will be responsible for responding to any calls for service. Sgt. Andy Stuart was acting as our liaison officer [REDACTED] I am continually monitoring things from my desk and have prepared an information package for our patrol officers in the event that they are required.

And when staff is back on Commerce Circle, please direct them to call our non-emergency line, 250-475-4321, if they require non-urgent police assistance, and 911 if there is an immediate need for police (such as chained doors). Each time they call, a new file will be generated which will help track how things are going.

Let me know if you need anything as we move forward,

Julie

Hi Julie,

We (DFO/NFIS) are working on an assessment of protest activities which have occurred at the Victoria DFO office [REDACTED] [REDACTED] were arrested 18 JAN 2018 for mischief (chaining up the main front entry of the DFO building with DFO staff inside).

I've cc'd our DFO NFIS intelligence analyst working on this Nitasha.

Would it be possible to obtain the police report from those arrests or a summary/notes from Saanich police of events from that day? DFO, NFIS and Security branches, are doing assessments for our decision makers re: threats and escalations from the protestors (the arrested ones and others).

Shorthand – we believe there's a strong likelihood that [REDACTED] others will return; [REDACTED]

I also wanted to make sure I am sharing back to your agency, as arrests for criminal behaviours fall on Saanich PD officers. DFO believes the threat is strong enough that staff were moved out of the office for this entire week.

I apologize for not having been down to an Intel meeting in quite some time – I am working on obtaining a vehicle for March's meeting.

Thanks,

Impact Statement – Protestors on Farm Sites

The Aquaculture conditions of licence and Health Management Plan serves to ensure good fish health and welfare conditions. The licence holder commits to complying with principles, concepts and required elements contained within the above documents, and DFO fish health staff audit this compliance. Disease causing agents may be spread by infected fish (wild or cultured) through the water, direct contact between fish, fecal-oral, vertically or via fomites (e.g. vessels, equipment, personnel, and visitors). The biosecurity measures in place on farm sites serve to reduce the risk of transmission of pathogens and require the cleaning and disinfection of everything entering or exiting the farm which may contact, or have contacted, fish. Consequences of not following strict biosecurity protocols as outlined in the Fisheries and Oceans finfish aquaculture conditions of licence and accompanying health management plans will put the fish on the farms at risk of exposure to pathogens resulting disease.

On December 1, 2017, three sites in the Broughton archipelago (Burdwood, Wicklow and Potts Bay) were boarded by protestors, Potts Bay being a brood stock facility. Kayaks and divers from the protest group were placed inside the fish pens; protestors also captured live salmon for photo and video opportunities. Bringing marine vessels, kayaks, personnel and divers to an aquaculture facility and into a pen full of fish without following the company's biosecurity protocols, has increased the risk of pathogen introduction and disease onto the sites. Within pen activities by the protestors induces stress in the fish, the most serious of which is needless netting and handling without using sedation or anaesthesia to address the stress and welfare concerns..

Not confirmed but suspected, the protestors travelled between one company's production facilities to another company's brood facility. The potential pathogen introduction in the face of stress-induced immunosuppression are impacts of disease outbreaks for each of the farms, potentially the neighbouring farms, and in the case of Potts Bay, the germline of that company's brood stock program which, depending on the disease could risk infection in the egg and in turn, dissemination of disease to all farms that the progeny are transferred to.

Nicole – FYI below. I meant to include you, apologies for missing you on the mail list.
FYI for all 4 of you – I briefly advised Radio Room of date and time protestors may be at DFO Victoria, in case RR gets reports (from other PD, from public, etc.) or if C&P staff need sudden or urgent RR support. In past it did not seem very relevant to include RR as we did not have advance indications of protestors showing up (this time we do) and of course the criminal element/arrestable offence only came about recently in January 2018.

FYI, change in status for Victoria DFO office:

Detachment Supervisor Mandy Ludlow advised [REDACTED] posted a video to her Facebook account today (26 FEB 2018) indicating she intends to return with the "Matriarch Camp" to the Victoria DFO Office (4250 Commerce Circle) starting on Wednesday, 28 FEB 2018 @ 0900-1500 hrs. "every day" "...and holding space for wild salmon".

- The video indicates [REDACTED] is aware of and unhappy with Marine Harvest activities currently taking place at the Swanson Island aquaculture fish farm site in the Broughton Archipelago area, where [REDACTED] continuing with other protestors in an 'occupation' of Swanson Island near the Marine Harvest facility.
- [REDACTED] states unhappiness that (she believes) tenures are being renewed and that "they are trying to restock trying to go after Swanson this very week".
- [REDACTED] actually states date for return to DFO Victoria will be on "Wednesday March first" which is an incorrect date; but she repeats the use of the word Wednesday so it is likely she means Wednesday 28 FEB 2018.

s.19(1)

- She encourages and calls for other protestors to join her/others and further advises there will be different kinds of "efforts around BC on Friday at least two (2) that I know of" and of "a solidarity action" which "involves the DFO"; but no further details. Friday is 02 MAR 2018.
- The concern in the lack of details is that [REDACTED] at the DFO Victoria building and their past behaviour indicates a pattern of escalation well past peaceful protest.
- The video does not indicate [REDACTED] intends on peaceful protest or further mischief/illegal or unsafe actions at the DFO office site. It is implied in the video [REDACTED] is encouraging a lengthy stay at the DFO location, she invites other protestors to bring chairs and hot packs.

For review, [REDACTED] one of the 2 protestors arrested for chaining shut the door at the Victoria DFO office on January 18, 2018.

- The charges of mischief were dropped and so at present there are no conditions [REDACTED] which prevent them from returning to the DFO Victoria office.
- DFO Victoria staff should be on alert regarding Tuesday 27 FEB 2018 [REDACTED] do not necessarily post all their plans to social media (there is a risk of them showing up earlier than they announced, since they use social media to provoke responses and they are aware that law enforcement is watching their social media).
- It is highly likely that [REDACTED] will return to the DFO Victoria office with [REDACTED] other protestors.

Protestor [REDACTED] also posted a video to Facebook this afternoon (26 FEB 2018), expressing his unhappiness with what he describes as a "giant red feed barge" at the Marine Harvest Swanson Island site and that he calls this intentional ignorance of their demand to not re-stock this fish farm. [REDACTED] advises Marine Harvest is not hearing their "call and warning" to not restock. [REDACTED]

0900 this Wed. March 1, 2018 protestors are planning to return to DFO Victoria office. Online FB video [REDACTED] speaking of plans to "hold space again at the DFO"..."here in Victoria..." "I think its 4250 Calmers Circle..." (she has the street name wrong in video, but the gist of it is there). There's talk of an "extra action" planned for Friday involving the DFO as well. [REDACTED] indicates she is seeking others to rally with her/the Matriarch Camp.

I noted this AM that an update from the Matriarch Camp on FB ('MC' [REDACTED] calls it) that one of their large canopy tents was destroyed, the tent used to protect their other camping out assets and smaller tents; they were seeking donations on FB to procure another one. I had thought that perhaps that meant they would have been otherwise busy today. Perhaps it is just an opportune time for them to move the camp anyway.

I will share this to Saanich PD Intel Section. Blair/Todd/Rowan/Heike would you please share with RCMP at MSOC, just as FYI (Saanich PD will be the lead PD on this).

I don't want to speak to C&P Region's end of business, but Director Carlson and Area Director Laura Brown should be advised, as well as Aquaculture Chief Claire Doucette/Joe Knight/Greg Plummer. As well the landlord, DFO Security and RPSS. Linda Higgins may already be taking care of this, I'm not in contact with her as she is not in office here today. I will send her a brief email to find out.

Cheers,
Jo

I think we have to be careful not to underplay the safety risk of staff being IN the Victoria office should it get chained again which they are at work (or any other action which blockades staff from exiting). That is not just an operational inconvenience in the event of an emergency (fire, earthquake, tsunami, heart attack, any medical emergency occurring inside the building) that blocking of doors could cause injury, even severe injury or death.

The operational and security concerns are secondary to the safety concerns. [REDACTED] they too would not panic in the event of an emergency such that they would not forget or neglect to undo the harm of locking doors before leaving the property themselves.

I have added these key assumption into the assessment. Let me know if they sound okay...or if you would like to remove/add anymore.

Thanks!

KEY ASSUMPTIONS:

- [REDACTED]
- The open source information collected from social media platforms belong to the key players and depicts an accurate representation of the protestors' intentions.
- Operational capacity of the DFO Victoria office would be impeded if the key players attempted to chain the front door shut again. Rather, it may be just an inconvenience as employees can still work but may be displaced into other locations.
- It is assumed that the DFO Victoria office will continue to be considered a target despite the fact that aquaculture is not even managed within this office due to the key players' mobility issues and access to the media.
- It is assumed that the Reconciliation of Rights Framework and its implementation have not affected the protest plans for the key players.

Hi Nitasha,

This is shaping up nicely. The only thing I would add, per the IRB form, is a section on Key Assumptions, either at the end or beginning.

List any key assumptions that your findings depend on for example:

1. Open source information depict accurate representation of the protestors' intentions
2. The subjects have the capacity and organizational support to provoke a police response, etc.

Now that I think about, do you know if either of the subjects been involved in protest activity that resulted in their arrest and court proceedings? Open source or Canlii matches?

Thanks Mandy, that was timely. I checked this AM and before lunch and it had been quiet; good catch on this.

Are you (or Mya/Linda) able to answer if this info has been shared with any of:

- Saanich PD (I can take care of passing it on to Saanich Intel if not, they are already working up a folder of info for their Officers potentially dealing with this)
- Mike Carlson
- Jay Fulks
- RPSS/Lisa Kerr
- DFO Security (DJ Lawrence is acting manager)
- Director Laura Brown
- C&P Aquaculture/Claire Doucette/Joe Knight/Greg Plummer (even 1 of them)
- Andrew Isles (RCMP Sgt. Coordinating the info sharing for RCMP-DFO up island at the Swanson end; I can update him and Alert Bay RCMP Sgt. Colin Cook if you like, they are part of weekly DFO updates about this topic).

Just seeking to have clarity on who is already looped in and who may yet need advising.
Nitasha is polishing off the draft Bulletin about this,

Just a yes or no on each would suffice. Thanks!

It has been another quiet week for aquaculture. The Monday February 26 meeting will be cancelled. JF will be in Quebec City.

I am circulating last week's list and ask that any issues that should be in the hot list or among aquaculture's top 3 for this week be flagged and any updates to the ongoing management items be provided. Aquaculture Issues Management List

February 26, 2018

Hot Issues  = Hot topic

On-going Management Issue Update

Pacific Caucus recommendations to transition to closed-containment finfish production for British Columbia

- The Liberal Pacific Caucus sent a set of recommendations to Minister Leblanc (dated December 6, 2017) regarding transitioning to closed-containment finfish production for British Columbia [REDACTED] A communications approach is also proposed by the caucus.
 - The Pacific Caucus recommendations were heard by the national Liberal Caucus this week. It is not known at this time how the recommendations were received.
 - British Columbia represents approximately 51% of the total Canadian aquaculture production. [REDACTED]
- There are already many FN's that support marine aquaculture in BC, with 20 formal agreements with first nations covering approximately 75% of production. Only in the Broughton Archipelago is there deep disagreement. This policy change would impose the results of a disagreement in one small area onto the entire province.
 - There are currently no commercial scale land-based Atlantic salmon production facilities operating at a profit in the world - and none above 1,000 tonne harvest. Currently, BC production is just under 100,000 tonnes. Various economic models (including DFO's) indicate the economics are tenuous at best, and very sensitive to externalities beyond the control of the operator.
 - The overall proposed approach fails to take into consideration the big picture of what is affecting all aquatic populations globally and the aim of reducing environmental impacts is misleading; land-based closed containment simply shifts the environmental impacts from local to more global. Life-cycle analysis shows that salmon raised in net-pens are the most efficient and environmental major protein source (30% less than chicken which is #2). DFO's peer-reviewed risk assessments indicate a low overall risk to the health of wild salmon in BC from farmed Atlantic salmon, at least from a disease perspective.

Washington State Senate Bill Banning Salmon Aquaculture Passed

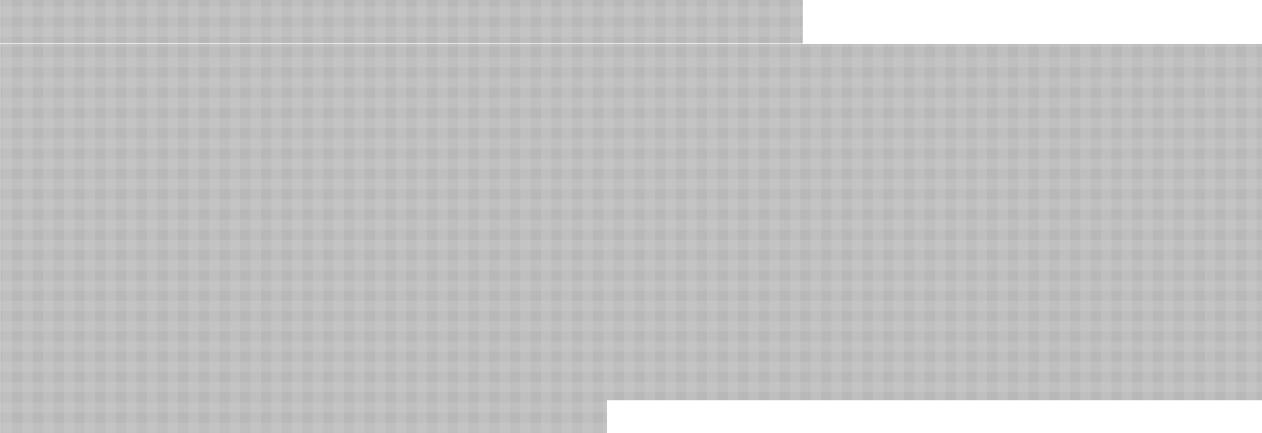

- A bill calling for a ban on salmon farms in Washington State passed in the senate February 8. If approved by the House, Atlantic salmon net-pen farming in Washington will end after current leases expire by 2025.
- The bill follows the August 19 collapse of a net-pen farm owned by Cooke Aquaculture of New Brunswick. The collapse allowed tens of thousands of Atlantic salmon to escape into Puget Sound, raising fears they would stress wild native salmon or otherwise contaminate the marine environment in Washington and British Columbia.
- The public debate in Washington may add support to the BC Liberal Caucus' recommendation to transition salmon aquaculture to land-based production.

s.21(1)(b)

Aquaculture Issues Management List

February 26, 2018

- DFO will be meeting with ENGO groups, [REDACTED] in the coming weeks to discuss possible amendments to FGR s56 as part of the Department's efforts to engage on aquaculture regulatory and legislative reform. It is expected that [REDACTED] the upcoming meeting may generate negative comments in the media and social media regarding DFO's approach to fish health and proposal to amend FGR s56.

Investigation and Panel Review of the Cooke Aquaculture 2017 Cypress Island Net Pen Failure

- On January 30, 2018 a report on the investigation and panel review of the 2017 Cooke Aquaculture's Washington State Cypress Island Net Pen Failure was released.
- Fisheries and Oceans Canada is currently reviewing the investigation and panel review report on the Cooke Aquaculture escape in Washington State.
- DFO's Pacific Aquaculture Regulations and Conditions of Licence for Aquaculture have been implemented and enforced to mitigate the risks raised by the report in the area of biofouling and structural integrity of the cages and associated infrastructure.

Aquaculture Science Advisory Panel

- February 2, Minister announced that he has asked Canada's Chief Science Advisor, Dr. Mona Nemer, to lead an independent expert panel on aquaculture science.
- The panel is to provide recommendations on the use of science related to aquaculture decisions in protecting the marine environment both on how departmental science should be best communicated and how it is used in decision making.
- We are expecting proposed revisions to the Terms of Reference from Dr. Nemer's office shortly. These will be finalized shortly after. As well, a list of suggested experts has been shared with Dr. Nemer's office. A staff person has been identified to provide support to Dr. Nemer. CAIA has also suggested names which were provided directly to the Panel.
- We have received inquiries on the panel from CFIA, CAIA and the provinces of Quebec and British Columbia. No major concerns have been raised to date.
- We are in the process of preparing briefing materials for an anticipated first round of briefings with the Chief Science Advisor.

Provincial and First Nations Meeting on Finfish Aquaculture in the Broughton Archipelago

- On January 30, 2018, Ministers and senior officials of the province of British Columbia met with First Nation governments from the Broughton Archipelago in Vancouver to discuss tenure renewals in the Broughton area that are expiring in June 2018. At the request of the Province, DFO officials also attended this meeting.

Aquaculture Issues Management List

February 26, 2018

- First Nations expressed their desire for negotiations to remain between Provincial and First Nations governments and requested that DFO not participate in future meetings related to this process.
- [REDACTED] First Nation participants also requested consideration of removing sites in other areas of the province.

Aquaculture act engagement and long term vision

- CCFAM directed SMC last June [REDACTED] for consideration at CCFAM in summer 2018; this work is on track.
- CCFAM DMs met Jan. 30 to continue the conversation on federal engagement on an aquaculture act and agreed to DFO re-starting engagement sessions with SMC to be involved in their planning.
- SMC met Feb 8 to discuss engagement and a long term vision for aquaculture and are supportive of developing the long term vision within the CCFAM process.
- A new Vision doc will serve as a next generation of the ADS and will possibly be announced by Ministers at the Boston Seafood show in March 2018.

BC – Ministerial Advisory Committee on Fisheries and Aquaculture (MAACFA)

- In July, 2015, the Province announced that it would examine the rules and restrictions that guide the application and approval process to ensure that aquaculture operations are socially and ecologically sustainable and can co-exist with British Columbia's wild fishery resource.
- The Committee's report is expected early February 2018.
- DFO will be reviewing the report in detail and developing media lines (early February), as well as recommendations regarding a response to the DM/Minister in the coming weeks.

Broughton updates:

- Although occupiers remain at Swanson and Midsummer protest sites, provisions of the injunction are being respected (i.e. no trespass on tenures)

New publications and media communications with the Strategic Salmon Health Initiative (SSH)

- The Strategic Salmon Health Initiative team has completed new research that shows PRV may also play a role in the manifestation of jaundice disease in Pacific salmon, specifically wild and cultured Chinook salmon.
- The research findings are expected to be submitted for publication in an international peer-reviewed journal within the next month. If accepted, renewed media and public attention can be expected.
- In response to the Hakai article on the viral disease diagnostic panel, two aquaculture magazines, Aquaculture North America and Fish Farming Expert based in Edinburgh, Scotland have picked up the story and inquired with Dr. Miller-Saunders about potential applications towards early disease detection on farms. The Pacific Region's Molecular Genetics Group has responded that we have developed two new technologies that enhance our ability to detect pathogens and diseases with a high degree of sensitivity that do not necessarily require destructive sampling.
- Dr. Miller was also interviewed last fall for an article that will come out in May 2018 in Coast Mountain Culture magazine- topics to include social issues raised by First Nations and the science being undertaken to understand risk to wild salmon.

CAIA Submission on Health Canada Fee Increase Proposal for Drugs and Medical Devices

- CAIA provided comment (Jan. 3) to Health Canada's public consultation on veterinary fees under the Food and Drugs Act. CAIA intends to raise their concerns with Minister LeBlanc.
- CAIA proposes that Fisheries and Oceans and Health Canada lobby for sufficient funding to implement a federal minor use minor species (MUMS) program. Until that time, CAIA proposes that VDD should be flexible and waive portions of the application fees for MUMS products.

Grieg Newfoundland Environmental Assessment

- In July 2016 Newfoundland Minister of Municipal Affairs and Environment initially released the Grieg project from further environmental assessment (EA). The Atlantic Salmon Federation successfully appealed, compelling the Minister to require an Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) by the proponent.
- The legal decision requiring conducting of an EA is currently being appealed by the Province of Newfoundland and the proponent. Arguments were heard on December 14 and 15, 2017.

Independent Review of the DFO Fish Health Audit and Surveillance Program

Subject: Tomorrow

Hi Lara,

We'll operate as usual tomorrow, but will be keeping the front doors locked. Nothing too new out of the phone call, but there's a new event on social media for the protest tomorrow at our office, so there may be more people protesting tomorrow than usual. I'll be away, but it wouldn't hurt to give Mandy or one of the others a call before coming in to make sure all is well.

Have a good night!

Required Attendees: DFO.R PAC CP SCA / SCN CP PAC R.MPO; Jenkins, Johanna; Doucette, Claire (Claire.Doucette@dfo-mpo.gc.ca); Lawrence, DJ

This call will be open to all SCA staff for the purposes of updating staff on protestors actions to date at the Victoria Commerce Street Office. We will also discuss future actions, preparation and answer questions.

I have attached a procedure document that has also been vetted and approved by DJ Lawrence.

Below is advice we have received from 604-666-2054 Donnaree Nygard
Nygard, Donnaree donnaree.nygard@justice.gc.ca She is DFO counsel

s.23

If you hear of an impending protest at your office, please initiate the following procedures as outlined by RPSS:

1. Ensure all staff are aware of the situation and ask them to practice increased vigilance - to be on the alert for suspicious activity
2. Remind staff not to leave doors and windows open and unlocked, to ensure doors closely properly behind them, and not to let strangers tailgate in behind them.
3. Do not permit members of the public access to operational zones.
4. If there are indications or suspicions of an immediate threat of a sit-in or occupation, lock perimeter doors to lockout the reception zone. Permit access only to employees and trusted visitors.
5. Advise all staff on site of an immediate threat; call local police and notify the Operational Commander. Initiate building emergency plan and if necessary Business Resumption plan
6. If the building is on lockdown, do not open perimeter doors to speak to suspected protesters or unknown visitors - who may then try to force or wedge themselves in. Ask them their intended purpose through the door or window and calmly explain that the building is on lockdown and only employees are allowed in at this time.
7. Sanitize the public reception zone such that is free from chairs, flagpoles etc., as well as any internal memos, staff directory listings or contact numbers.
8. Ensure visitors and un-cleared contractors are escorted at all times and register them in a sign-in/sign-out sheet.
9. Reschedule any upcoming meetings with new visitors/clients or visitors/clients of unknown reliability to a teleconference.
10. Ensure staff have their ID cards and building access passes ready for inspection and visible.
11. If possible, challenge individuals who you do not recognize in the building. If possible, ask them if they are looking for someone or if they need help locating a room. Report the incident.
12. Advise staff to report any attempts of unauthorized entry, the presence of unattended briefcases, bags or parcels in or around the building, and any suspicious activity, vehicles and/or persons in or around the building to a supervisor or security staff.
13. Consider hiring Commissionaire Guard staff to enhance short-term security.
14. Call 9-11 if there is an emergency or threat to safety or property.
15. Call 9-11 if there is a sit-in protest or occupation.

If there is a protest at your building and it is peaceful and not impeding access, initiate the following procedures:

- Contact the protester(s) and start a conversation to find out their cause and purpose. Try to estimate size, identity of individuals, leaders, and any other factors that give you information about intention and sophistication
- Complete an event report and submit ASAP, https://intra-l01.ent.dfo-mpo.ca/sites/pacific/conservationandprotection/documents/sops/sop_event_reportin g_template.pdf the event report should be completed and sent to the appropriate distribution list using the hyper links at the bottom of the form. The distribution list includes the area detachment supervisors, area intelligence officer, area chief and area director. From there, the area chief will forward it out to the area chiefs and to the operational members of RMC

- contact RPSS – Noel Taylor so she can contact the building owner if leased and take care of any other building issues
- contact the police of jurisdiction to advise and provide any information, especially if there are safety concerns such as impeding roadways or in case of any escalation
- review business resumption plan
- complete HOIR if applicable <https://intra-l01.ent.dfo-mpo.ca/sites/pacific/ssesd/healthandsafety/hoir-wcb/hoir-mainpage-eng.php>

If there is a protest at your building and it is not peaceful, impedes access or there is criminal behaviour:

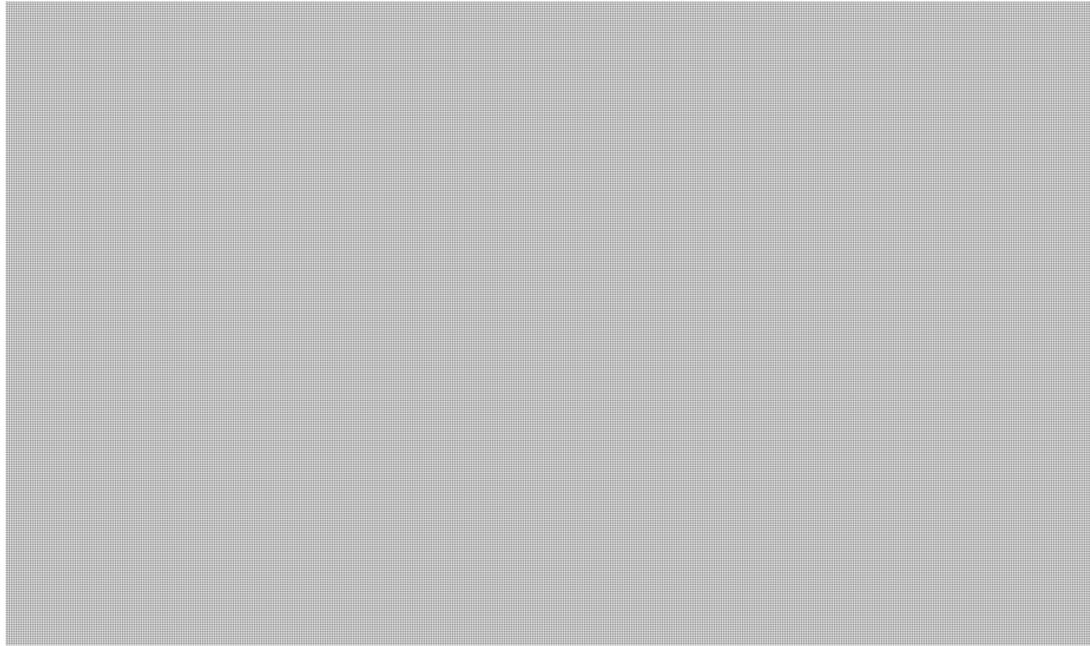

- call 911 immediately
- Make safe exit from the building if possible and if not stay in the building. If you are able to safely exit the building, activate the business resumption plan
- Secure assets and equipment if you are safely able to do so
- contact your supervisor immediately and relay details about activity and size and any other details
- complete HOIR <https://intra-l01.ent.dfo-mpo.ca/sites/pacific/ssesd/healthandsafety/hoir-wcb/hoir-mainpage-eng.php>
- complete security incident report form <https://intra-l01.ent.dfo-mpo.ca/sites/pacific/ssesd/security/secforms/secincident.pdf>

Subject: Victoria Office Protest

Good Afternoon,

I just wanted to let you both know that I had a conference call with SCA C&P staff to update them on the Victoria Commerce Circle Protest activities. We discussed the history, procedures, narrative for any potential injunction and future intelligence. It appears protesters will be returning to the Victoria DFO office tomorrow from 0900 – 1500 and continue this pattern at least until Friday if not longer.

Staff have returned to the office and will work from the office tomorrow, regardless of protester presence. We will follow the attached guidelines. If there is criminal behaviour or access is impeded, staff will contact 911 immediately.

Saanich, real property, building owner and the RCMP are aware of the latest information on protest activity for tomorrow. I have left a message for provincial Victoria crown, requesting a written letter to DFO detailing the disposition of mischief charges as well as an account of the discussion he had with the protesters and any promises he made on behalf of DFO. He contacted me this morning, but is away this afternoon. I hope to talk with him further tomorrow.

At this time, there isn't any indication of protest activity at any other SCA office.

An intelligence bulletin will be disseminated to Saanich, RCMP and Victoria C&P staff.

An event report will come out tomorrow with any new information and protest activity.

Donors to put Steve Irwin back to sea

<https://www.sunshinecoastdaily.com.au/news/donors-to-put-steve-irwin-back-to-sea/3327405/>

by Bill Hoffman 6th Feb 2018 5:00 AM

A FUNDRAISING campaign is well on the way to achieving its $200,000 target to get a conservation vessel named after the late Steve Irwin back out to sea.

Sea Shepherd has now raised more than $150,000 of the total needed to overhaul the engines on the 59m (194 foot) Motor Yacht Steve Irwin.

Originally a Scottish Protection Agency conservation enforcement vessel called the FPV Westra, it was purchased by Sea Shepherd named the Robert Hunter after a Sea Shepherd co-founder before been named after the late Crocodile Hunter in 2007.

It carries a crew of 45 and a helicopter and has been engaged in active harassment of the Japanese whaling fleet in the Antarctica as well as research work around the globe.

The fundraising campaign was bolstered by a substantial donation on January 29 this year.

Following the overhaul Sea Shepherd plans to take the M/Y Steve Irwin from its home port in Williamstown, Victoria, back to the Great Australian Bight.

An international volunteer crew will lead the expedition to put cameras below the waves to uncover more of the treasures of that richly bio-diverse ecosystem.

At the completion of the Bight expedition, the vessel and crew would set their sights on the Adani coal mine through Operation Reef Defence.

Activists at the Marine Harvest Swanson site posted video to Facebook page "Swanson Occupation" last night (27 FEB 2018) of a kayaker and a red inflatable rhib vessel with multiple passengers coming into close proximity of the aquaculture farm facility. I don't recall what distance activists/protestors are expected to remain off the fish farm (under bio security protocols and under Marine Harvest's injunction order).

The narrator of the video declares it is day 188 of the Swanson Island occupation and states they are "doing some monitoring here...they have a diver down in the net and they're checking out their nets before they're gonna restock this farm without any consent and totally against first nations wishes".

Image captures from the video attached.

On a different Facebook pages, there are statements of calls for rallies at 2 different locations on 02 MAR 2018 (Friday):

1. Vancouver, Minister George Heyman's Office – 642 Broadway, Vancouver, Friday, March 2, 2018, 1100 – 1230 hrs
2. John Horgan's constituency office on the same day, Friday, March 2, 2018, an invite extended to join [REDACTED] at that location, no times given.

Jo,

We are all in Victoria this week in meetings and will not be able to attend the call tomorrow. Our BCARP meeting is March 13 – 15 on Quadra and would like to know if you have any info of a possible protest at the lodge where we're staying. Rumours are spreading...

Thx,

ROCS paragraph – Draft

Protesters returned to C&P Victoria office

On February 28th, 2018 the protesters returned to C&P Victoria office and blocking access of the office to employees and the public. The renewed protest activities continue to be related to First Nations opposition to salmon farming activities in the Broughton Archipelago, the upcoming provincial tenure renewal decisions, and the fact that DFO has continued to authorize permits for the salmon farming companies to re-stock farms in the area. In December 2017, protesters camped out at the Victoria office for approximately 30 days until they were arrested for trespassing. In January 2018, protesters returned to the Victoria office after charges were dropped. They chained the front doors to the Victoria office closed. They were arrested and charged with criminal mischief. On February 16th, 2018 Provincial Crown and Saanich Police Department notified Victoria C&P Detachment Supervisor that they were dropping the recent charges against the protesters.

Current status is that 3 people are directly in front of the doors sitting and drumming, and 2 people are sitting in a van. Concern is for staff's safety in the office if the protesters block the front door again or gain access to the building. The back door is operational; however it is not an easy access point for anyone with a disability. Victoria C&P staff will store the vessels at IOS and conduct operations out of the Duncan C&P office if necessary. C&P is working out of the Victoria office at this time. RPSS, Communications and Saanich Police have been notified.

Incident Date and Time:

Issue:

Protesters returned to C&P Victoria office and blocking access of the office to employees and the public.

Background:

In December 2017, protesters camped out at the Victoria office for approximately 30 days until they were arrested for trespassing.

In January 2018, protesters returned to the Victoria office after charges were dropped. They chained the front doors to the Victoria office closed. They were arrested and charged with criminal mischief.

On February 16th, 2018 Provincial Crown and Saanich Police Department notified Detachment Supervisor Ludlow that they were dropping the recent charges against the protesters. Saanich police indicated that they believe the protesters will be back to conduct activity that would result in, "having a day in court". The protesters indicated to Saanich PD that they want their day in court.

Current Status:

3 people are sitting and drumming in front of the front doors, and 2 people are sitting in a van. The people drumming are standing directly in front of the front doors.

Strategic Considerations:

The Saanich PD are concerned that they will return with young children again, and do not want to conduct arrests with little children around. They are concerned that the protesters will "up" their activities to result in an arrest. These activities could include vandalism and complete blocking off of the building.

Victoria C&P staff will store the vessels at IOS and conduct operations out of the Duncan C&P office if necessary. C&P are working out of the Victoria office at this time.

Strategic Communications:	Detachment Supervisor Ludlow will inform Leri Davies. Ludlow has informed NFIS and Saanich police, via SGT.Fast.

Hi Murray, Derek and Jason,

Please see the information from Sgt. Julie Fast (Saanich PD Intel section coordinator) in the email below mine. There are a couple points of concern here, which are outside of what NFIS coordinates or would typically advise about in our correct roles within NFIS.

However, I think it is important to pass these on to the correct channels in DFO and C&P, which include, but are perhaps not limited to:

- Mya Cormie / Mandy Ludlow / Linda Higgins (C&P Victoria responsibilities, staff safety responsibilities);
- Mike Carlson / Laura Brown (SC Area Director) / Andrew Thompson (DFO reporting responsibilities; building closure responsibilities)
- DFO Security (DJ Lawrence is Acting Manager) ; RPSS – Lisa Kerr
- Jay Fulks (RCMP Liaise / advisor)
- Rebecca Reid (RDG Pacific Region)
- Possibly others ?

s.19(1)

And the concerns are:

- [REDACTED] (who was arrested for mischief after chaining shut and physically blocking the Victoria DFO Office doors) has expressed she will have to escalate the profile of her cause again, as her mischief charges were dropped by the Provincial prosecutor;
 - [REDACTED] Further details are not available.
- There appears to have been a miscommunication (non-DFO in nature, but heavily implies DFO involvement) [REDACTED] a federal prosecutor was offering her a meeting to be set up between DFO staff and [REDACTED] any other persons [REDACTED] wished at the meeting. 2 corrections have come forth about that:

1. The prosecutor who spoke [REDACTED] about this topic was the Provincial prosecutor who dropped the mischief charges against her; there was no federal prosecutor involved and no prosecutor representing DFO (information relayed to IO Jenkins by SCA C&P Chief);
 2. To SCA C&P's knowledge, no such offer by DFO has been made.
- Therefore there is potential and a high likelihood that [REDACTED] other protestors may escalate in dangerous behaviours in the event they request such meeting to proceed with DFO and DFO doesn't participate, even though the Dept. has made no offer and was not aware the impression of an offer had introduced by a Provincial prosecution representative.
- There appear to have been gaps in communications to C&P Aquaculture and possibly other DFO staff (unverified) in Campbell River, whose offices present equally tempting targets for protest activities; the assessment of temptation and likelihood of protests to develop at Campbell River C&P offices is due to history of protestors attending at various Aquaculture company headquarters in Campbell River and an established history of associates of Campbell River area protestors ([REDACTED] among others) targeting the Victoria DFO office in a manner which posed safety concerns for DFO staff.
 - Additionally, [REDACTED] keeps expressing in social media that if things do not change to his group's demands, 'something' will escalate.
[REDACTED]

So. From this point, where should these concerns and information be going? I have expressed to C&P staff, RCMP and Saanich PD that I am not the correct conduit for conversations about next actions for DFO, only the correct conduit for receiving information so Nitasha and I can stay apprised of ongoing protests and any effects for C&P and DFO.

Please advise.

Thank you,

Johanna Jenkins

Hi Jo,

I can't provide a copy of our police report...that would have to be a request through our FOI coordinator at FOI@saanichpolice.ca.

Their first court appearance was set for the beginning of this week but after reviewing all the circumstances of the case, Crown did not believe that Criminal Code charges were appropriate and would not help to resolve the over-riding dispute. It is their opinion that DFO should be seeking a civil injunction (as you already know).

As far as our involvement from this point on, patrol will be responsible for responding to any calls for service. Sgt. Andy Stuart was acting as our liaison officer [REDACTED] I am continually monitoring things from my desk and have prepared an information package for our patrol officers in the event that they are required.

And when staff is back on Commerce Circle, please direct them to call our non-emergency line, 250-475-4321, if they require non-urgent police assistance, and 911 if there is an immediate need for police (such as chained doors). Each time they call, a new file will be generated which will help track how things are going.

Let me know if you need anything as we move forward,

Julie

Hi Julie,

We (DFO/NFIS) are working on an assessment of protest activities which have occurred at the Victoria DFO office [REDACTED] [REDACTED] were arrested 18 JAN 2018 for mischief (chaining up the main front entry of the DFO building with DFO staff inside).

I've cc'd our DFO NFIS intelligence analyst working on this Nitasha.

Would it be possible to obtain the police report from those arrests or a summary/notes from Saanich police of events from that day?

DFO, NFIS and Security branches, are doing assessments for our decision makers re: threats and escalations from the protestors (the arrested ones and others).

Shorthand – we believe there's a strong likelihood that [REDACTED] others will return; her past protest behaviour escalations indicates an increased threat to DFO staff safety is very real.

I also wanted to make sure I am sharing back to your agency, as arrests for criminal behaviours fall on Saanich PD officers. DFO believes the threat is strong enough that staff were moved out of the office for this entire week.

I apologize for not having been down to an Intel meeting in quite some time – I am working on obtaining a vehicle for March's meeting.

Thanks,

Jo

8. Derek Chung, Supervisor, Intel-BC Coast

AGENDA

1. Teleconference to discuss recent events at the DFO Victoria office and roles and responsibilities.

DISCUSSION POINTS

ROUNDTABLE

1. Q&A through the Agenda
2. Issues:
 - 2.1. Business Continuity Plan
 - 2.2. Officer and other DFO staff safety at the site
 - 2.3. Linkages to aquaculture protests/ site fishery disruptions up Island re Marine Harvest Canada e.g. Swanson Island, criminal activity against MHC at other locations
 - 2.4. Understanding each other's roles and responsibilities
3. LH: This is an opportunity to sort out the info.; protesters will come back; probably escalate behaviour in order to get arrested which is a stated goal; Prov. Crown advised subject that he could arrange something i.e. discussion of issues with DFO; LH asked Crown for Letter of Disposition; DFO not going to entertain a meeting with subjects at this time as it will simply turn into a venting session and not lead to any change in the current situation; building owner wants police to arrest for trespass; there are gaps in the DFO narrative relative to seeking a Court injunction; it is not promising on the Court injunction process; likely Trespass; site

- staff are now working out of IOS to keep out of harm's way. Staff will be returning to office on Feb 26
4. JJ: Sgt. Julie Fast, Intel Officer with Saanich PD in communication with DFO; BC Crown reasons for not prosecuting previous Mischief charge is that the result wouldn't lessen or reduce cause of ongoing dispute with DFO; should seek another avenue outside of criminal process
 5. LH: Mike Carlson spoke with RDG Rebecca Reid who will seek support from NHQ ;staff can't deal with it alone (protests in general)
 6. NC: [REDACTED] (up Island) more interested in fish farm protest/ disruption on grounds; not likely targeting DFO offices; the Matriarch Camp doesn't show up on aquaculture sites because of accessibility/ mobility i.e. you need a vessel
 7. JJ: [REDACTED] not advocating for destruction of property;
[REDACTED]
 8. LH: two key points: Claire Doucette and LH to have teleconference with SC staff, invite Laura Brown, South Coast Area Director; discuss plan; outline steps; discuss Business Resumption Plans; RDG asking NHQ for direction
 9. LH: talked to Mike Carlson last weekend; can get updates re RDG elevating to NHQ
 10. JG: sounds like no Court injunction; current work of NC is to support that; DFO not likely to seek Court injunction, but we still need to fill the narrative gap toward that end
 11. JJ: Director, RPSS is in the loop on all activities being documented, but no response or inputs
 12. DJ: [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
 13. LH: we are mounting a camera at the front door of Victoria DFO office
 14. MG: Director NFIS has suggested that we do a Problem Assessment for this site to capture the issues; our concern is the mandate of the NFIS i.e. we can only collect within our mandate; we do have a role to play in Officer Safety which is an issue here;
[REDACTED]
 15. LH: Victoria office filling in the narrative for court injunction
 16. JJ: NFIS is the stop gap for now; [REDACTED]
 17. LH: we do need high up help; it's an long-time controversy; Aquaculture is a pillar of the Gov. of Canada mandate; it's not going away; my first issue to tackle is to ensure staff are confident that they know what to do
 18. JG: we will provide tactical support for open source collection; there's a requirement for a Problem Assessment; NFIS seems to be a stop gap; there is overlap with fisheries/ aquaculture sites; others are more safety and security-oriented
 19. DJ: can do a threat risk assessment to identify gaps in security; if staff are really impacted, HOIR's should be submitted if overwhelmed
 20. JJ: Matriarch Camp doesn't want to talk to DFO about the issue; "No interest in talking to the government"; [REDACTED] seeking direction from the Matriarch Camp
[REDACTED] not just through

s.21(1)(a)

s.21(1)(b)

social media 21. MG: don't seem very sophisticated, seem to be seeking notoriety through direction from Matriarch Camp [REDACTED] followed by direct action

In addition to this Bulletin, please note that that identified protestors from the previous protests have indicated they intend to begin protesting again at DFO Victoria, starting tomorrow on 28 FEB 2018. An Event notice has been created on Facebook as a call to rally other activists to 4250 Commerce Circle to protest salmon aquaculture. The Event information directly links the protestors at the Swanson Island site to the protestors who indicated they will be at the Victoria DFO Office starting tomorrow.

Social media information indicates the protestors intend to return to the Victoria DFO office every day from 28 FEB 2018 to at least 02 MAR 2018, from 0900-1500 hrs each day.

Bulletin #: 2018-W-IB-003

Subject:	Potential for Protest Activity – Department of Fisheries and Oceans - Victoria Office
Distribution:	C&P – South Coast Area, Saanich Police Department, C&P RHQ
Issued on behalf of:	DFO Victoria Office

BACKGROUND:

As per the Pacific Aquaculture Regulations, aquaculture is defined as the cultivation of fish.¹ The Department of Fisheries and Oceans (DFO) assumed the primary management and regulation of aquaculture in British Columbia (B.C.) in 2010 and ensures the industry operates in a sustainable manner.²

On November 13, 2017, individuals protesting fish farms had set up camp on an area adjacent to a Conservation and Protection (C&P) warehouse entry door located at 4250 Commerce Circle, Victoria. DFO is a tenant at this location and does not own or manage the property. The property also houses other tenants who have complained about the protest encampment. The property management company had attempted to remove the protestors as the occupancy had become a sanitation issue since the protestors had been observed defecating on the property.³

The camp was visible from the roadside and from the office entrance. The front door of the office remained locked and all personal employee vehicles were parked on the street due to safety concerns.⁴

RECENT EVENTS:

On November 13, 2017, a protest camp was set up outside the Victoria DFO office located at 4250 Commerce Circle.

On November 28, 2017, the property management company phoned the Saanich Police Department in an attempt to have the protestors removed from the property but were unsuccessful. DFO employees were concerned as the protestors were observed defecating behind the warehouse. The front door of the office and vehicle compound remained locked due to safety and sanitation concerns for the employees.⁷

On December 14, 2017, a rally in support of the protest took place outside of the Victoria DFO office. Approximately, seventy-five people were in attendance and no police issues were encountered.

On December 18, 2017, the owner of the property demanded that the protest camp be taken down and the protestors vacate the premises. The protestors were advised that failure to do so would result in charges for trespassing. Rather than removing themselves from the property, the protestors began requesting supporters to make themselves available on shift all day to witness and protest the possible arrest.

On December 19, 2017, the Saanich Police Department arrested [REDACTED] for trespassing. Approximately eleven people stood near the street and chanted in protest. The protestors advised of their intention to set up a new camp on the municipal property adjacent to the previous camp. However, they eventually dispersed peacefully from the DFO location.

On January 15, 2018, four protestors arrived at 4250 Commerce Circle and began to drum and dance blocking the front door of the office, causing operational concerns. [REDACTED] her intentions were to camp in front of the doors. [REDACTED] was advised that aquaculture was not managed at this particular office and was provided the correct contact information. The front door remained locked by DFO from inside the building due to safety and operational concerns. The building alarm could not be armed from the rear door, posing a security risk.

Intelligence Bulletin

On January 17, 2018, three protestors arrived and began to drum and sing loudly outside of the entrance doors. They remained until mid-day whilst others came and went throughout the morning. A small sign was erected in the garden.

On January 18, 2018, [REDACTED] looped and padlocked a metal chain around the front doors of the office. The Saanich Police Department were contacted and informed that there were serious safety concerns as staff had been chained into the office from outside. There was a clear escalation in physical behavior [REDACTED] as they were now blockading the main entry and exit point for staff and the general public. All protected information and firearms were secured and staff were sent home through the back door. The Saanich Police attended and arrested both [REDACTED] for mischief. In communication with the authorities, [REDACTED] made it clear that it was her intention to get her day in court⁸ and she had only returned as the previous trespassing charges had been dismissed.

On January 19, 2018, the Victoria office remained closed due to the increased concerns for staff safety. [REDACTED] posted a number of media articles on her Facebook page, expressing her pleasure with the media attention that was received.⁹

On February 2, 2018, [REDACTED] others involved in occupation of aquaculture sites attended a town hall in Nanaimo with Prime Minister Justin Trudeau. During this town hall, she turned her back on the Prime Minister and walked out before the event was over¹⁰ to show disrespect towards the Prime Minister and solidarity with her fellow protestors. Another one of the protestors, [REDACTED] shook a rattle as the group was walking out in order to cause a disruption.¹¹ The group refused to acknowledge the Prime Minister when he welcomed them to remain.¹²

On February 16, 2018, DFO was informed that the Saanich Police Department was dropping the charges against [REDACTED]¹³ The Saanich Police advised C&P staff to be on high alert as the protestors indicated that they want their day in court.¹⁴ Further on this date, [REDACTED] posted a video on her Facebook page indicating that the "federal prosecutor"¹⁵ was not approving the latest charges and that he would set up a meeting between the protestors and DFO.¹⁶ She further stated that "they definitely don't want me in court, they don't want this on file anywhere."¹⁷

On February 19, 2018, [REDACTED] posted the following statement on her Facebook page: "just now crawled out of my tent,, what a great day not to be in court damn gotta do it again why must they make my job difficult lol for realz contracts and leases haven't ceased."¹⁸

Also on February 19, 2018, [REDACTED] posted a video to the Swanson Occupation Facebook page stating "we've sent our letters and we encourage everybody to do the same to continue to apply pressure on this government to make a decision about what they are going to do with this place because you're going to see a very very volatile situation and an escalated scenario out here if we don't see some action and it worries me because we don't want to do this..."¹⁹

On February 26, 2018, [REDACTED] posted a video on her Facebook page indicating that the Matriach Camp will return to the Victoria DFO office starting on Wednesday, February 28, 2018 from 0900 to 1500 hours. [REDACTED] indicated that solidarity action will be taken on Friday and has encouraged other protestors to join. The video does not indicate if she intends on protesting peacefully but it is implied that she is encouraging a lengthy stay at the Victoria location.²⁰

KEY ASSUMPTIONS:

- [REDACTED]
- [REDACTED]
- Operational capacity of the DFO Victoria office would be impeded if the key players attempted to chain the front door shut again. Rather, it may be just an inconvenience as employees can still work but may be displaced into other locations.
- It is assumed that the DFO Victoria office will continue to be considered a target despite the fact that aquaculture is not even managed within this office due to the key players' mobility issues and access to the media.
- It is assumed that the Reconciliation of Rights Framework and its implementation have not affected the protest plans for the key players.

KEY JUDGMENTS:

There is a high likelihood that [REDACTED] others pose a future safety concern to staff at the DFO Victoria office. On a number of occasions, [REDACTED] indicated that she wants her "day in court" and will take whatever action required to obtain that day.

[REDACTED] Blocking the front door posed a significant increased physical threat to staff should the building have needed to be evacuated.²¹ [REDACTED] indicated on her social media that she would have to do this all again, "...gotta do it again..."²² This statement implies that she may have to repeat an attempt to receive a criminal charge, allowing her to have her day in court.

[REDACTED] threats of protest; peaceful protest at DFO site; trespass at DFO site; blocking of vehicle access for DFO staff and public; depositing human waste on the DFO site; using threatening tones with Fishery Officers who have offered information; ongoing vague threats of protests; and ongoing vague threats for protest.²³

Further to these concerns, there is a high likelihood that the operational capacity of the DFO Victoria office will be impeded. During the previous incident of chaining the front door shut, the operational capacity of the office was diminished completely as staff had to be sent home for safety reasons. It is highly likely that the protestors will attempt a similar incident as they are aware that impeding operations may invite media attention and more serious charges. In doing so, the protestors will also impede the public from accessing services at the office.

RECOMMENDATIONS:

It is highly recommended that the social media accounts [REDACTED] and others are monitored on a daily basis to obtain information on their potential protest activities.

As the protestors are expected to return on Wednesday, February 28, 2018, it is highly recommended that DFO staff remain vigilant and report any suspicious activity and/or people to management and the Saanich Police Department.

It is recommended that DFO considers applying for legal tools which limit access to the DFO Victoria office to address any activity, protest, or otherwise that could potentially harm assets and staff. The protestors would like to cease the cultivation of salmon but are failing to recognize the Victoria DFO office does not manage aquaculture. A legal tool limiting access to the Victoria DFO office will help protect DFO staff and resources by preventing protests from escalating.

Hi Murray,

1. One correction: DJ: Waiver 21 – Violence Risk Assessment – completed; it is a mitigative approach; they are likely escalating; it's an isolated area

I have not been able to do a WAVR 21 as I haven't been able to connect with Mandy. If someone else knows the two lead protestors better than her, I could do the review with someone else. I tried unsuccessfully to connect with her and will try again on Monday unless you or Linda can suggest someone else I should talk to.

Thanks.

s.16(2)(c)

Hi Murray, Derek and Jason,

Please see the information from Sgt. Julie Fast (Saanich PD Intel section coordinator) in the email below mine. There are a couple points of concern here, which are outside of what NFIS coordinates or would typically advise about in our correct roles within NFIS.

However, I think it is important to pass these on to the correct channels in DFO and C&P, which include, but are perhaps not limited to:

- Mya Cormie / Mandy Ludlow / Linda Higgins (C&P Victoria responsibilities, staff safety responsibilities);
- Mike Carlson / Laura Brown (SC Area Director) / Andrew Thompson (DFO reporting responsibilities; building closure responsibilities)
- DFO Security (DJ Lawrence is Acting Manager) ; RPSS – Lisa Kerr
- Jay Fulks (RCMP Liaise / advisor)
- Rebecca Reid (RDG Pacific Region)
- Possibly others ?

And the concerns are:

- [REDACTED] (who was arrested for mischief after chaining shut and physically blocking the Victoria DFO Office doors) has expressed she will have to escalate the profile of her cause again, as her mischief charges were dropped by the Provincial prosecutor;
 - [REDACTED] Further details are not available.
- There appears to have been a miscommunication (non-DFO in nature, but heavily implies DFO involvement) where [REDACTED] that a federal prosecutor was offering her a meeting to be set up between DFO staff and AMBERS plus any other persons [REDACTED] wished at the meeting. 2 corrections have come forth about that:
 1. The prosecutor who spoke [REDACTED] about this topic was the Provincial prosecutor who dropped the mischief charges against her; there was no federal prosecutor involved and no prosecutor representing DFO (information relayed to IO Jenkins by SCA C&P Chief);
 2. To SCA C&P's knowledge, no such offer by DFO has been made.
 - Therefore there is potential and a high likelihood that [REDACTED] other protestors may escalate in dangerous behaviours in the event they request such meeting to proceed with DFO and DFO doesn't participate, even though the Dept. has made no offer and was not aware the impression of an offer had introduced by a Provincial prosecution representative.
- There appear to have been gaps in communications to C&P Aquaculture and possibly other DFO staff (unverified) in Campbell River, whose offices present equally tempting targets for protest activities; the assessment of temptation and likelihood of protests to develop at Campbell River C&P offices is due to history of protestors attending at various Aquaculture company headquarters in Campbell River and an established history of associates of Campbell River area protestors ([REDACTED] among others) targeting the Victoria DFO office in a manner which posed safety concerns for DFO staff.
- Additionally, [REDACTED] keeps expressing in social media that if things do not change to his group's demands, 'something' will escalate.
[REDACTED]

So. From this point, where should these concerns and information be going? I have expressed to C&P staff, RCMP and Saanich PD that I am not the correct conduit for conversations about next actions for DFO, only the correct conduit for receiving information so Nitasha and I can stay apprised of ongoing protests and any effects for C&P and DFO.

Please advise.

Hi Jo,

I can't provide a copy of our police report...that would have to be a request through our FOI coordinator at FOI@saanichpolice.ca. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] Their first court appearance was set for the beginning of this week but after reviewing all the circumstances of the case, Crown did not believe that Criminal Code charges were appropriate and would not help to resolve the over-riding dispute. It is their opinion that DFO should be seeking a civil injunction (as you already know). [REDACTED]

As far as our involvement from this point on, patrol will be responsible for responding to any calls for service. Sgt. Andy Stuart was acting as our liaison officer [REDACTED] I am continually monitoring things from my desk and have prepared an information package for our patrol officers in the event that they are required.

And when staff is back on Commerce Circle, please direct them to call our non-emergency line, 250-475-4321, if they require non-urgent police assistance, and 911 if there is an immediate need for police (such as chained doors). Each time they call, a new file will be generated which will help track how things are going.

Let me know if you need anything as we move forward,

Hi Julie,

We (DFO/NFIS) are working on an assessment of protest activities which have occurred at the Victoria DFO office [REDACTED] [REDACTED] were arrested 18 JAN 2018 for mischief (chaining up the main front entry of the DFO building with DFO staff inside).

I've cc'd our DFO NFIS intelligence analyst working on this Nitasha.

Would it be possible to obtain the police report from those arrests or a summary/notes from Saanich police of events from that day?

DFO, NFIS and Security branches, are doing assessments for our decision makers re: threats and escalations from the protestors (the arrested ones and others).

Shorthand – we believe there's a strong likelihood that [REDACTED] others will return; [REDACTED]

I also wanted to make sure I am sharing back to your agency, as arrests for criminal behaviours fall on Saanich PD officers. DFO believes the threat is strong enough that staff were moved out of the office for this entire week.

I apologize for not having been down to an Intel meeting in quite some time – I am working on obtaining a vehicle for March's meeting.

Subject: Swanson site update and 02 MAR protests

Activists at the Marine Harvest Swanson site posted video to Facebook page "Swanson Occupation" last night (27 FEB 2018) of a kayaker and a red inflatable rhib vessel with multiple passengers coming into close proximity of the aquaculture farm facility. I don't recall what distance activists/protestors are expected to remain off the fish farm (under bio security protocols and under Marine Harvest's injunction order).

The narrator of the video declares it is day 188 of the Swanson Island occupation and states they are "doing some monitoring here...they have a diver down in the net and they're checking out their nets before they're gonna restock this farm without any consent and totally against first nations wishes".

Image captures from the video attached.

On a different Facebook pages, there are statements of calls for rallies at 2 different locations on 02 MAR 2018 (Friday):

1. Vancouver, Minister George Heyman's Office – 642 Broadway, Vancouver, Friday, March 2, 2018, 1100 – 1230 hrs
2. John Horgan's constituency office on the same day, Friday, March 2, 2018, an invite extended to join [REDACTED] at that location, no times given.

Thank you!

Once they've had time to breathe, I think we can ask Mandy the details re: how close to the front doors are they (are persons physically in the way of the door opening outward, or is there still room to do that), etc.

It's at least promising that for the moment it appears peaceful, if intimidating and stressful for staff. Re: trespass – the grey zone they will have to seek the landlord's assistance about.

Subject: Protest Update - DFO Victoria Office
Importance: High

Hello all,

[REDACTED] others have arrived at 4250 Commerce Circle according to their respective Facebook pages. [REDACTED] posted a video on her page. Drumming can be heard in the background and the following is a loose transcription of what she has stated:

"Good morning from the DFO, 4250 Commerce Circle, Victoria. The matriarch camp are back again. We started action again at 9 o'clock. We are just holding space, sitting right in front, drumming, singing. Just sending another message that our salmon are not being listened to. It's really scary that 95% salmon tested [REDACTED] are infected by PRV...It's scary that nothing is being done. [REDACTED] they want to fill up with pens at Swanson, they're attempting to, bringing in more equipment to put the fish in. We are back at the DFO office, we are going to be here, we haven't send until when. We are going to do 9-3 today and it's just to send a message, to hold space for our wild salmon, that marine harvest, DFO, and the government are still going ahead with this dirty industry after how many voices, how many things have been said...promises that we will change things but nothing is changing, not fast enough."

She has asked other protestors to join, to bring a drum, a coffee, a chair as they will remain on site until 3:00PM.

Further, a Facebook page has been created indicating that they will remain on site until March 2, 2018. 18 individuals have confirmed as attending whilst another 40 are interested. The event page can be found at the following link:

I will continue monitoring throughout the day.

Jordan Bromwich

Tel. (250) 618-1037

Involvement: Witness and associated involvement to the protest activity at the DFO Victoria Field Office and on the 01 March, 2018.

CAN SAY:

- That at approx. 0914 hrs on 2018/03/01, I observed [REDACTED] pull into the parking spaces fronting the office at 4250 Commerce Circle in Victoria. Immediately following the arrival of the said vehicles, I witnessed persons familiar to me due to their involvement in previous protest activity at the office, disembark the vehicles and begin to assemble in front of the office doors. At that time I began to make an entry into the protest activity ledger held within the office.
s.21(1)(b)
- That as I was making an entry into the protest ledger, I overheard a co-worker call out that they were chaining the doors shut. I witnessed my supervisor and a fellow officer proceed to the front door to confront the action, therefore prompting myself to accompany my coworkers so to potentially assist in mitigating any possible safety concerns.
- That as I stood at the front doors while accompanying my supervisor, I overheard the protestors exclaim that staff still had the back door to exit, when confronted about the safety concern associated with chaining the doors, as brought to their attention by my supervisor. I also overheard the protestors call for someone to start recording. At that time I was asked by my supervisor to call the police as she continued to monitor and address the situation.

- That I contacted the Saanich Police non-emergency line to report the incident, providing details as to the number of protestors present (seven) and their observed activity and verbal interactions exchanged with DFO staff. At that time I was advised that police would be attending the scene.
- Following reporting the incident to the Saanich Police, I was advised by my supervisor that it was senior management's decision to leave the building for safety reasons. Subsequently I prepared my belongings and equipment necessary to conduct a fisheries patrol and exited the building through the rear emergency exit of the building.
- That upon exiting the building, I made my way to the warehouse building opposite the office's parking lot, where I observed the congregation of protestors attempt to record my activity with their phones; this while one protestor banged heavily on a drum while singing loudly in what I perceived to be a traditional First Nations tongue and ceremonial manner.
- That I aided my supervisor in retrieving one of the departmental vehicles from the warehouse before joining a fellow officer in an unmarked patrol vehicle which he had retrieved from the parking lot compound, all the while being recorded by the protestors. I then departed the location to engage in a fisheries patrol and to run required administrative errands on behalf of the office.
- That while on Patrol I received a phone call from Saanich Police member John Grennan who wished to gather further information regarding the matter and the department's position regarding a longer term approach to the protest activities. I was able to provide a detailed account of the protest activity observed that morning and also advised Officer Grennan that perhaps he could best obtain the department's position moving forward from my supervisor, for which I subsequently facilitated their contact via phone.

Marine Harvest Canada application to re-stock the Swanson Island Site

DFO's Introductions and Transfers Committee has received an application from Marine Harvest Canada to re-stock their Swanson Island site on February 28, 2018. The Swanson Island site is in the Namgis First Nation's traditional territory, and was one of the sites occupied by First Nations until an injunction was granted to Marine Harvest in December, 2017. Marine Harvest Canada had harvested fish from the Swanson Island site in September/October, 2017 and the site has been fallow since that time. Marine Harvest now wishes to re-stock this site with juvenile salmon from their Ocean Falls hatchery for grow-out. Over the past several months, the Namgis have sent Marine Harvest, DFO, and the provincial government letters from their lawyers outlining their opposition to salmon farms in their traditional territory. In recent weeks, these letters have requested that Marine Harvest not re-stock the Swanson Island site and threatened legal action should DFO issue an Introductions & Transfers licence without proper consultation. DFO currently consults with First Nations around aquaculture licensing decisions as aquaculture licences are issued under the assumption that fish will be transferred to and from the site. Consultation does not take place around individual applications to transfer fish.

We are currently reviewing this approach [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] It is possible that the Namgis First Nation will JR the Ministers' decision to issue a licence to transfer fish to the Swanson Island site if, following our review the Department deems that a licence should be granted, based on their view that the Department has not met our legal duty to consult.
The ITC expects to complete their review by March 14, 2018.

Ladies, I wanted to forward on to you information from our intel analyst that is monitoring the protest activity. This morning the protesters chained the DFO doors in Victoria. The analyst has typed up dialogue that one of the protesters uploaded. Tomorrow the protesters have indicated more rally activity; it is obvious from the dialogue that restocking is of major contention.

Please ensure staff are vigilant at all of your officers as no one is really sure where protesters may rally.

Subject: Victoria Office - Front Doors Have Been Chained
Importance: High

Please note that [REDACTED] has posted a video to her Facebook page stating that they have chained the front doors shut again of the office. The drummer is singing "No more viruses."

The following is a loose transcription of her video:

[REDACTED] March 1st. We have chained the doors again closed to the DFO. Probably gonna get arrested pretty quick. Not sure it's gonna happen today but we have to do it today because they are not listening. They want to start filling Swanson Island and the DFO are allowing Marine Harvest to do this. [REDACTED] This has to happen. So in a symbolic gesture, we have again chained the doors closed for today. There will be no DFO going on today in Victoria. So we are here at the DFO, 4250. I'm sure the Saanich Police are on their way. Please share widely. This is our symbolic gesture. This is us standing up and saying This has to end, this has to end now. The doors are chained closed. I'll try to do as many live feeds as I can. They are gonna come pretty quick. Last time we were arrested within a half hour. And this time DFO, four of them rushed the door so I had to quickly put on the chain and lock the door really, really fast. It was a bit more dramatic this time. They said do you realize you are putting are safety at risk and we said you have a back door. We wouldn't do it if we knew you didn't. What about the safety of our salmon, they don't have a back door. They don't get a day off. I will live feed when the police come."

Hi DJ,

Please note that there is a planned rally on Friday, March 2, 2018 at 642 W Broadway – office of George Heyman, MLA – from 11:00AM to 12:30PM. Although there is no indication that they plan to rally at RHQ, the risk is there due to the close proximity. Social media indicates that there is an expectation of 100 people to be present.

Just to clarify, Saanich will decide if they arrest the protesters however that being said based on my conversation with the on site supervisor I suspect they will decide not to arrest based on our decision to leave the office.

Everybody,

[REDACTED] We will continue operations elsewhere for the time being. Please just go on patrol today and I will hopefully have a plan for Monday and beyond.

I have been trying to secure accommodations for us at IOS and haven't been successful at this time, other than our vessel can go in the MPP lock up (Gord please Bill call if we go that route. Hopefully I can get IOS accoms for us soon. In the meantime, we will remain in the field, and if you need office stuff done, you will have to come up to Duncan.

As I explained to Jordan over the phone, once Saanich no longer requires us as back up, please leave the premise.

Sean/Lara/Andrew,

Mike is also recommending you work elsewhere. If there is no one there, there is nothing to protest. Please forward this email to your supervisors.

[REDACTED]
Thanks everybody for your patience through these stressful times. If you need anything don't hesitate to call my cell:

Protestors are planning to return to the DFO Victoria Office in the morning (Friday 02MAR2018), "first thing in the morning".

Extended video (17:51 mins) of yesterday's arrests and a statement were posted (2300 hrs on 01MAR2018) by [REDACTED]
[REDACTED] both times they've been arrested at DFO 4250 Commerce Circle. There was also an advertised FB Event to be held at Saanich PD last night between 2100-0030 hrs in support of the 2 women who remained in police custody, [REDACTED] the unnamed young woman. I advised Saanich PD via phone last night.

"UPDATE: ARRESTS MADE OUTSIDE DFO

Today, three indigenous womxn were arrested outside of the Department of Fisheries and Oceans office on unceded WSANEC territory. Two are currently being held overnight at the Saanich Police station. If you are able, please please show up to show we care. We will be holding space there tonight. In addition, people are asked to come down to the DFO office, 4250 Commerce Circle, beginning first thing in the morning tomorrow for continued presence as previously planned.

After 30 years of sustained indigenous opposition to the illegal fish farms in their territory, and several months of peaceful but determined occupation, government bodies continue to blatantly ignore their urgent demands. With no other clear choices or options, [REDACTED] one other took a stand today in solidarity with the nations and hereditary leaders who are asserting their rights, and requiring that immediate action be taken to remove highly illegal, and extremely bio-hazardous fish farm operations from their unceded waters. Please take the time to view and share this video, and follow up with ways that you can support. The government should not be allowed to turn a blind eye to this emergency situation which involves the direct violation of indigenous traditional laws, human rights laws, and environmental policies alike. Support these courageous womxn and the salmon of this coast.

CW Physical and colonial abuse."

[REDACTED] also published [REDACTED] videos on social media last night. She is [REDACTED] at the "Matriarch Camp" (Premier Horgan's office). She advises in one video that she hopes the other 2 women are released in the morning (02MAR2018) "...because if not there's gonna have to be more direct action happening tomorrow... ", "so this is a salmon showdown salmon sovereignty is happening now I ask everyone in any town wherever you are to do something".

[REDACTED] It is not indicated if she will be participating in or leading events herself or just continuing to promote others on social media to do so.

She also posted an image of herself last night holding a sign that says, "We Will STOP Getting arrested when you REMOVE FISH FARMS! FREE ALL OF CAMP!! FREE THE MC". Note that "MC" is the short term she uses to refer to their 'Matriarch Camp', currently still believed to be at Premier Horgan's office. Image attached.

The picture she also posted shows she and others intend to keep getting arrested for her cause escalated risk as the repetition of chaining the front Office may escalate into other actions to ensure her arrest may pose further physical risks for DFO staff at the Victoria additional consideration is that other protesters are using women's arrests to vilify police and DFO and to rally support cause.

She further states that she hopes the other two women at the morning (02 MAR) "...because if not there's gonna have direct action happening tomorrow..." "so this is a salmon salmon sovereignty is happening now I ask everyone in area wherever you are to do something".

[REDACTED] states repeatedly that two of her 'camp' [REDACTED] and unnamed woman), arrested and in jail and endorses them for challenging "colonial law". Please see updated event report. CTV was filming on site so there might be coverage on the news tonight. Also, one protester has signed the release with conditions so she is not allowed to return for 90 days. The other two have refused to sign. If they don't, they will be released in the morning without conditions and will not be charged.

The provincial crown will not charge any protester unless there is damage to property or violence.

We will proceed with the application for injunction and may consider a meeting in the future. Otherwise, we don't have any other options.

Issue:

Protesters returned to C&P Victoria office and chained the front door closed with metal chain and a pad lock.

Background:

In December 2017, protesters camped out at the Victoria office for approximately 30 days until they were arrested for trespassing.

In January 2018, protesters returned to the Victoria office after charges were dropped. They chained the front doors to the Victoria office closed. They were arrested and charged with criminal mischief.

On February 16th, 2018 Provincial Crown and Saanich Police Department notified Detachment Supervisor Ludlow that they were dropping the recent charges against the protesters. Saanich police indicated that they believe the protesters will be back to conduct activity that would result in, "having a day in court". The protesters indicated to Saanich PD that they want their day in court.

On Feb.28th, several protesters returned to the Victoria Office. They protested peacefully in front of the main doors for most of the day.

Current Status:

3 First Nations woman were taken into custody by Saanich Police and the rest of the protesters have left the premise. The chains and lock were removed.

Strategic Considerations:

The protesters are determined to have their day in court. If the charges are dropped again they will just keep returning.

Posted to the Swanson Occupation Facebook page by another profile called "Gathering Allies Society". Protestors are seeking additional supporters/more people to come to the Swanson island location where the protestors have had a camp set up for a few months. The image and text below was posted on Feb 28, 2018, for March 2018.

"At this time the Nam'gis and Maa'lili'kulla are asking people to make time in their schedules to come take a shift at the occupation at Swanson Island. There is comfortable indoor accommodation on-site, and good company! If you have been wondering when or how to show your support for this movement, this month is the time! The occupiers are welcoming support throughout the month of March. Please sign up at www.gatheringallies.org/fish-farm-occupations."

Subject: Events in Victoria the last 3 days

Hi Derek,

Sorry I meant to talk with you yesterday, but got caught up in protest related info collection and conference calls. I tried calling you today a few times but didn't manage to catch you.

Can we have a chat next week re: the protest events and info collection?

1. I'm also wondering what info was relayed to the NFIS staff on the conference call with Murray last week? I missed that call as I was already on a conference call with various partners about protest updates. I read the email Murray sent about the PIA and PIB, but frankly I'm not entirely sure if I understood all the finer points of reading the email and that document. I found there was not enough context for me to understand how I apply that to the tasks I am currently doing (am I doing it right? or not?). Some feedback would help.
2. [REDACTED]
- [REDACTED]
Nitasha and I are both very pleased to be helping out, however I find we are ill-equipped for the kind of extensive monitoring and info collection sometimes required for this activity, especially given that it is almost guaranteed there will be some significant ATIP's later. The protestors are a network and move info around 24/7, sometimes they move concerning info (risks to C&P safety) with very little notice right before they commit to an action that might affect DFO/C&P. This can happen at 7pm, 11pm, or 7 am right before they go to confront C&P Officers. What approach should we have from here on out re: managing C&P's expectations of us (NFIS)? I think Nitasha and I have been trying, but we cannot monitor and gather info 24/7, we are too small a team for that. [REDACTED]
3. I'm a little concerned with the sheer volume of information which requires sharing/is being shared between us (NFIS) and C&P and police partners and is often done via email, which I'm finding is the worst tool re: info collection and retention for ATIP and policy requirements. We're such a remote group ourselves within NFIS, I find the daily email volume in general is already very cumbersome. I'm seeking some tips/best practices for how to store all info I'm required to keep per business rules.
4. Re: Wanting to reduce email volume on the protest files - I arranged for weekly calls for Claire Doucette and RCMP's end of info sharing (Aquaculture protest end up in Campbell River area) to reduce email volume (which was very big for a while, and often only conversational); I'm wondering if something similar would be appropriate for Linda/Mandy/Victoria staff and Saanich PD sharing? Much of what we transact in daily volume of emails could be shared easier by phone, if someone could help us to coordinate that (?).
5. Links chart - Claire Doucette and Linda Higgins have not asked for a links chart, but I think one should be put together (for their two RFI's combined), for NFIS use as well as GD's. I am starting to lose track of who is who on which protest, as they are intertwined. [REDACTED]

I don't think this is urgent to do, but I do think it would be worth the effort to do. It would also save a lot of emails explaining to the 3 ends of C&P (Aquaculture C&P, SCA and BCI) who is who and how they relate to the others each time rumbles of protests rear up. It might also be helpful for Director Carlson eventually (?).

Thanks!

Jo

Ladies, due to the recent events in Victoria, Linda Higgins has developed the following document. I believe this would be an excellent tool to provide to staff. I know Angela was asking me one day what the steps are in case of a protest, so I believe this would be a good starting point. It was vetted through Safety and Security at RHQ.

s.16(2)(c)

If you hear of an impending protest at your office, please initiate the following procedures as outlined by RPSS:

1. Ensure all staff are aware of the situation and ask them to practice increased vigilance - to be on the alert for suspicious activity
2. Remind staff not to leave doors and windows open and unlocked, to ensure doors closely properly behind them, and not to let strangers tailgate in behind them.
3. Do not permit members of the public access to operational zones.
4. If there are indications or suspicions of an immediate threat of a sit-in or occupation, lock perimeter doors to lockout the reception zone. Permit access only to employees and trusted visitors.
5. Advise all staff on site of an immediate threat; call local police and notify the Operational Commander. Initiate building emergency plan and if necessary Business Resumption plan
6. If the building is on lockdown, do not open perimeter doors to speak to suspected protesters or unknown visitors - who may then try to force or wedge themselves in. Ask them their intended purpose through the door or window and calmly explain that the building is on lockdown and only employees are allowed in at this time.
7. Sanitize the public reception zone such that is free from chairs, flagpoles etc., as well as any internal memos, staff directory listings or contact numbers.
8. Ensure visitors and un-cleared contractors are escorted at all times and register them in a sign-in/sign-out sheet.
9. Reschedule any upcoming meetings with new visitors/clients or visitors/clients of unknown reliability to a teleconference.
10. Ensure staff have their ID cards and building access passes ready for inspection and visible.
11. If possible, challenge individuals who you do not recognize in the building. If possible, ask them if they are looking for someone or if they need help locating a room. Report the incident.
12. Advise staff to report any attempts of unauthorized entry, the presence of unattended briefcases, bags or parcels in or around the building, and any suspicious activity, vehicles and/or persons in or around the building to a supervisor or security staff.
13. Consider hiring Commissionaire Guard staff to enhance short-term security.
14. Call 9-11 if there is an emergency or threat to safety or property.
15. Call 9-11 if there is a sit-in protest or occupation.

If there is a protest at your building and it is peaceful and not impeding access, initiate the following procedures:

- Contact the protester(s) and start a conversation to find out their cause and purpose. Try to estimate size, identity of individuals, leaders, and any other factors that give you information about intention and sophistication

- Complete an event report and submit ASAP, https://intra-l01.ent.dfo-mpo.ca/sites/pacific/conservationandprotection/documents/sops/sop_event_reporting_template.pdf the event report should be completed and sent to the appropriate distribution list using the hyper links at the bottom of the form. The distribution list includes the area detachment supervisors, area intelligence officer, area chief and area director. From there, the area chief will forward it out to the area chiefs and to the operational members of RMC
- contact RPSS – Noel Taylor so she can contact the building owner if leased and take care of any other building issues
- contact the police of jurisdiction to advise and provide any information, especially if there are safety concerns such as impeding roadways or in case of any escalation
- review business resumption plan
- complete HOIR if applicable <https://intra-l01.ent.dfo-mpo.ca/sites/pacific/ssesd/healthandsafety/hoir-wcb/hoir-mainpage-eng.php>

If there is a protest at your building and it is not peaceful, impedes access or there is criminal behaviour:

- call 911 immediately
- Make safe exit from the building if possible and if not stay in the building. If you are able to safely exit the building, activate the business resumption plan
- Secure assets and equipment if you are safely able to do so
- contact your supervisor immediately and relay details about activity and size and any other details
- complete HOIR <https://intra-l01.ent.dfo-mpo.ca/sites/pacific/ssesd/healthandsafety/hoir-wcb/hoir-mainpage-eng.php>
- complete security incident report form <https://intra-l01.ent.dfo-mpo.ca/sites/pacific/ssesd/security/secforms/secincident.pdf>
- complete event report https://intra-l01.ent.dfo-mpo.ca/sites/pacific/conservationandprotection/documents/sops/sop_event_reporting_template.pdf

Protestors are planning to return to the DFO Victoria Office in the morning (Friday 02MAR2018), "first thing in the morning".

Extended video (17:51 mins) of yesterday's arrests and a statement were posted (2300 hrs on 01MAR2018) by [REDACTED] the individual who appears [REDACTED] both times they've been arrested at DFO 4250 Commerce Circle. There was also an advertised FB Event to be held at Saanich PD last night between 2100-0030 hrs in support of the 2 women who remained in police custody, [REDACTED] the unnamed young woman. I advised Saanich PD via phone last night.

"UPDATE: ARRESTS MADE OUTSIDE DFO

Today, three indigenous womxn were arrested outside of the Department of Fisheries and Oceans office on unceded WSANEC territory. Two are currently being held overnight at the Saanich Police station. If you are able, please show up to show we care. We will be holding space there tonight. In addition, people are asked to come down to the DFO office, 4250 Commerce Circle, beginning first thing in the morning tomorrow for continued presence as previously planned.

After 30 years of sustained indigenous opposition to the illegal fish farms in their territory, and several months of peaceful but determined occupation, government bodies continue to blatantly ignore their urgent demands. With no other clear choices or options, [REDACTED] one other took a stand today in solidarity with the nations and hereditary leaders who are asserting their rights, and requiring that immediate action be taken to remove highly illegal, and extremely bio-hazardous fish farm operations from their unceded waters. Please take the time to view and share this video, and follow up with ways that you can support. The government should not be allowed to turn a blind eye to this emergency situation which involves the direct violation of indigenous traditional laws, human rights laws, and environmental policies alike. Support these courageous womxn and the salmon of this coast.

CW Physical and colonial abuse."

[REDACTED] also published [REDACTED] videos on social media last night. She is [REDACTED] at the "Matriarch Camp" (Premier Horgan's office). She advises in one video that she hopes the other 2 women are released in the morning (02MAR2018) "...because if not there's gonna have to be more direct action happening tomorrow...", "so this is a salmon showdown salmon sovereignty is happening now I ask everyone in any town wherever you are to do something".

[REDACTED] It is not indicated if she will be participating in or leading events herself or just continuing to promote others on social media to do so.

She also posted an image of herself last night holding a sign that says, "We Will STOP Getting arrested when you REMOVE FISH FARMS! FREE ALL OF CAMP!! FREE THE MC". Note that "MC" is the short term she uses to refer to their 'Matriarch Camp', currently still believed to be at Premier Horgan's office. Image attached.

[REDACTED] has posted a video on her Facebook page indicating that she intends to get arrested today from the DFO office by taking action again. She indicates that her conditions state she is not to go within 100 meters of Commerce Circle. Breaching those conditions is how she intends to get arrested. Please note that [REDACTED]

"We need bodies at the DFO. This morning is another action period. It would be awesome if you could come down there. We are just standing there in solidarity because they are trying to fill up the pens at Swanson. Like why would you do that? And this is solidarity. Our camp was so lonely without [REDACTED] our other member here last night. My goodness. Today's action, we'll be back at the DFO, 8 o'clock, 8:30, and we are going to do more action. And we are going to remind them what's right and also please remember we are also going to go back to the police station to find [REDACTED] our other lady and going to get them. So we have two things to do today. And if I'm gone today, it just means I got arrested for something that's right. And wild salmon, totally worth it. But my biggest worry today is just finding out where [REDACTED] our other member is. I will be okay, they are going to release me eventually, hopefully. But my sisters from the Matriarch Camp, we need to find out where they are. So I will be again at DFO, probably 8:30, hopefully not arrested too quick, but we are trying to find out where [REDACTED] other matriarch member is. We don't know which jail they were in, they said Wilke (sp), but we found out Wilke doesn't take women so we are still trying to find out where they are. So I'm waiting for a ride. Our comrade is coming to get me and I'm going to do action again at DFO so if you wanna join me, I'm gonna be there in half an hour, just gonna sit there. The fact that I have conditions stating that I'm not supposed to go within 100 meters of Commerce Circle means I'll be arrested right away. So today is another showdown but maybe if the DFO wasn't allowing Marine Harvest to fill those pens on Swanson Island, we shouldn't be doing this. We have to show the DFO this is wrong. I'm not letting this team go down on their own. There's two of us already in jail and I guess I'll be with them. There's nothing else we can do at this point in time."

Hi Mandy,

Thank you for the update regarding the protesters. I'm going to head to IOS tomorrow to see if I can get set up. I'm hoping that an old colleague who is headed for CCG is gone and that his desk and pc are sitting there unused. If not, I'll contact Noel and get sorted. I may need to stop into the office for my work binder, but if I do so I'll be very quick and do it outside regular hours.

I'll let you know when I'm up and running. Shouldn't be too long.

We will NOT be working out of commerce cirlce for the couple of days. We will re assess end of day tomorrow. We need to give management a chance to set up speaking with the matriarch group.

Lara/sean/andrew,

Please work with C and P and do not use the office until this has happened. The protesters are doing drive bys. If someone is in the office, they will be back. I can't guarantee you are safe at the office. I am the DSO and am responsible for the office.

s.19(1)

We can use space at IOS for the time being. Noel has worked that out. Just go to the commisionaires office when you get there. If you need to come and get your computer equip. Etc. Please try and do it outside of office hours, or super early and please have someone, preferably one of us with you.

I know this sucks, but it is the cards we are dealt. The deputy minister is aware and is working with the RDG to get a meeting with the matriarch group.

Subject: Office Closed due to Protests

Good morning Anita,

I'm not sure if you've been tied in or not, but the Commerce Circle office has been the site of renewed aquaculture protests which began last week. On Thursday the front doors were again chained shut. Staff were sent home and Saanich PD had to come and arrest the protesters. On Friday, a protester chained herself to the front doors by her neck and staff were again sent home and Saanich PD had to come and arrest the woman.

It has been suggested that Commerce Circle staff work from IOS in hopes that an empty office will encourage the protesters to move on; however, I have yet to receive an update on that. I am currently working from home today until I receive an update from Mandy Ludlow.

[REDACTED] This afternoon I will continue to work through my backlog of emails.

Talk soon,

Andrew

Actions today:

- We are at the commerce street office to collect equipment and to remove video of last weeks activities as evidence
- Mandy is working on editing the narrative
- Staff will work from Duncan or IOS today and tomorrow but are anxious to return to commerce street
- We are considering removing the door handle, but this could also increase protester escalation. I would like to hear your thoughts?

For consideration:

I know we will talk further and Rebecca is planning a call to discuss the situation. It also appears [REDACTED] wants to talk to us and I would like to know how this would look. Rebecca suggested a professional negotiator. It would also make sense to have an aquaculture representative as that seems to be the reason for the protest.

Looking forward to discussing when you are free today. Also, be advised my bb seems to be taking a nap from which it doesn't want to wake up, so I will likely order a new one today. I will be away from the office from 1030 to 1300 for the SCMT meeting at the sca office and to box up more of toms stuff.

It does not appear that [REDACTED] intend to return to DFO this morning, but if no DFO staff and no Saanich PD are present this AM at the office, any attempt at disruption by any of them or their supporters is likely to get boring quickly, if anyone does show up.

[REDACTED] both noted last week that they intend to keep getting arrested until they 'get their day in court'.
[REDACTED]

Mandy and Linda - FYI note that these 3 and/or their supporters have been doing surveillance of the Victoria office in past, they relayed that info in videos they shot/shared when explaining to police how they knew DFO has a back door and staff routinely use it. It is possible they may have someone drive by or watch the office periodically to see if it is worth their time to make a disruption attempt.

[REDACTED]
She posted (Director) Mike Carlson's GOC 411 contact details on her FB profile page, indicating she may still believe it is C&P DFO she wants to disrupt/meet with/express anger towards. She also posted photos of her hands and wrists (re: being hurt). This has had the desired effect of getting sympathy from her supporters. Throughout her statements on FB she sounds like she was minding her own business peacefully when she was arrested without warning.
She also posted the following on , indicating she still believes that someone in a Govt or public official role (likely she believes it is DFO) is offering her a meeting:

"When they were transporting [REDACTED] and I from jail to court house I overheard the cop saying , yep the crown is not allowing the charges to stand , this is the 3rd time arresting and releasing us,, [REDACTED] signed yet Friday she was back at dfo and had signed conditions day before and they choose to ignore that , the po po and dfo had a huddle middle of road then walked down and again offered a meeting with a higher up (will add that info in comments , ,) I was still in jail ,,and [REDACTED] accepted which was something I was adamant about no talking with them , but it happens the way it is supposed to my talk and walk was and still is that had to happen with the gigames and matriarchs, I have sent info to [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] and posting this , asking for direction , [REDACTED] have said no more meetings but [REDACTED] suggested I go .. so my decision is to go and re affirm the demands of the people that permits , leases / tenure be denied and get these cesspools out of our waters , , and I will explain that I am speaking as a individuals and most important as a matriarch,, we will live feed it , , if there are any statements anyone wants then inbox me , , if you want to attend inbox me as well,, so in comments is the info on who from the government ... [REDACTED], tag names [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] Swanson Occupation camp had a visit from the local RCMP vessel on Friday (RCMP were checking to see if a Vancouver protest advertised was tying in to the Swanson Occupation) - [REDACTED] advised his audience with a video of the RCMP departing in the background on his FB profile. He stated that visit was an 'escalation' (nothing specific explained).

"This image was captured at the Swanson Occupation a night ago. This is a small dose of the daily marine traffic being monitored constantly.

The yellow vessel highlighted is a 500 thousand pound Norwegian Fish Carrier sailing with an undisclosed destination and a false ETA. In this image you can clearly see a course plotted directly for the Swanson Island fish farm. It is not until 5km out that the vessel alters to a northern course and disappears up Knight Inlet.

The blue vessel underneath is one of countless 'fishing vessels' that is fully capable of carrying a load of smolts to Swanson Island, should the corporation pursue 'alternate' means of delivery. We must track them all and watch where they dock. The green vessel is BC Ferries. No colour can be trusted.

X marks our spot, and what a treasure it is for Wild Salmon!! Some juveniles are nearing the sea now, and a rare refuge is awaiting them inside Swanson Island. For decades the proliferation of sea lice, PRV, and other deadly accumulations has stained this region. The young ones can find shelter here now as they navigate the maze of disease factories in the Broughton Archipelago. The clam beds can breathe this summer free from toxic algae blooms. This area has been reclaimed as a haven for wild species; it won't take long for the message to spread. Yesterday a male Sea Otter swam by the empty farm, a once extinct species now checking the quality of the grounds? There has been a Sperm Whale forming a neat perimeter around the action the past few weeks. These are species at risk that will have to move off if we allow this farm to restock.

None of these toxic farmers have a track record for trust. None of these toxic farmers have permission to be here, poisoning the wild environment. The provincial government has a decision to make very soon, whether or not to renew permits for these toxic farmers to continue.

In the meantime it is business as usual for every single disease factory in the area except for right here."

I've attached the image as well, FYI. On the image the Swanson site fish farm is marked with an 'X' and the poster speaks about the yellow triangle (represents a vessel) inside of a red square.

The FB post above has been widely shared among fish farm protest FB pages and anti-Kinder Morgan Pipeline protest group/individuals' pages. The person's post is highly speculative about vessel traffic, but indicates that people linked to the Swanson Occupation group are not un-savvy re: knowing where to find public domain information re: vessel traffic monitoring (AIS in this case).

Report Date and Time:

Incident Date and Time:

2018-03-02 08:00 to approx.10:00

Issue:

Protesters returned to C&P Victoria office and chained the front door closed with metal chain and a pad lock. Part of the chain was wrapped around one of the protesters neck.

Background:

In December 2017, protesters camped out at the Victoria office for approximately 30 days until they were arrested for trespassing.

In January 2018, protesters returned to the Victoria office after charges were dropped. They chained the front doors to the Victoria office closed. They were arrested and charged with criminal mischief.

On February 16th, 2018 Provincial Crown and Saanich Police Department notified Detachment Supervisor Ludlow that they were dropping the recent charges against the protesters. Saanich police indicated that they believe the protesters will be back to conduct activity that would result in, "having a day in court". The protesters indicated to Saanich PD that they want their day in court.

On Feb.28th, several protesters returned to the Victoria Office. They protested peacefully in front of the main doors for most of the day.

On March 1st 2018, the front doors were chained again.

Current Status:

Saanich police did not arrest the person chained to the door and left the site with her chained to the door. DFO staff have left the site and are operating elsewhere.

Strategic Considerations:

Staff will continue to either operate in the field or from the Duncan C&P office for the immediate future.

Strategic Communications:

Updated media lines need to be developed. Leri Davies is away right now and the phone number in her out of office reply goes to voice-mail.

Detachment Supervisor Comments:

The back door is operational, however it is not an easy access point for anyone with a disability.

- On February 28th, 2018 protesters returned to C&P Victoria office and blocking access of the office to employees and the public.
 - The protest activities are related to First Nations opposition to salmon farming in the Broughton Archipelago, the upcoming provincial tenure renewal decisions, and the fact that DFO has continued to authorize permits to re-stock farms in the Broughton area.
 - DFO's primary concern is for staff's safety in the office if the protesters block the front door again or gain access to the building.
- Marine Harvest Canada application to re-stock the Swanson Island Site
 - DFO's Introductions and Transfers Committee has received an application from Marine Harvest Canada to re-stock their Swanson Island site on February 28, 2018.

Hi Joanna,

We received information from Roy that a woman went into Owen Business Solutions (OBS) (our neighbors at 4250 Commerce Circle) on Friday March 2nd 2018 asking about the DFO office.

OBS informed her that we were not in the office and she said something to the effect of not having freedom of speech.

Upon replaying our new security cameras, Mandy was able to see that [REDACTED] a Caucasian woman tried the DFO doors then went to OBS then left at approximately 13:15 on Friday March 2nd.

I ran the plate and it came back to the information attached to this email.

Mandy asked for this information to be sent on to you.

It does not appear that [REDACTED] intend to return to DFO this morning, but if no DFO staff and no Saanich PD are present this AM at the office, any attempt at disruption by any of them or their supporters is likely to get boring quickly, if anyone does show up.

[REDACTED] both noted last week that they intend to keep getting arrested until they 'get their day in court'.
[REDACTED]

Mandy and Linda - FYI note that these 3 and/or their supporters have been doing surveillance of the Victoria office in past, they relayed that info in videos they shot/shared when explaining to police how they knew DFO has a back door and staff routinely use it. It is possible they may have someone drive by or watch the office periodically to see if it is worth their time to make a disruption attempt.

[REDACTED]
She posted (Director) Mike Carlson's GOC 411 contact details on her FB profile page, indicating she may still believe it is C&P DFO she wants to disrupt/meet with/express anger towards. She also posted photos of her hands and wrists (re: being hurt). This has had the desired effect of getting sympathy from her supporters. Throughout her statements on FB she sounds like she was minding her own business peacefully when she was arrested without warning.

She also posted the following on , indicating she still believes that someone in a Govt or public official role (likely she believes it is DFO) is offering her a meeting:

*"When they were transporting [REDACTED] and I from jail to court house I overheard the cop saying , yep the crown is not allowing the charges to stand , this is the 3rd time arresting and releasing us,, [REDACTED] signed yet Friday she was back at dfo and had signed conditions day before and they choose to ignore that , the po po and dfo had a huddle middle of road then walked down and again offered a meeting with a higher up (will add that info in comments , ,) I was still in jail ,,and [REDACTED] accepted which was something I was adamant about no talking with them , but it happens the way it is supposed to my talk and walk was and still is that had to happen with the gigantes and matriarchs, I have sent info to [REDACTED]
[REDACTED] and posting this , asking for direction , [REDACTED] have said no more meetings but [REDACTED] suggested I go .. so my decision is to go and re affirm the demands of the people that permits , leases / tenure be denied and get these cesspools out of our waters , , and I will explain that I am speaking as a individuals and most important as a matriarch,, we will live feed it , , if there are any statements anyone wants then inbox me , , if you want to attend inbox me as well , so in comments is the info on who from the government ... [REDACTED] tag names [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] Swanson Occupation camp had a visit from the local RCMP vessel on Friday (RCMP were checking to see if a Vancouver protest advertised was tying in to the Swanson Occupation) - [REDACTED] advised his audience with a video of the RCMP departing in the background on his FB profile. He stated that visit was an 'escalation' (nothing specific explained).

*"This image was captured at the Swanson Occupation a night ago. This is a small dose of the daily marine traffic being monitored constantly.
The yellow vessel highlighted is a 500 thousand pound Norwegian Fish Carrier sailing with an undisclosed destination and a false ETA. In this image you can clearly see a course plotted directly for the Swanson Island fish farm. It is not until 5km out that the vessel alters to a northern course and disappears up Knight Inlet. The blue vessel underneath is one of countless 'fishing vessels' that is fully capable of carrying a load of smolts to Swanson Island, should the corporation pursue 'alternate' means of delivery. We must track them all and watch where they dock. The green vessel is BC Ferries. No colour can be trusted.*

X marks our spot. and what a treasure it is for Wild Salmon!! Some juveniles are nearing the sea now, and a rare refuge is awaiting them inside Swanson Island. For decades the proliferation of sea lice, PRV, and other deadly accumulations has stained this region. The young ones can find shelter here now as they navigate the maze of disease factories in the Broughton Archipelago. The clam beds can breathe this summer freer from toxic algae blooms. This area has been reclaimed as a haven for wild species; it won't take long for the message to spread. Yesterday a male Sea Otter swam by the empty farm, a once extinct species now checking the quality of the grounds? There has been a Sperm Whale forming a neat perimeter around the action the past few weeks. These are species at risk that will have to move off if we allow this farm to restock.

None of these toxic farmers have a track record for trust. None of these toxic farmers have permission to be here, poisoning the wild environment. The provincial government has a decision to make very soon, whether or not to renew permits for these toxic farmers to continue.

In the meantime it is business as usual for every single disease factory in the area except for right here."

I've attached the image as well, FYI. On the image the Swanson site fish farm is marked with an 'X' and the poster speaks about the yellow triangle (represents a vessel) inside of a red square.

The FB post above has been widely shared among fish farm protest FB pages and anti-Kinder Morgan Pipeline protest group/individuals' pages. The person's post is highly speculative about vessel traffic, but indicates that people linked to the Swanson Occupation group are not un-savvy re: knowing where to find public domain information re: vessel traffic monitoring (AIS in this case).

Hi Nitasha -

Just FYI - had a perusal for an hour on FB.

Seems the 3rd arrested woman at DFO last week is confirming in her own FBpages now that it was her - [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] She relates a few details of her arrest and release when asked by folks on FB about it. [REDACTED] also refers to [REDACTED] several times on her FB pages. [REDACTED] advises one of her FB friends that she was not charged with anything. She also complains that she was not advised by police re: the right to remain silent (but advises that she did stay silent anyway).

It does not appear that [REDACTED] intend to return to DFO this morning, but I think if no DFO staff and no Saanich PD are present this AM, any attempt at disruption is likely to get boring quickly for anyone who does show up.

His post is highly speculative, but indicates that folks linked to the Swanson Occupation group are not un-savvy re: knowing where to find public domain information re: vessel traffic monitoring (AIS in this case).

You'll also see 2 emails I sent over the weekend re: Kinder Morgan Pipeline (KMP) protests and how that relates to the fish farm protest info we are gathering. The anti-KMP protest groups are highly organized [REDACTED]

Some of the same protesters appear to be participating in both groups (fish farm/Swanson Occupation and anti-KMP), so this is for awareness re: possible disruptive activities directed at fish farm facilities and assets, tactics learned at the much more organized and sophisticated (and supported by various MP's and MLA's) anti-KMP protests. For instance, the various anti-KMP FB groups advertise classes in: getting arrested; what to do in jail/detention; how to be a legal observer and note taking and video taking; and how to confront police actions, to name a few, and that's just what they openly advertise on FB. It's extensive (I have to keep from going down the rabbit hole). The anti-KMP groups are having a mass march in Burnaby on 10 March - unknown at this time if that will have any bearing on fish farm protests, I do not see anything linking the 2 for that date yet.

Chat later. I'm in work at about 9:30 am.

Cheers,
Jo

Subject: Info for Monday 05MAR2018 re: protests (Victoria and off-site from Campbell River)

It does not appear that [REDACTED] intend to return to DFO this morning, but if no DFO staff and no Saanich PD are present this AM at the office, any attempt at disruption by any of them or their supporters is likely to get boring quickly, if anyone does show up.

[REDACTED] both noted last week that they intend to keep getting arrested until they 'get their day in court'.
[REDACTED]

Mandy and Linda - FYI note that these 3 and/or their supporters have been doing surveillance of the Victoria office in past, they relayed that info in videos they shot/shared when explaining to police how they knew DFO has a back door and staff routinely use it. It is possible they may have someone drive by or watch the office periodically to see if it is worth their time to make a disruption attempt.

[REDACTED]
She posted (Director) Mike Carlson's GOC 411 contact details on her FB profile page, indicating she may still believe it is C&P DFO she wants to disrupt/meet with/express anger towards. She also posted photos of her hands and wrists (re: being hurt). This has had the desired effect of getting sympathy from her supporters. Throughout her statements on FB she sounds like she was minding her own business peacefully when she was arrested without warning.

She also posted the following on , indicating she still believes that someone in a Govt or public official role (likely she believes it is DFO) is offering her a meeting:

"When they were transporting [REDACTED] and I from jail to court house I overheard the cop saying , yep the crown is not allowing the charges to stand , this is the 3rd time arresting and releasing us,, [REDACTED] signed yet Friday she was back at dfo and had signed conditions day before and they choose to ignore that , the po po and dfo had a huddle middle of road then walked down and again offered a meeting with a higher up (will add that info in comments ,) I was still in jail ,and shawna accepted which was something I was adamant about no talking with them , but it happens the way it is supposed to my talk and walk was and still is that had to happen with the gigames and matriarchs, I have sent info to [REDACTED] and posting this , asking for direction , [REDACTED] have said no more meetings but [REDACTED] suggested I go .. so [REDACTED]

my decision is to go and re affirm the demands of the people that permits , leases / tenure be denied and get these cesspools out of our waters , and I will explain that I am speaking as a individuals and most important as a matriarch,, we will live feed it , if there are any statements anyone wants then inbox me , if you want to attend inbox me as well , so in comments is the info on who from the government ... , [REDACTED], tag names [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] Swanson Occupation camp had a visit from the local RCMP vessel on Friday (RCMP were checking to see if a Vancouver protest advertised was tying in to the Swanson Occupation) - [REDACTED] advised his audience with a video of the RCMP departing in the background on his FB profile. He stated that visit was an 'escalation' (nothing specific explained).

*"This image was captured at the Swanson Occupation a night ago. This is a small dose of the daily marine traffic being monitored constantly.
The yellow vessel highlighted is a 500 thousand pound Norwegian Fish Carrier sailing with an undisclosed destination and a false ETA. In this image you can clearly see a course plotted directly for the Swanson Island fish farm. It is not until 5km out that the vessel alters to a northern course and disappears up Knight Inlet. The blue vessel underneath is one of countless 'fishing vessels' that is fully capable of carrying a load of smolts to Swanson Island, should the corporation pursue 'alternate' means of delivery. We must track them all and watch where they dock. The green vessel is BC Ferries. No colour can be trusted.
X marks our spot, and what a treasure it is for Wild Salmon!! Some juveniles are nearing the sea now, and a rare refuge is awaiting them inside Swanson Island. For decades the proliferation of sea lice, PRV, and other deadly accumulations has stained this region. The young ones can find shelter here now as they navigate the maze of disease factories in the Broughton Archipelago. The clam beds can breathe this summer freer from toxic algae blooms. This area has been reclaimed as a haven for wild species; it won't take long for the message to spread. Yesterday a male Sea Otter swam by the empty farm, a once extinct species now checking the quality of the grounds? There has been a Sperm Whale forming a neat perimeter around the action the past few weeks. These are species at risk that will have to move off if we allow this farm to restock.
None of these toxic farmers have a track record for trust. None of these toxic farmers have permission to be here, poisoning the wild environment. The provincial government has a decision to make very soon, whether or not to renew permits for these toxic farmers to continue.
In the meantime it is business as usual for every single disease factory in the area except for right here."*

I've attached the image as well, FYI. On the image the Swanson site fish farm is marked with an 'X' and the poster speaks about the yellow triangle (represents a vessel) inside of a red square.

The FB post above has been widely shared among fish farm protest FB pages and anti-Kinder Morgan Pipeline protest group/individuals' pages. The person's post is highly speculative about vessel traffic, but indicates that people linked to the Swanson Occupation group are not un-savvy re: knowing where to find public domain information re: vessel traffic monitoring (AIS in this case).

Hello Anita & Elizabeth,

I want to update you with regards to the ongoing protests at Commerce Circle. There is room for us to do work at IOS; however, much the essential materials I need (including my PC, work binder, GAC paperwork, etc) is located at our office.

As noted below, C&P seems to have received intelligence that "protesters are looking to get our home addresses". I was planning to visit work to gather some essentials, but am not well-versed in losing a possible "tail" and do not wish to have my home-life potentially disrupted.

At this time, Dick is receiving calls forwarded from the Victoria office. Unfortunately, rumours of Chinook salmon fishing closures have his phone ringing off the hook (25+ calls in his 2-hour shift today alone).

I'm going to continue to do my best to tread water through this but want to give you advance notice that my ability to do my work is heavily disrupted at this time.

Elizabeth: Do you know if it's possible for IT to get me an emergency laptop that I can use at IOS? And any idea if a Blackberry could field my forwarded office calls?

Thanks for your understanding during this time :)

Good morning Dick,

As you've likely heard, we've been asked not to work out of the Commerce Circle office following an escalation in the protests late last week.

I've been working from home catching up on volumes of emails and plan to head to IOS tomorrow so I can reconnect with the network. Unfortunately, until we're back in the office I don't have access to my telephone and it will continue to forward to your line. I'm not sure what the timeline for getting back into the office is, but it seems like the protesters are happy to keep disrupting operations there.

Regarding the new Ricoh multifunction, I received an email from Procurement saying that the contract has been entered and I have contacted IT to clarify what the next steps are. I'll keep you in the loop and we'll hope for delivery by the end of March.

If you need to contact me by telephone, you can reach me on my personal cell at [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] thanks for taking my calls. I imagine there have been quite a few with the halibut opening and rumours of orca-related fin fish closures.

All the best,

Andrew

FO Cormie contacted Saanich PD's lead investigator for this file, Sgt Andy Stuart. She alerted him to the upcoming protest and learned that they did not have plans to attend.

[REDACTED]

FO Cormie reported to the affiant that a rally in support of the protest took place at the DFO office in Victoria on December 14th, with about 75 people in attendance-can you guys grab this inf o off social media?

FYI I had to take these out of my narrative as they are two person removed.

Hi Mandy,

I have arranged to use office space occupied by an old colleague at IOS, so as long as I can get access to the building I can work there. The big thing is a computer, but I have got a loaner from IT and will be picking it up tomorrow morning at CCG VicBase.

So, yes. I think it's safe to release the space held for me by Noel.

We will have to stay away from the office until likely next week. I just asked Linda and this is what she said: Can we stay away for a few more days please. We have a meeting set with NHQ and Rebecca to discuss solutions late tomorrow afternoon.

A few more days is until Friday, so away we will stay.

Is anyone going to go to IOS?

Also, if you can ever make the calls, we are doing Thursday 1000 hrs update calls re: fish farm protests in Claire's area. On the calls are either Sgt. Andrew Isles or Sgt. Colin Cook (Alert Bay RCMP in contact with protesters), myself, IA Nitasha Chohan, and usually either Claire, Joe Knight or Greg Plummer. It's meant to be a brief update call (15 mins or so), ops are not planned on it.

I will fwd you the call-in invite. Feel free to have someone else sit on in your place if you'd like as well.

Hi folks,

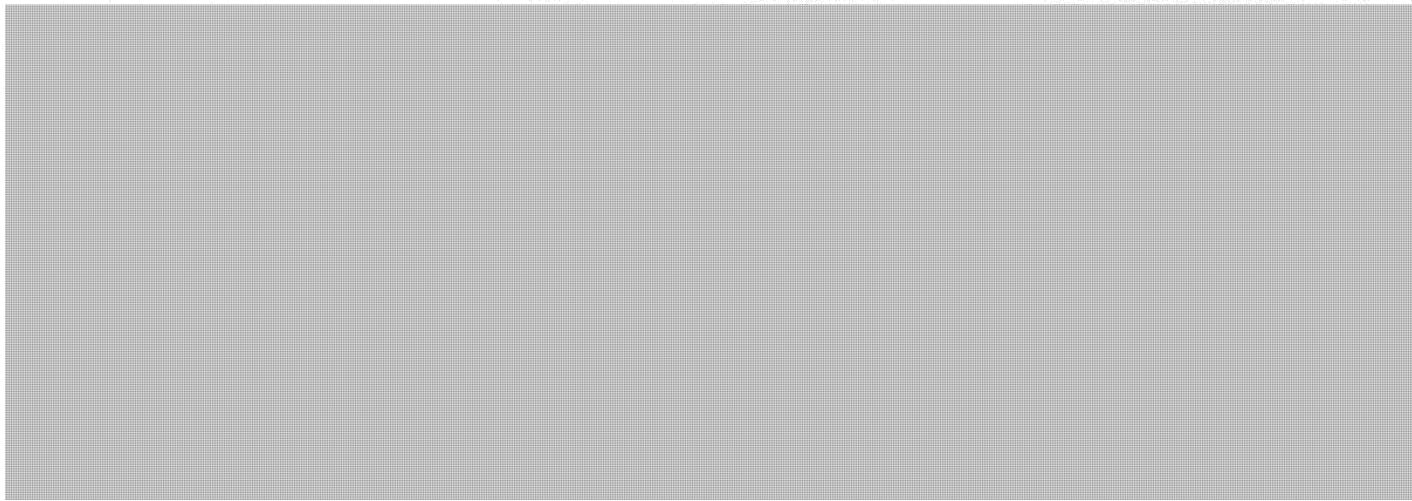

FYI re: new protester activity –

It appears that protesters or their supporters are abusing the local Crime Stoppers unit in Campbell River to vent their frustrations.

Background

s.16(2)(c)

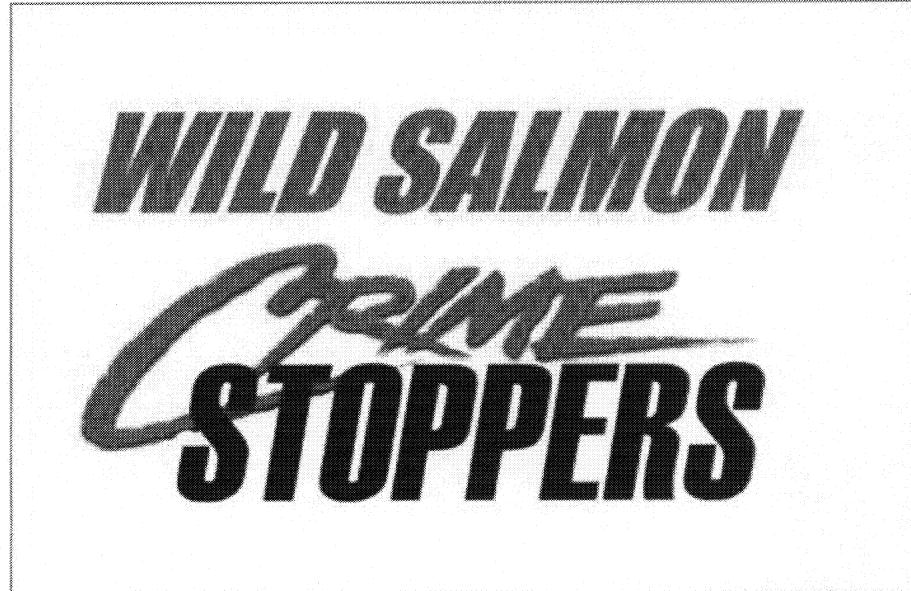

Campbell River Crime Stoppers has received 5 tips from the evening of 05MAR2018- morning of 06MAR2018 regarding fish farms – all 5 tips hold no real merit for starting an investigation. I believe the tips are all being called in by salmon farm protestors or their supporters. No actual crimes or fisheries violations are being reported. The tips are anonymously laid, with no way to contact the tipsters, and the various reports contain statements like:

It is highly likely the CS 'tips' are in response to a post [REDACTED] put up on Facebook on 05MAR2018. [REDACTED] [REDACTED] a campaign notice exists that states metro Vancouver Crime Stoppers is teaming up with the BC Salmon Farmer's Association "to collect anonymous tips on illegal fishing & hunting, the sale of animal parts, dumping and more". [REDACTED] posted that Crime Stopper's campaign notice along with his own statement,

"Desperate & pathetic. Someone report to Crime Stoppers that Marine Harvest is violating environmental, traditional and basic fisheries laws. Call (604) 646-3567 to tell Crime Stoppers to get out of bed with the criminals. Those that know how to "ka'yudi" or argue, please do so. #CrimeStoppers should not be involved with criminals."

[REDACTED] also posted a few hours later on 05MAR 2018, with the attached image,
"Dear Marine Harvest,
You are being investigated.
Respectfully, the original (local) DFO"

s.20(1)(b)
s.21(1)(a)
s.21(1)(b)

The Campbell River Crime Stopper coordinator and I are talking about this tomorrow on a call, so he knows how to classify these kinds of tips and can advise metro Vancouver Crime Stoppers as well. These recent tips have also been forwarded to N.I. CO Service, I'm speaking to CO Mike Newton about them today as well.

Hi Derek and Jason –

Just FYI, I've bcc'd both of you on my response [REDACTED] below (Campbell River CS Tip line) and to Mike, BC CO Service. I've asked to speak with them both by phone, so they at least know what likely inspired this weird influx of fisheries oriented Crime Stoppers tips.

We've now received 5 of these tips just since last night, all reporting, essentially, nonsense complaints that are neither a report of a crime nor of a verifiable fisheries violation. I believe all 5 are coming from the protesters or their supporters in the Campbell River area. So they are not above abusing a community oriented crime solving tool to try to further their cause and vent their outrage.

Nitasha - Tips attached for your reference. They should NOT be included in any products, but this event is worth noting re: possible reference to protest activities at fish farms, north Vancouver Island areas.

How does this sound for a key judgement:

It is likely that the protestors will cause themselves injury when getting arrested and/or detained in an attempt to garner sympathy and support for their cause. In all previous incidents, the protestors have used their Indigenous status as means to justify their presence on the DFO property. Further, the female protestors have taken the lead during these incidents and have been the ones that have gotten arrested. Once released from jail, these protestors will post comments using terms such as "shackled, hatred in their eyes, knees on my throat, might not make it out alive" amongst others. It is suspected that the females are taking the lead and using such terms in order to garner more attention and sympathy from their supporters.

I was wondering if it is worth mentioning that these protesters are seeking to get arrested therefore If they are unable to get arrested at DFO, they may choose to move their protests elsewhere more productive to their cause. They do not directly seem concerned about blocking DFO staff from routine work tasks. They are also willing to cause themselves injury when getting arrested/detained to garner sympathy and support for their cause, as they use race and sex (it's the women insisting on getting arrested) as a basis for inciting public outrage. These appear to be planned tactics, not random choices.

Please work with C and P and do not use the office until this has happened. The protesters are doing drive bys. If someone is in the office, they will be back. I can't guarantee you are safe at the office. I am the DSO and am responsible for the office.

We can use space at IOS for the time being. Noel has worked that out. Just go to the commisionaires office when you get there. If you need to come and get your computer equip. Etc. Please try and do it outside of office hours, or super early and please have someone, preferably one of us with you.

I know this sucks, but it is the cards we are dealt. The deputy minister is aware and is working with the RDG to get a meeting with the matriarch group.

Hi folks,

FYI re: new protester activity –

It appears that protesters or their supporters are abusing the local Crime Stoppers unit in Campbell River to vent their frustrations.

Background

Campbell River Crime Stoppers has received 5 tips from the evening of 05MAR2018- morning of 06MAR2018 regarding fish farms – all 5 tips hold no real merit for starting an investigation. I believe the tips are all being called in by salmon farm protestors or their supporters. No actual crimes or fisheries violations are being reported. The tips are anonymously laid, with no way to contact the tipsters, and the various reports contain statements like:

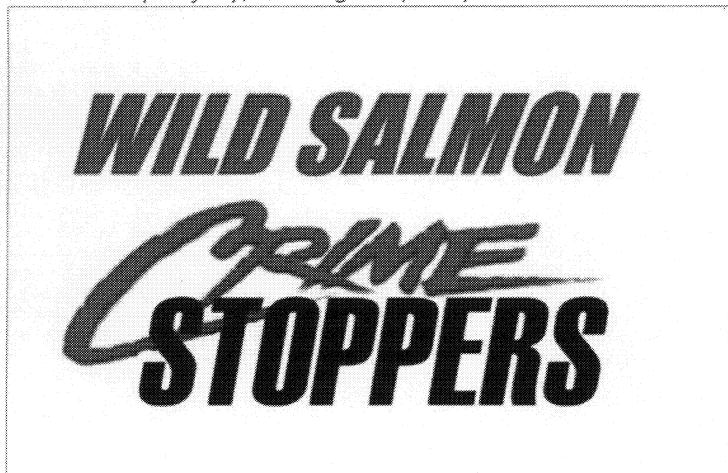

[REDACTED]

It is highly likely the CS 'tips' are in response to a post [REDACTED] put up on Facebook on 05MAR2018. [REDACTED]
[REDACTED] a campaign notice exists that states metro Vancouver Crime Stoppers is teaming up with the BC Salmon Farmer's Association "to collect anonymous tips on illegal fishing & hunting, the sale of animal parts, dumping and more". [REDACTED] posted that Crime Stopper's campaign notice along with his own statement,

"Desperate & pathetic. Someone report to Crime Stoppers that Marine Harvest is violating environmental, traditional and basic fisheries laws. Call (604) 646-3567 to tell Crime Stoppers to get out of bed with the criminals. Those that know how to "ka'yudi" or argue, please do so. #CrimeStoppers should not be involved with criminals."

[REDACTED] also posted a few hours later on 05MAR 2018, with the attached image,
*"Dear Marine Harvest,
You are being investigated.
Respectfully, the original (local) DFO"*

The Campbell River Crime Stopper coordinator and I are talking about this tomorrow on a call, so he knows how to classify these kinds of tips and can advise metro Vancouver Crime Stoppers as well. These recent tips have also been forwarded to N.I. CO Service, I'm speaking to CO Mike Newton about them today as well.

Hi Derek and Jason –

Just FYI, I've bcc'd both of you on my response [REDACTED] below (Campbell River CS Tip line) and to Mike, BC CO Service. I've asked to speak with them both by phone, so they at least know what likely inspired this weird influx of fisheries oriented Crime Stoppers tips.

We've now received 5 of these tips just since last night, all reporting, essentially, nonsense complaints that are neither a report of a crime nor of a verifiable fisheries violation. I believe all 5 are coming from the protesters or their supporters in the Campbell River area. So they are not above abusing a community oriented crime solving tool to try to further their cause and vent their outrage.

Nitasha - Tips attached for your reference. They should NOT be included in any products, but this event is worth noting re: possible reference to protest activities at fish farms, north Vancouver Island areas.

Tipsters offered rewards for information on wildlife and environmental crimes

Metro Vancouver Crime Stoppers team up with BC Salmon Farmers Association for new campaign to combat environmental crime on salmon farms & harvesting, the use of salmon nets, smuggling and more.

Vancouver, BC (March 1, 2018) – A new Crime Stoppers campaign is being launched in partnership with the BC Salmon Farmers Association to encourage people to anonymously report illegal activity affecting wildlife and our natural seas and marine ecosystems in British Columbia.

Harming animal parts or species at risk, illegal net fishing, and fishing or hunting out of season threaten the very natural resources that are an important source of livelihood for many B.C. communities, and are a vital part of our province's sportfishing economy.

Additional crimes include unpermitted logging or dredging, toxic releases, disturbing seabird colonies, illegal trapping, seals, grizzly or polar bears, poaching, failing to re-seed or restore the land after a permit and illegal activities in ports and enforcement areas.

With BC's Salmon Farmers, Crime Stoppers will develop a media campaign for local community centres, parks, museums and tourism agencies and other publications. The campaign encourages individuals to provide tips to police, however anyone with any information on an environmental crime,

The new campaign message will also be shared through social media including Facebook, Twitter, Instagram and YouTube. An online contest with Crime Stoppers will be "Photo-Submit" where individuals can also bring attention to positive message by posting in the competition-based environmental cause.

Because BC's contributions to our local economy are also starting to grow with the introduction of environmental crime investigations which is costing billions of dollars. In 2016, nearly 100,000 tips and the value of nearly $10 million in environmental programs were environmental crime with corruption, counterfeiting, drug trafficking, kidnapping, human slavery and even with terrorist organizations. An estimated 80 per cent of cases are resulting "that BC Salmon Farmers are the first group to step up to the plate when Metro Vancouver Crime Stoppers initiated this partnership. Together, we're going to give with information to support an environmental crime tip, pass on the information to police and other authorities. In our respective logs for Crime Stoppers, there are areas to arrest, and create a database for future illegal activities, and that should include crimes against wildlife and the environment too."

James Davis of the BC Salmon Farmers Association said BC's environmental challenges call for new thinking on wildlife, habitat and biodiversity issues today. "We are proud to be the founding partner of this unique group that is essential to keeping British Columbia a great place to live, work and play," Davis said.

Tipsters offered rewards for information on wildlife and environmental crimes

Metro Vancouver Crime Stoppers teams up with BC Salmon Farmers Association for new campaign to collect anonymous tips on illegal fishing & hunting, the sale of animal parts, dumping and more

Vancouver, BC [March 5, 2018] – A new Crime Stoppers campaign is being launched in partnership with the BC Salmon Farmers Association to encourage people to anonymously report illegal activity affecting wildlife and our natural land and marine environment in British Columbia.

Selling animal parts or species at risk, illegal overfishing, and fishing or hunting out of season threaten the very natural resources that are an important source of livelihood for many British Columbians, and are a vital part of our province's world-renowned eco-system.

Additional crimes include unlawful night hunting or shooting from roadways, dumping waste on Crown land, illegally removing sand, gravel or wood from public lands, having fires in restricted fire zones or without a permit and illegal activities in parks and protected areas.

With BC's Salmon Farmers, Crime Stoppers will develop a media campaign for local community centres, parks, marinas and boating centres and other public spaces. The campaign encourages individuals to provide tips by phone, text or online with any information on an environmental crime.

The new campaign message will also be shared through social media including Facebook, Twitter, Instagram and Snapchat. An online contest with Crime Stoppers' familiar "#worldwithout"-themed hashtag is also being planned to further engage the public in the conversation about environmental crime.

Beyond B.C., jurisdictions around the world are also coming to grips with the proliferation of environmental crime internationally which is costing billions of dollars. A 2016 report by INTERPOL and the United Nations Environment Programme links environmental crime with corruption, counterfeiting, drug trafficking, cybercrime, financial crimes and even with terrorist organizations. An estimated 80 per cent of nations see tackling environmental crime as a "national priority".

"For us, it's a matter of acting locally to address something that's proliferating around the globe," says [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] Faces Arrest for Protecting Wild Salmon

[REDACTED] rights activist [REDACTED] faces potential arrest tomorrow on the 67th day of the indigenous-led, all-women's Wild Salmon Matriarch Camp occupation outside of government offices complicit in the demise of the traditional salmon food fishery of her peoples.

The occupation which she began on October 13th at the constituency offices of Premier John Horgan, later moving to the Department of Fisheries and Oceans (DFO), is in solidarity with fish farm occupations happening in the Namgis and Musgamagw Dzawada'enuxw territories, aimed at bringing about an end to a 30 year era of open-net Atlantic salmon aquaculture operating without Indigenous consent on territorial waters in the Broughton archipelago.

There is a growing body of scientific evidence confirming what local Indigenous communities have long known, that the presence of disease and parasite infested open-net fish farms on the migratory routes of wild salmon, have been a major and undeniable factor in the decline of wild salmon stocks, negatively impacting communities from Alert Bay to the upper reaches of the Fraser River.

At the request of the DFO, last week, the owner of the property at 4356 Commerce Circle, where the DFO offices are located, demanded that the Wild Salmon Matriarch Camp be taken down and vacate the premises or be subject to arrest for trespassing. Police are expected on site Monday, December 18th.

[REDACTED] expressed her determination to remain on site as part of the on-going pressure on both provincial and federal governments to

[REDACTED] expressed her determination to remain on site as part of the on-going pressure on both provincial and federal governments to remove fish farms from the marine environment. She is prepared to risk arrest to assert the Rights and Title of her peoples to protect their food fishery from the trespass of open-net fish farms that operate without consent of Indigenous nations in their territories.

If the camp is evicted, she and supporters have vowed to carry on the struggle to get fish farms out of the marine ecosystems where they remain as a dire threat to all that depends on wild salmon, a keystone species that sustains the coastal web of life, including bears, eagles, orcas, old-growth forests, First Nations communities and local fishing and tourism economies.

According to [REDACTED] "this property is trespassing on the stolen lands of our ancestors. I have permission to be here on the unceded territories of my cousins. If I get thrown in jail it will only help keep the issue of fish farms in the public spotlight. In the meantime, we ask the landlord and DFO staff to go home and enjoy the holiday" she said

Supporters are being asked to make themselves available on shift all day to witness and protest the possible arrest.

Effective Date: 2018-03-07

Bulletin #: 2018-W-IB-006

Subject:	Protest Activity – Department of Fisheries and Oceans (DFO) - Victoria Office
Distribution:	Conservation and Protection (C&P) – South Coast Area, C&P Regional Headquarters (RHQ), Saanich Police Department
Issued on behalf of:	DFO Victoria Office

KEY JUDGMENTS:

There is a high likelihood that [REDACTED] other protestors pose a future safety concern to staff at the Victoria office. On a number of occasions, [REDACTED] indicated that she wants her "day in court" and will take whatever action required obtaining that day. Since December 2017, her behavior has intensified from trespassing to mischief. During the interaction on March 1, 2018, [REDACTED] described the event as more dramatic than the previous incident as Fishery Officers asked the protestors to consider their safety. Blocking the front door posed a significant threat to DFO staff in the event of an evacuation.¹

[REDACTED] may escalate her behavior even further to obtain more serious charges that will allow for her to testify in court. The recent and un-forecasted escalation in behavior [REDACTED] indicates that her tactics are unpredictable which pose physical danger to staff, police officers, and the public. The escalation in behavior has included threats of protest; peaceful protest at sites; trespass at sites; blocking of vehicle access for staff and public; depositing human waste on the site; using threatening tones with Fishery Officers who have offered information; and ongoing vague threats of protests.² Most recently, she has indicated an escalation by stating "they have to be stopped by any means necessary."³

There is a high likelihood that the operational capacity of the Victoria office will continue to be impeded. The protestors have blocked access to the front door on three separate occasions. As such, staff are unable to operate safely within the building and have been working remotely from another local office.

Furthermore, it is likely that the protestors will cause themselves injury when getting arrested and/or detained in an attempt to garner sympathy and support for their cause. In all previous incidents, the protestors have used their Indigenous status as means to justify their presence on the property. Further, the female protestors have taken the lead and been on the frontlines of these protests. Consequently, they were arrested. Once released from jail, these protestors will post comments using terms such as "shackled, hatred in their eyes, knees on my throat, might not make it out alive"⁴ amongst others. It is suspected that the females are taking the lead and using such terms in order to garner more attention and sympathy from their supporters.

BACKGROUND:

As per the Pacific Aquaculture Regulations, aquaculture is defined as the cultivation of fish.⁵ The Department of Fisheries and Oceans assumed the primary management and regulation of aquaculture in British Columbia in 2010 and ensures the industry operates in a sustainable manner.⁶

On November 13, 2017, individuals protesting fish farms had set up camp on an area adjacent to a Conservation and Protection (C&P) warehouse entry door located at 4250 Commerce Circle, Victoria. DFO is a tenant at this location and does not own or manage the property. The property also houses other tenants who have complained about the protest encampment. The property management company had attempted to remove the protestors as the occupancy had become a sanitation issue since the protestors had been observed defecating on the property.⁷

The camp was visible from the roadside and from the office entrance. The front door of the office remained locked and all personal employee vehicles were parked on the street due to safety concerns.⁸

On February 27, 2018, Intelligence Bulletin 2018-W-IB-003 was disseminated to C&P - South Coast Area, the Saanich Police Department, and C&P Regional Headquarters, discussing the protest activity that had taken place from November 13, 2017 to February 26, 2018. On February 26, 2018, [REDACTED] posted a video on her Facebook profile indicating that the Matriarch Camp will return to the Victoria office starting on Wednesday, February 28, 2018 from 0900 to 1500 hours. [REDACTED] indicated that solidarity action will be taken on Friday and encouraged other protestors to join. The video did not indicate if she intended on protesting peacefully, but it implied that she was encouraging a lengthy stay at the Victoria location.¹¹

On February 28, 2018, [REDACTED] a female believed to be [REDACTED] and one unidentified female arrived at the Victoria office at approximately 0900 hours. [REDACTED] drummed outside of the front doors whilst the rest of the group sat in front of the door, blocking access. At approximately 1100 hours, [REDACTED] arrived with one unidentified male¹⁴ and two females, [REDACTED]

The protestors left at approximately 1330 hours.¹⁷ According to [REDACTED] the group left the site earlier than previously indicated to "secure our tent in the crazy wind."¹⁸ She further stated that "We will be back at the DFO tomorrow morning at 9 am."¹⁹

On March 1, 2018, [REDACTED] posted "Goodmorning. We are heading again to the DFO for 9 am to hold space for our wild salmon. 4250 Commerce Circle Victoria. Please come join us. Thank you."²⁰ At approximately 1000 hours, [REDACTED] posted a video outside of the Victoria office. In the video, she states the following:

"This is [REDACTED] March 1st. We have chained the doors again closed to the DFO. Probably gonna get arrested pretty quick..."²¹

"They want to start filling Swanson Island and the DFO are allowing Marine Harvest to do this. Minister Leblanc is still suing [REDACTED]. This has to happen so in a symbolic gesture, we have again chained the doors closed for today. There will be no DFO going on today in Victoria. This is us standing up and saying this has to end, this has to end now."²²

"Last time, we were arrested within a half hour. And this time, DFO, four of them rushed the door so I had to quickly put on the chain and lock the door really, really fast. It was a bit more dramatic this time. They said do you realize you are putting are safety at risk and we said you have a back door. We wouldn't do it if we knew you didn't. What about the safety of our salmon, they don't have a back door. They don't get a day off."²³

At approximately 1000 hours, CTV News arrived on scene with a camera.²⁴ However, no articles were posted on their respective website.

[REDACTED] also posted a video on her respective Facebook profile stating the following:

"Yes, [REDACTED] We're at DFO office at 4250 Commerce circle, Victoria. We have decided to be unpredictable and locked up the door. Three fisheries officer on the inside of the door said that obviously we didn't care about their safety which I pointed out that last time we did this as well as yesterday, their employees left the back door. So I don't understand their pulling the victim role. So anyway this is our second day coming here and what we are doing here is pushing the colonial law as far as we can. We have been arrested twice so far and charges have been dropped both times. I consider these nuisance charges at this point. We have locked up the door and tomorrow we will be back doing the same. Then Monday, Tuesday, whatever it takes, we're here. Our people aren't going anywhere. The ocean is our grocery store and it is our duty to protect the waters."²⁵

At approximately 1130 hours, Saanich Police attended and spoke with the protestors. [REDACTED] advised the police officers that they were protesting the fish farms in Broughton Archipelago. One of the police officers asked [REDACTED] if she had spoken to DFO in an attempt to find a resolution. [REDACTED] stated that "there is no resolution and our demands are very, very simple."²⁶ The police officer advised [REDACTED] that she was violating the fire safety regulations by chaining the front door shut. [REDACTED] responded stating "I'd like to counter that with the fact that the DFO has been poisoning our waters and allowing it to happen." The police officer asked [REDACTED] if there was anything else she could do instead of padlocking the doors. She responded stating "There's absolutely nothing, not until they contact the matriarchs, the chiefs, and actually sit down and start a meeting. It's pretty simple, cease permits and licenses now. Once that's ceased, we can all go home and live our lives the way we would all like to."²⁷

When Saanich Police attempted to arrest [REDACTED] climbed into [REDACTED] lap in an attempt to resist arrest. The police officers attempted to negotiate [REDACTED] to avoid physical contact but the women refused to cooperate. The police officers had to physically [REDACTED] continued to resist and refused to stand so the police officers had to carry her to the police car by her arms and legs. [REDACTED] also refused to walk and had to be carried to the police car.²⁸

At approximately 1400 hours, [REDACTED] posted a video on her Facebook profile indicating that she had been released after signing her promise to appear for mischief charges. She indicated that she could not afford to be in jail [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] further stated that [REDACTED] had not been released as they were refusing to acknowledge colonial law, thus not signing the paperwork for release. She indicated that it was "symbolic chaining of the doors to remind DFO that they are not listening and aiding a complete "ethical" crime. We don't feel bad at what we have done. It's sad that we have to put ourselves in harm's way. The DFO officers were trying to make it sound like we had kidnapped them almost and their safety was questioned because they could not get out when we know there were two ways to get out. They got out last time."³⁰

On March 2, 2018, [REDACTED] posted a video on her Facebook profile indicating that she intended to get arrested again by breaching the condition of not going within 100 metres of Commerce Circle. She stated "...today is another showdown but maybe if the DFO wasn't allowing Marine Harvest to fill those pens on Swanson Island, we shouldn't be doing this. We have to show the DFO this is wrong. I'm not letting this team go down on their own. There's two of us already in jail and I guess I'll be with them. There's nothing else we can do at this point in time."³¹

At approximately 0800 hours, [REDACTED] returned to the Victoria office and chained the front door closed. Part of the chain was wrapped around her neck. The Saanich Police attended but did not arrest [REDACTED]. Shortly after the police left, the protestors also left.³²

[REDACTED] appeared in court on March 2, 2018.³³ No charges were laid.³⁴ Since being released, [REDACTED] has posted a complaint on Facebook indicating that she was physically hurt during her arrest and detention. She posted a number of photos on her page showing bruises on her hands and wrists.³⁵ In these posts, [REDACTED] is portraying herself as a victim by indicating that she was protesting peacefully when she was arrested without warning.³⁶

At approximately 1315 hours, an unidentified woman went to the Victoria office doors after staff and protestors had departed and tried to enter the office. The woman then went to Owen Business Solutions (OBS), a business next door and enquired about the DFO office. OBS advised the woman that DFO were away and the woman commented something to the effect of not having freedom of speech. This may be an indication of ongoing counter-surveillance by protestors to determine when DFO staff are in the office for conducting an effective disruption to DFO operations.³⁷

On March 4, 2018, [REDACTED] posted the following description of the arrests and potential to meet with DFO on her Facebook profile:

"When they were transporting [REDACTED] and I from jail to court house I overheard the cop saying , yep the crown is not allowing the charges to stand , this is the 3rd time arresting and releasing us,, [REDACTED] signed yet Friday she was back at dfo and had signed conditions day before and they choose to ignore that , the po po and dfo had a huddle middle of road then walked down and again offered a meeting with a higher up (will add that info in comments ,) I was still in jail „and [REDACTED] accepted which was something I was adamant about no talking with them , but it happens the way it is supposed to my talk and walk was and still is that had to happen with the gigames and matriarchs, I have sent info to [REDACTED] and posting this „ asking for direction , [REDACTED] have said no more meetings but [REDACTED] suggested I go „ so my decision is to go and re affirm the demands of the people that permits , leases / tenure be denied and get these cesspools out of our waters „ and I will explain that I am speaking as a individuals and most important as a matriarch,, we will live feed it „ if there are any statements anyone wants then inbox me „ if you want to attend inbox me as well „ so in comments is the info on who from the government „ [REDACTED] tag names [REDACTED]"³⁸

On March 5, 2018, [REDACTED] posted the following message on her respective Facebook profile:

³² Email from Detachment Supervisor, M. LUDLOW – 2018-03-02

"4 real „, and I'm losing patience with there catch and release tactics „ we need to identify there vulnerable areas , cause work stoppage to hit them where they bleed „ we need to find addresses and be there each and every time they pull out of there driveway „ we need people who can pass / settlers do intel „ they have to be stopped by any means necessary."³⁹

The protestors, particularly [REDACTED] have recognized that their current tactics of protesting outside of the Victoria office is no longer attaining the desired results of getting arrested in hopes to have a day in court. Hence, [REDACTED] is now looking to escalate the situation by stating "they have to be stopped by any means necessary."⁴⁰

On March 5, 2018, [REDACTED] posted a video on her Facebook profile stating the following:

[REDACTED] They were let go with no charges on Friday. On Friday, I had gone back thinking I was gonna get arrested because I went back to the site because I did get charged with mischief again for the day we locked the DFO doors. I did go back the next day to see what would happen. I really thought that I would be thrown in jail for breaching my charges and I wasn't. They actually did exactly what I asked and got me a meeting with someone, someone in the head of the DFO."⁴¹

RECOMMENDATIONS:

[REDACTED] There may be an increase in protest activities in the next few weeks as Marine Harvest restocks its pens.

As protestors have indicated that there is a "need to find addresses and be there each and every time they pull out of there driveway,"⁴² it is highly recommended that DFO staff remain vigilant and report any suspicious activity and/or people to management and the Saanich Police Department in a timely manner.

It is recommended that DFO considers applying for legal tools which limit access to the Victoria office to address any activity, protest, or otherwise that could potentially harm assets and staff. The protestors would like to cease the cultivation of salmon but are failing to recognize the Victoria office does not manage aquaculture. A legal tool limiting access to the Victoria office will help protect DFO staff and resources and deter other protestors who are considering escalating protest actions.

Hi Mandy,

We are okay with it being submitted as evidence for the injunction. The bulletins do not discuss the methodology of how the data was obtained or any other law enforcement techniques that could jeopardize this or any other investigation.

Although both Johanna and I are listed as contacts, the bulletins were authored by me with Johanna providing support. I'm not sure if that matters for your affidavit.

"Well after seeing the doctor this is the result! Knee brace & some anti inflammatory pills! Thanks to the "security guard" & the assistant manger of Marine Harvest!

I'm just grateful it's not worse! Have to go back in a week or so! It's just badly strained I didn't pull any ligaments or didn't tear anything gratefully!

*But Marine Harvest don't think this will stop me for one minute from protecting our waters & land!
Can't get rid of me that easy!"*

I think it's somewhat likely this (the story of bullying/pushing/injury/2 Caucasian men against 1 Indigenous woman effect) will be used as a kind of rallying cry to try to get more supporters out to Swanson Island 'occupation' - the campers have been asking their listeners for more folks to take overnight shifts at Swanson Island, but comments in past seemed to indicate that there was not much appetite from the public/Indigenous supporters.

Hi Anita,

It's been challenging, but I'd rather be working from home/IOS that amidst a circus at Commerce Circle. I found it pretty taxing to have to walk through a protest (even when it was only a few people) to enter/exit work each day. The people are generally reserved when office staff interact with them, it doesn't feel very good to have a bunch of strangers be protesting me for being part of aquaculture.

I was able to get some paperwork from the office and am working through getting this loaner laptop up to speed. It's very old and getting the various essential updates done has been a slow process. I think my position should switch from having a desktop to a laptop for the future. That way it's easy to pack up and work remotely if/when protests begin again.

[REDACTED] I should be able to get caught up fairly quickly. I'm just a bit concerned with year-end coming up soon.

All we can do is work with what we've got [REDACTED]

Hi Mandy,

I also understand there will be a meeting between the protesters and DFO this week...which was agreed upon on Friday when our members were there. Do you know anything further about this? When, where and with who?

Rowan or Blair –

Would you mind asking RCMP MSOC for us if they came about that information via open source or a direct channel (like their own analysts/a human source, etc.)? Thanks.

We don't necessarily need to know which kind of direct channel source if that is where the info is from, but knowing whether it was from open source info or not would assist Nitasha and I re: info collection on this topic.

It's highly relevant at the moment as Nitasha and I advise both C&P Aquaculture staff and C&P SCA GD staff regarding protest actions relating to fish farms – we have weekly calls on the matter as well as Bulletins which get updated. Protests within BC are currently showing no indications of easing off.

Thanks!

Jo

Hi Nitasha/Jo,

During the brief this morning, RCMP mentioned that the MARTIN SHEEN, the Sea Shepherd Conservation Society's research vessel, will be returning to Canada in the near future.

There is no further information at this time in regards to timings or intent.

Cheers,

Yes, I saw that - comments blown up on several of the group's FB pages following the sharing of that video.

[REDACTED] posted a new video about 1700 hrs this evening, his Swanson Occupation update style video. He tells his viewers that Marine Harvest committed a serious assault ([REDACTED] states in the video and posted as an update this evening that he will meet Marine Harvest re: "Marine Harvest will serve me legal documentation at 2:00 pm at Alert Bay Shoprite, Friday March 9th. My family & friends are invited to stand with me, as we fight for the last of our salmon. Gilaga! Danxalatlan's! Yaxwataln's! iyaxp'as! Wi'gaxan's! I'll keep the online folks posted..."

[REDACTED] also posted comment on [REDACTED] account, the statement I believe is meant to elicit anger from both his supporters and Marine Harvest supporters, but is actually very vague:

[REDACTED] we are now looking at holding people accountable. This would be a change from our original stance of support for displaced workers. We've never wanted that or wish them harm. But these latest developments are in escalation, and workers should be worried. They will be held responsible for any of their actions, personally, in a Court of law. We need an announcement from the Government about the status of Swanson Island fish farm."

[REDACTED] posted that she has gone to RCMP re: pressing charges (not stated what charges), she posts that she gave police the video and she complains of injury:

"Just a quick little update on things since yesterday I have spoken to the police they have the video & my statement I am pressing charges! I'm waiting to see the doctor because once all the adrenaline was gone my right knee has been really sore and can't really straighten it... but other then that I am more then ok!"

The below was shared on [REDACTED] FB accnt:
[REDACTED] 67 others.

"Hey Community,

I will be holding a Non Violent Direct Action workshop teaching tactics training [REDACTED] I think it is important to share all that I've picked up this week at the action camp. Please message me so we can find a date/location that works best for the majority.

We will cover: De-arrest, Lock Boxes, Tri-Pod climbs, and hassle lines.

Priority for participants will be given to indigenous, black, trans, and queer community."

Digging a little, it appears [REDACTED] (Indigenous female) was part of the Swanson Occupation event at some point(s); there is a photos of her [REDACTED] on her FB with the caption "Fish Farm Occupation Day 140".

The term 'non violent' is good, however as previously believed likely, the group appears to plan to 'occupy' long term still and are linking up with other groups re: training in protest tactics.

"So I have come to the decision to move the matriarch camp to Kelsey bay / sayward on the ancestral territory of the ma'amtagila people , not sure when but that is near to Campbell river for feds (dfo) and near where marine harvest and Cermaq load from , so fund raising for that move ,"

Everybody,

It appears (knock on wood) that the protesters have moved onto other things.

We will go back to the office tomorrow for regular hours. Please keep the front door locked and remain vigilant of security. We will just wait and see what happens.

I am in the North Coast this week and Mya will be doing the DSO duties for the office. Please consult with her if you have concerns. And please take direction from her on what to do if something happens.

Stay safe everybody,

That is the number that has to be called when there are any issues with the office. Plumbing not working. Temperature too hot or cold. Any issues that the Landlord and Owner should be concerned with must be called into the NSCC. The DSO or office administrator is supposed to report any issues. You can do this by calling or inputting on line. I recommend calling for emergency issues like this.

SUBJECT
COMMERCE CIRCLE, VICTORIA, BC

PREPARED BY NITASHA CHOHN
INTELLIGENCE ANALYST

DATE

OVERVIEW

Individuals have been protesting throughout November 2017 to March 2018 at the DFO Victoria office located at 4250 Commerce Circle. Protest actions recently escalated in the first week of March 2018 when protesters repeatedly chained the DFO front doors closed while DFO staff were in the building.¹ On the third occasion in March 2018, one protestor chained herself by the neck to the building doors in an attempt to escalate her behaviour.² Throughout the months of various protest actions held at the office, protesters [REDACTED] indicated their desire to be arrested and charged for the purpose of taking their aquaculture complaints in British Columbia to a court setting. Though arrested repeatedly, there have been no charges laid against any protester to date. This appears to have had a demotivational effect on protesters as slight escalations of their protest tactics have not resulted in receiving the criminal charges they were seeking.³

KEY JUDGEMENTS

There is no indication [REDACTED] plan on returning to 4250 Commerce Circle. It appears that [REDACTED] will be moving her matriarch camp to join the Swanson Occupation near Campbell River. [REDACTED] been relatively quiet on her social media accounts and has not indicated any further action at 4250 Commerce Circle.

SYNOPSIS

On November 13, 2017, individuals protesting fish farms had set up camp on an area adjacent to a Conservation and Protection (C&P) warehouse entry door located at 4250 Commerce Circle, Victoria. DFO is a tenant at this location and does not own or manage the property. The two main campers were identified [REDACTED]

On December 18, 2017, the owner of the property demanded that the protest camp be taken down and the protestors vacate the premises. The protestors refused and consequently on December 19, 2017, the Saanich Police Department arrested [REDACTED] for trespassing.

On January 15, 2018, four protestors arrived at 4250 Commerce Circle and began to drum and dance, blocking the front door of the office. On January 18, 2018, [REDACTED] looped and padlocked a metal chain around the front doors of the office. The Saanich Police attended and arrested both [REDACTED] for mischief.

On February 28, 2018, [REDACTED] arrived at 4250 Commerce Circle with an anticipated stay until March 2, 2018. There were no issues on February 28, 2018 but on March 1, 2018, [REDACTED] chained the front door shut once again. The Saanich Police attended and arrested all three women. On March 2, 2018, [REDACTED] chained her neck to the front door in hopes to get arrested once again. However, the Saanich Police did not arrest her.

[REDACTED]
She has not indicated any further planned actions against DFO in Victoria or elsewhere.

[REDACTED] indicated on social media that she has made the decision to move the matriarch camp to "Kelsey bay / sayward on the ancestral territory of the ma'amtigila people."⁴ She has indicated that she will be near Campbell River for "feds (dfo) and near where marine harvest and Cermaq load from..."⁵ There is no indication as to when she plans on moving [REDACTED]. She indicated that she will be joining the Swanson Occupation protestors. It is significant to note that [REDACTED] has indicated she will continue protesting DFO's involvement with aquaculture but may be moving her attention to other offices in the Campbell River area.

Mexican troops partner with activists to save vaquita porpoise

<https://phys.org/news/2018-03-mexican-troops-partner-activists-vaquita.html>

March 1, 2018

Armed Mexican navy and federal police officers have begun riding aboard patrol boats operated by US environmental group Sea Shepherd in a bid to save the critically endangered vaquita marina porpoise, the group said Wednesday.

Researchers estimate there are only 30 remaining vaquita, the world's smallest porpoise, an animal known as the "panda of the sea" for the distinctive circles around its eyes.

Seeking to protect them, Sea Shepherd patrols their native habitat in the Gulf of California—an operation that will now be joined by the Mexican navy and police, the group said in a statement.

"This new facet of the government partnership comes at a time where tensions are rising in the upper Gulf of California. Poachers have become more aggressive towards Sea Shepherd vessels, using firearms to shoot down (surveillance) drones and incendiary objects to intimidate the crew," it said.

The 12 officers, who will ride aboard two Sea Shepherd vessels, will have the power to make arrests and crack down on poaching in the vaquita's protected reserve, it said.

The vaquita has been nearly wiped out by gillnets used to fish for another species, the also endangered totoaba fish, whose swim bladder is considered a delicacy in China and can fetch as much as $20,000 per kilogram.

Last year the Mexican government launched a plan to save the vaquita by rounding them up with the help of trained dolphins and relocating them to a protected enclosure.

However, the program was aborted when one of the first captured vaquitas died in captivity.

I'll be in office about 0900 hrs, on conference call with the IO's from about 08:30 onwards, for about an hour or so.

Attached is info I've been gathering back to March 1, 2018.

BLUF:

████████ appear to have re-oriented their activism attentions away from the Victoria DFO Office. Directly, the attempt to get to court and involve other protestors in a court forum by getting arrested for mischief at the Victoria DFO office has failed repeatedly (no charges were ever laid and eventually getting arrested by Saanich PD was also failing as a tactic). These may have been considerations for why neither woman is currently posting any planned further protests or mischief actions at Victoria DFO.

████████ in particular has gone very quiet in her social media posts and ██████████ indicates she is trying to raise people to help her and funds to move in a "permanent" fashion up island (Kelsey Bay/Sayward) to continue protesting there.

Larger synopsis:

████████ returned to Duncan, BC area around March 5-6, attended court on another matter related to events at a Cermaq facility in Duncan she had been protesting at, walked out during court and made ██████████ videos about ██████████ with non-Indigenous institutions and "Cowichan Band". In social media (██████████ has not stated any further planned actions against DFO in Victoria or elsewhere. ██████████ in videos posted publicly on her profile around 06-07 MAR2018, possibly indicating ██████████ At one point, ██████████ Those videos were later removed or possibly made private. Following those video's removal from public viewing, ██████████ has remained much quieter in social media, mainly posting inspirational quotes and re-posting updates about other ecological themed protest actions, such as the anti-Kinder Morgan Pipeline protest in Vancouver on 10MAR2018.

████████ appears to be making plans to join Swanson Occupation protestors up Island around Kelsey Bay/Sayward area (77 kms north of Campbell River, BC). This appears to be due to proximity of that location to equipment and smolt transfer facilities for some of the fish farms/Marine Harvest company. ██████████ appears to steadily continue to advertise protest actions against various causes related to eco-protests, and continues to indicate she is interested in DFO although as mentioned above she may be moving her attentions away from Victoria in the near future.

Overall - ██████████ is giving clear indications through posts in Facebook of moving herself and her cause up Vancouver Island to around the Kelsey Bay/Sayward BC area. She refers to moving the "matriarch camp" there to the "ancestral territory of the ma'amtagila people, not sure when but that is near to Campbell river for feds (dfo) and near where marine harvest and Cermaq load from .. so fund raising for that move .." ...
Conversational posts are on her profile indicating that ██████████ will help her. One conversational post indicates that she is able to accept donations by e-transfer (gives details for donations).

What remains unknown is when ██████████ might be moving up island and if she will make any more attempts to protest at the Victoria DFO office before departing Victoria. ██████████ in protest actions at DFO at this time. The 3rd female arrestee last week, ██████████ has been posting information various protests on social media, but no intentions to further protest at any DFO office.

[REDACTED] posted a FB video and photo on her account at approx. 17:40 hrs, 01 MAR 2018. She states she is trying to find out where [REDACTED] and another unnamed woman from the 'Matriarch Camp' are being held overnight (Saanich PD arrested) so "they" can go drum outside the holding facility. [REDACTED] and a third woman were arrested by Saanich Police today (01 MAR 2018) after chaining up the front doors of the Victoria DFO office with staff inside and then refusing to unchain or re-open the front doors of the building.

[REDACTED] states in her video that police are monitoring her phone and can have it shut down. The picture she also posted strongly implies she and others intend to keep getting arrested for her cause. This may pose escalated risk as the repetition of chaining the front doors of the DFO Office may escalate into other actions to ensure her arrest, actions which may pose further physical risks for DFO staff at the Victoria location. An additional consideration is that other protestors are using videos of the women's arrests to vilify police and DFO and to rally supporters to their cause.

She further states that she hopes the other two women are released in the morning (02 MAR) "...because if not there's gonna have to be more direct action happening tomorrow..." "so this is a salmon showdown salmon sovereignty is happening now I ask everyone in any town wherever you are to do something".

[REDACTED] states repeatedly that two of her 'camp' are missing [REDACTED] and unnamed woman), arrested and in jail and that she endorses them for challenging "colonial law". The statements make it sound as though the other women were arrested for voicing opinions about colonial laws rather than conducting mischief and intentional provocation by rendering the main doors of a staffed government office un-useable. She appears to be [REDACTED]

The original intended activities for 02MAR2018 or the "more direct action" she refers to remains an unknown.

UPDATE: ARRESTS MADE OUTSIDE DFO

Today, three indigenous womxn were arrested outside of the Department of Fisheries and Oceans office on unceded WSANEC territory. Two are currently being held overnight at the Saanich Police station. If you are able, please show up to show we care. We will be holding space there tonight. In addition, people are asked to come down to the DFO office, 4240 Commerce Circle, beginning first thing in the morning tomorrow for continued presence as previously planned.

After 30 years of sustained indigenous opposition to the illegal fish farms in their territory, and several months of peaceful but determined occupation, government bodies continue to blatantly ignore their urgent demands. With no other clear choices or options, [REDACTED] and one other took a stand today in solidarity with the nations and hereditary leaders who are asserting their rights, and requiring that immediate action be taken to remove highly illegal, and extremely bio-hazardous fish farm operations from their unceded waters. Please take the time to view and share this video, and follow up with ways that you can support. The government should not be allowed to turn a blind eye to this emergency situation which involves the direct violation of indigenous traditional laws, human rights laws, and environmental policies alike. Support these courageous womxn and the salmon of this coast.

This image was captured at the Swanson Occupation a night ago. This is a small close of the daily marine traffic being monitored constantly. The yellow vessel highlighted is a 500 thousand pound Norwegian Fish Carrier sailing with an undisclosed destination and a false ETA. In this image you can clearly see a course plotted directly for the Swanson Island fish farm. It is not until 5km out that the vessel alters to a northern course and disappears up Knight inlet. The blue vessel underneath is one of countless fishing vessels that is fully capable of carrying a load of mollus to Swanson Island, should the corporation pursue alternate means of delivery. We must track them all and watch where they dock. X marks our spot, and what a treasure it is for Wild Salmon! Some juveniles are nearing the sea now, and a rare refuge is awaiting them inside Swanson Island. For decades the proliferation of sea ice, PPV and other deadly accumulations has stained this region. The young ones can find shelter here now as they navigate the maze of disease factories in the Broughton Archipelago. The clam beds can become this summer free from toxic algal blooms. This area has been reclaimed as a haven for whale species. It won't take long for the message to spread. Yesterday a male Sea Otter swam by the empty farm, a once extinct species now checking the quality of the grounds? There has been a Sherman whale forming a neat peninsula, around the action the past few weeks. These are species at risk that will have to move off if we allow this farm to reback.

None of these toxic farmers have a track record for trust. None of these toxic farmers have permission to be here, poisoning the wild environment. The provincial government has a decision to make very soon whether or not to renew permits for these toxic farmers to continue. In the meantime it is business as usual for every single disease factory in the area except for right here.

This image was captured at the Swanson Occupation a night ago. This is a small close of the daily marine traffic being monitored constantly. The yellow vessel highlighted is a 500 thousand pound Norwegian Fish Carrier sailing with an undisclosed destination and a false ETA. In this image you can clearly see a course plotted directly for the Swanson Island fish farm. It is not until 5km out that the vessels alter to a northern course and disappears up Knight inlet. The blue vessel underneath is one of countless fishing vessels that is fully capable of carrying a load of snails to Swanson Island, should the corporation pursue alternate means of delivery. We must track them all and watch where they dock. The green vessel X marks our spot, and what a treasure it is for Wild Salmon! Some juveniles are reclaiming their home.

RCMP Visit

Swanson Occupation is with [REDACTED] Follow

and 14 others

on Friday [REDACTED]

Here at Swanson Occupation the situation continues to escalate. This morning, an unexpected and unannounced visit from the RCMP who are making their presence known as testing of Marine Harvest's fish farm continues. Despite our clear opposition and our people.

Meanwhile in Victoria, [REDACTED] of the Mathfarrach Camp, along with other family members were arrested for holding space at DFO offices. We demand an end to these fish farms! We call all wild salmon protectors to action, and to continue to put pressure on the Government, DFO and the RCMP to do the right thing.

All the while, we're grateful to the fine folks who turned up for the rally at MLA George Heyman's office to show their opposition to this dirty fish farm industry. We want the fish farms out now!

End the genocide against us!

Glad to hear your admitting that when you dove in a farm pen all by yourself with no other diver on the site that not only were you trespassing but also diving illegal as well.

Noted that a person who lists themselves as working for Marine Harvest is arguing with a fish farm protestor on the Swanson Occupation FB site.

A strong warning to Mainne Harvest Canada staff. Be careful! We see, and record everything you do. Soon you will be forced to explain yourselves in a Court of law, so be careful and stay away & we'll do the same. Stop escalating the situation, and for God sakes, listen to us! Do not restock!

Want to say Giliakasla for all of you who texted/called or fb messaged! I'm sorry if I havnt been able to respond but my Facebook has literally blown up since yesterday's interaction with marine harvest! Thankful for everyone's love & support! Yesterday definitely wasn't easy to keep calm but I know who I am & where I come from and will not step down to Marine Harvest level!

Just a quick little update on things since yesterday I have spoken to the police they have the video & my statement I am pressing charges! I'm waiting to see the doctor because once all the adrenaline was gone my right knee has been really sore and can't really straighten it... but other then that I am more then ok! I will always stand my ground & not let these industries & workers intimidate me or try scare me away from protecting our waters & lands! Yes, I advised Nitasha that the clients, Director Carlson and Area Chief Linda Higgins were hoping to have this product before close of business today as it would be a helpful tool for C&P managers to determine by Tuesday, 13MAR2018 to open or keep the Victoria DFO site closed to public.

Linda Higgins, Detachment Supervisor Mandy Ludlow and Field Supervisor Mya Cormie have been most grateful to Nitasha and NFIS staff for assisting them with information towards making a very informed decision on this matter.

Hi Jason,

Please find attached the situation report for the above-noted matter. Murray had approved three hours of OT/Lieu time for both Jo and I over the weekend to monitor social media and prepare this situation report. He had requested that a situation report be prepared instead of another intelligence bulletin. It will be disseminated to Mandy Ludlow and Mike Carlson.

It has been reviewed and approved by both Jo and Ken.

Thanks,

Subject: Info - Campbell River/Sayward/Broughton end

2nd email, the aquaculture fish farm end of protests (see the same attachment I sent on the 1st email):

FYI, this may feed into some of why [REDACTED] has decided to move her protest actions up island.

On 07MAR2018, it appears that Swanson Occupation protester [REDACTED] had an encounter with 2 Marine Harvest staff; several persons who appear to be Marine Harvest employees arrived in a small boat at a small dock and ramp on what seems likely to be Swanson Island. [REDACTED] and at least 2 other fish farm protesters met the men at the base of the ramp/dock; one of the protesters appears to have been filming the transaction that followed. 2 of the men, 1 of whom indicated he was [REDACTED] for the site the protesters were on/Swanson Island said they wanted to go up the ramp to speak with [REDACTED]. [REDACTED] put her body, arms and legs across the ramp and said the men were not allowed to go up. Some back and forth arguing occurred and eventually the 2 men made some small attempt to push past [REDACTED] who braced her body against the 2 men. The 2 men stopped pushing and some more low volume arguing ensued, occasionally interrupted by the other protesters/videographer who asked the men pointedly about why they were pushing a woman, an Indigenous women defending her traditional territory, etc. Eventually the 2 men and the other people they arrived with departed the area without further incident.

What followed over the next few days:

- [REDACTED] was one of the earliest posters of the video of [REDACTED] and Marine Harvest staff, posting the video to Vimeo with a statement against Marine Harvest.
- [REDACTED] posted his own response video and statements on FB that he was furious with Marine Harvest staff for 'assaulting' [REDACTED]
- [REDACTED] posted that he would meet Marine Harvest staff in Alert Bay on 09MAR2018 @ 1400 hrs to be served papers by them as he did not want Marine Harvest staff returning to the Swanson Occupation camp to search for [REDACTED] (this service of paper did occur, and was filmed and posted by [REDACTED] supporters).
- [REDACTED] posted that she spoke to police and is pressing charges against the Marine Harvest staff (what charges is not said, educated guess would be for assault as grounds for trespass are not likely).
- [REDACTED] posted a picture of [REDACTED] on 08MAR2018 with a statement that [REDACTED] with Marine Harvest staff and she was [REDACTED]
- As of 12MAR2018, the Swanson Occupation FB profile indicates the video has been viewed over 80,000 times. This is a significantly higher number than most other videos posted by Swanson Occupation protesters, especially in so short a span of time.
- The video/event with [REDACTED] and Marine Harvest is being used as a tactic to elicit outrage from existing supporters of the fish farm protests as well as is likely being used to garner support from new sources. This video appears to have received a much higher viewerhip over a wider audience than the videos of [REDACTED] chaining shut DFO Victoria doors, even over [REDACTED] video of chaining her neck to the Victoria DFO doors on 02MAR2018.

Beyond that - 09MAR and 10MAR days were largely occupied in news media and social media platforms with organized anti-pipeline (Kinder Morgan) protests in Vancouver. Some of the social media posts about numbers indicate that between 8500-10,000 protesters rallied in Burnaby on 10MAR2018 to march from a skytrain station 2.5 kms up a portion of Burnaby Mountain. This may have garnered away a lot of focus from fish farm protests over the weekend (10-11 MAR) and possibly some protesters may have even been participating in the Burnaby anti-pipeline protest rally, which got considerable media attention.

Overall - the concern I see brewing is that the protesters near the aquaculture farms are increasing their efforts to garner attention to their cause, and we even see that higher profile protesters like [REDACTED] may be joining the up-island efforts soon. The Swanon Occupation group are also doing routine 'patrols' or recognizance boat drive by's of local fish farms and are publishing in social media on which farms are currently stocked, empty, or recently stocked.

Thanks Nitasha,
Cheers,
Jo

This is related to the Victoria DFO Office protest activities of the last few months, however please note that there is an update re: one of the regularly arrested protesters may be trying to move 'permanently' up to Campbell River/Sayward/Kelsey Bay area to continue protest actions up that way (indicating plans to do this and moving away from protests in Victoria).

Subject: Reschedule Telephone Performance Review

Hi Elizabeth,

I apologize for the late notice, but is it possible to reschedule our telephone meeting? I'm back in the office for the first time in 3 weeks, and am working through a backlog while also fielding phone calls.

It sounds as though the office may be closed again on Thursday due to a suspected protest in response to the restocking of the fish farm central to the protest. With this in mind, I'm doing my best to get back on top of everything.

Are we able to reschedule for next week?

Hi Julie, Colin, Andrew,
Please see the attached, for police information only. Updates re: fish farm protesters at Victoria end.

The DFO Victoria staff have returned to their office as of this morning (Tues 13 MAR), but for now are keeping the front doors locked as a precaution. We are aware that protesters in past monitored the site to determine when staff were at work. Overall, protesters seem to have lost interest protesting at Victoria DFO, although there was at least 1 possible heat check, someone tried the locked DFO doors and complained to a neighboring business that DFO staff were not around to hear their complaints (DFO staff operated out of other locations last week). There are phone numbers for reporting complaints posted on the DFO doors for the public's info and as part of regular business out of that office the office is often closed/locked; the complaint was considered unusual by the neighboring business.

We recently received word that the fish farm the Swanson Occupation group are monitoring might be restocking smolts on 15 MAR – unsure what if any reaction from protesters this may cause; DFO in Campbell River are aware and DFO in Victoria will likely continue to keep doors to their office locked for now, pending seeing if that information brings protesters back.

Kind regards,

Johanna Jenkins

All,

The protestors from Victoria are in the process of moving their camp to Sayward/Kesley Bay where they plan to continue with their activities. As you know the Victoria office has been the target of these protestors for some time. There has been no occupation of the office however they have chained the doors shut on numerous occasions. As well, MHC plans to stock Swanson Island in the near future which has everyone up in arms. What does this mean for this office? There is a possibility that protestors may conduct activities outside our office and we all need to ensure we remain diligent in keeping our office secure. In light of this, please read the attached document, it has some good direction in it which should be followed. I propose we have an office meeting very soon so we can discuss this as a group (I'll arrange with Adrienne). If you have any questions or concerns please talk with myself or Adrienne.

Hello Regional Security,

Please note that Marine Harvest will be restocking their pens at Swanson Island as of March 15th. There has been recent escalation/frustration between the company employees and the protestors. Although there are no imminent risks or indications that the protestors will arrive at RHQ, the risk is always there especially since a lot of the supporters of the cause are from the Lower Mainland and may not be able to go to the island to protest.

EVENT INFORMATION

Report Date and Time:

March 14, 2018 1500 hrs

Incident Date and Time:

March 23, 2018 0800 hrs

Issue:

Potential protest activity at Swanson Island aquaculture site, owned and operated by Marine Harvest Canada, (MHC).

Background:

Indigenous Peoples have voiced their concern and disapproval of the aquaculture industry citing it is negatively impacting the wild salmon stocks. In 2017, construction and habitation of structures on MHC's Midsummer Island array occurred. In December 2017, MHC was successful in applying for an injunction which saw the removal of the protesters from this array.

In January, protest activity surfaced in Victoria where indigenous peoples, set up camp beside the C&P Victoria office, again voicing their disapproval of the industry. Persons associated to this camp have now stated that they are focusing their efforts on north island, in the Sayward area.

MHC has applied to DFO to restock the Swanson Island array; [REDACTED] and continue every second day for 14 days. MHC's current injunction does not cover the Swanson Island array.

Current Status:

Namgis have applied for an injunction to stop these fish transfers at Swanson Island. It is before the court on March 20-21, 2018 and protest activity is anticipated if the injunction is unsuccessful.

Strategic Considerations:

C&P staff from other areas are coming in to support Aqua C&P.

Strategic Communications:

C&P will continue to work with Communications.

Detachment Supervisor Comments:

Section 23 of the Fisheries Act has limited application respecting aquaculture activities. C&P will monitor the situation and observe, record and report, taking into consideration health and safety concerns.

Area Chief/Regional Chief Comments:

The Region needs to develop a plan to deal with these protests. Overall, finfish aquaculture is compliant

I just got this, I haven't discussed this with Claire (haven't talked to her at all today).

Please make the arrangements Claire is asking for, I'm not sure if we can shift someone for this time (weeks notice for a shift change but for the one day not sure that works, may have to shift the entire week). I'll talk to you after the call I'm on (about an hour).

Thx,

J.

Subject: Next Week

Joe, I have secured officers for next week from another Area to work on our boat – names haven't been confirmed yet but the plan is to have them arrive on the 21st into CR. I know this will impact on JLP but I need an officer to run the vessel on the 22nd, 23rd and the 25th. By that time we should know what's happening . The patrol on the 22nd does not have to start early, the officers can travel up from CR to Alert, launch and do a patrol around. [REDACTED]

Accommodations for three need to be made for the night of the 22nd as the patrol for the 23rd will have to begin such that they are on site at 0800. I was advised earlier that we, C&P is now in a deficit so to stay in line with the other sectors, we need to shift whoever is going to run the boat to start at 0600. I have no doubt there still will be plenty of OT but I need to limit it as much as possible. I would say start that shift on the 22nd.

Please identify the officer who is going to run the vessel so that we can coordinate that person with the two officers. Also on Friday/Monday have officers prepare the boat that will be leaving so at least they can participate in the first two days of JLP.

Hi Joanna,

We received information from Roy that a woman went into Owen Business Solutions (OBS) (our neighbors at 4250 Commerce Circle) on Friday March 2nd 2018 asking about the DFO office.

OBS informed her that we were not in the office and she said something to the effect of not having freedom of speech.

Upon replaying our new security cameras, Mandy was able to see that [REDACTED] a Caucasian woman tried the DFO doors then went to OBS then left at approximately 13:15 on Friday March 2nd.

I ran the plate and it came back to the information attached to this email.

Thanks for this info.

I never received any information from Claire or her team. It's been almost three months. As such, I haven't really worked on their file, I have mainly focused on the Victoria protests. Perhaps once Jason and Derek are back, we can reevaluate the file and determine whether or not we are going to create a problem profile for Claire or provide more tactical assistance in the instances something actually comes up (similar to how we did for Victoria).

If all stays calm for the next few days, I am hoping to write my report [REDACTED] this week and next to get it off my desk as well.

Hey Community.

I will be holding a Non Violent Direct Action workshop teaching tactics training [REDACTED] I think it is important to share all that I've picked up this week at the action camp. Please message me so we can find a date/location that works best for the majority.

We will cover: De-arrest, Lock Boxes, Tri-Pod climbs, and hassle lines. Priority for participants will be given to indigenous, black, trans, and queer community.

There are no indications of violence or civil disobedience on the open side of her profile; I mention her as one to know about more in the context of building on the idea that the protesters of various issues (stated above) are interconnected, interact routinely with each other and are sharing learned protest and civil disobedience tactics within the larger network. I think this is an important officer/dept. awareness piece.

I was also thinking – perhaps we should have a rudimentary links chart? I find every few phone calls with C&P staff I am re-explaining these ties over and over again...a visual would be a good shareable product. I know that Joe Knight Claire's end already asked for one directly for the individuals related to the Broughton area fish farm protests, but could we also include the Victoria protesters (actually, I think we may have to now) and the links to [REDACTED] others? [REDACTED] is not our focus on this, [REDACTED]

Last – on that note (the RFI from Joe Knight) – Did Claire or Joe or Greg ever send you the emails and info they were going to pass to you? Greg Plummer asked me 2 weeks ago where that was at in NFIS end, and I asked him if that had been done (passed you the information). At the time he did not know if Joe or Claire had completed that task.

Thanks –
Jo

B.C. government looks to the future with land-based aquaculture

BY KAREN GRAHAM MAR 8, 2018

British Columbia's minister in charge of aquaculture tenures for the province is hinting at a major change in the provincial government's approach to Atlantic salmon farming in Pacific waters.

After the Washington State Senate passed a bill last Friday to phase out Atlantic salmon open-net fish farming in state waters by 2025, British Columbia's First Nations hailed the move, raising hope the provincial government would do the same.

"Here in British Columbia, the vast majority of First Nations are very clear in their opposition to the operation of open net-cage fish farms," said Bob Chamberlin, vice president of the Union of BC Indian Chiefs, reports CTV News. "It's time for the precautionary principle to be made real, stood up, embraced, and then enacted, and look to see this industry evolve, like every other industry has, to land-based closed containment," he said.

Demand For Shark Fin Soup In China Sees 80 Percent Drop

By John Liang - February 19, 2018

Consumption of shark fins in China has gone down by 80 percent, according to a new report by WildAid.

Not only that, Chinese imports of shark fins have declined by 81 percent, the new report states.

But just because shark fin consumption in China has gone down, that doesn't mean other countries in Asia are following suit.

The WildAid report finds that shark fin soup is still in demand in Macau and other parts of Southeast Asia.

Additionally, Project AWARE is pointing out that recent data on international trade in shark fins and meat isn't restricted to Asian markets.

Dr. Shelley Clarke, co-author of the FAO shark trade report and renowned shark fisheries scientist, says:

"With so many shark species and products in trade, it can be difficult to get your head around what is really happening. Understanding sources and trends is a critical step toward making sure the trade is sustainable and traceable, and the underlying fisheries are properly managed."

Plan as it stands, head up 22nd with Rob Harris and _____, launch boat and overnight, attend site on 23rd with RCMP. If all goes well we're done unless something happens during the other offloads. We need to supply one officer and our vessel. Of course, if the injunction is upheld (hearing on the 20th/21st) the it'll be a total re-evaluation.

We have no policy or guidance, again discussed at the meeting in Victoria and agreed by Claire that we need policy [REDACTED] Mike Carlson re-iterated the need for policy [REDACTED] at both the GT-05 and SCA all staff meetings. As we all know the RCMP had 25+ members on site the last time to cover any and all possible safety contingency plans, and here we are with 3 FO's in a boat.

This is what was discussed at our meeting, documented and Actioned with respect to the protest. Can you please advise if this has been done? If it has then I respectfully request that the guidance/policy is distributed asap!

I just got this, I haven't discussed this with Claire (haven't talked to her at all today).

Please make the arrangements Claire is asking for, I'm not sure if we can shift someone for this time (weeks notice for a shift change but for the one day not sure that works, may have to shift the entire week). I'll talk to you after the call I'm on (about an hour).

Thx,

Joe, I have secured officers for next week from another Area to work on our boat – names haven't been confirmed yet but the plan is to have them arrive on the 21st into CR. I know this will impact on JLP but I need an officer to run the vessel on the 22nd, 23rd and the 25th. By that time we should know what's happening . The patrol on the 22nd does not have to start early, the officers can travel up from CR to Alert, launch and do a patrol around. [REDACTED]

Accommodations for three need to be made for the night of the 22nd as the patrol for the 23rd will have to begin such that they are on site at 0800. I was advised earlier that we, C&P is now in a deficit so to stay in line with the other sectors, we need to shift whoever is going to run the boat to start at 0600. I have no doubt there still will be plenty of OT but I need to limit it as much as possible. I would say start that shift on the 22nd.

Please identify the officer who is going to run the vessel so that we can coordinate that person with the two officers. Also on Friday/Monday have officers prepare the boat that will be leaving so at least they can participate in the first two days of JLP.

I am still on line too Beth. I would need the officer to travel to Campbell on Wednesday so they can travel up north on Thursday to attend the protest on Friday. The FN's have launched an injunction against DFO to stop DFO from issuing a transfer permit to Marine Harvest so that Marine H can move smolts from their hatchery to the farm, If the injunction is upheld this could all be for naught.

Hi Claire – We look forward to a chat about resources and priorities. In that regard, we will schedule you for our managers meeting in Parksville on June 8. Please let me know what time is best for you.

I have advised by CERMAQ yesterday that the RCMP has set up a discussion with them to prepare for this season and I expect that they will do the same with the others. It seems like they will be taking a leadership role and can help. I suggested that in the case of any incidents that Adrienne or myself can also serve as a backup contact along with C&P.

Happy to discuss,
Allison

Adrienne/Allison, I have tried to identify someone in C&P to be a conduit for information regarding the Broughton activities; however, I am really trying hard to ensure its not an aqua officer. Quite frankly, I see it as a role for our intel shop but I haven't had success moving the agenda that way. Aqua C&P has to stay firmly focused on shellfish so as to plug every possible hole we can before the audit. Next week I will provide an update of all the files we are working on, and the issues we have facing us with the shellfish investigations so that you can understand our predicament – [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] We have our Chief's meeting next week, and I am once again going to request that this initiative be assigned to someone. Whether we like it or not, senior management wants to know and somehow we do need to be tracking this. The vessel in question did enter Canadian waters – it was held up at Customs as they were not properly declaring – the hold-up had absolutely nothing to do with fisheries contrary to some facebook postings. For now Adrienne, anything you receive, please forward to Johanna Jenkins, she is our Area Intel Officer.

Just got a call from [REDACTED] MH who wanted to make us aware of a number of activities they are seeing out on their farms. How would you like me to handle these updates? I assume C&P are tracking information through their own sources? For example [REDACTED] informed me that the Sea Sheppard has been cleared to enter Canada and plans to be in Comox June 16th for the sea food festival.

- FYI in email below – Matriarch Camp at Premier Horgan's office is still in place (no signs of moving up island or elsewhere yet).
- Mya/Mandy – social media has remained quiet the last few days on the topic of the Matriarch Camp/ [REDACTED] moving. [REDACTED] indicated on social media (14MAR2018) that there is fundraising going on to support [REDACTED] "Matriarch Camp fundraiser" [REDACTED] posted a brief video about fundraising [REDACTED] what appears to be a small concert venue with someone on a stage singing and playing guitar for an audience.
- [REDACTED] indicated she had a meeting @ Saanich police yesterday (14MAR2018) regarding a complaint about having been in lockup with no female staff on duty, she appears to have been occupied with that activity.

- Note that there is a publicly posted Event tomorrow posted in Facebook called: Phone-In to Get Fish Farms Out! Swanson Island. It appears to be a low level protest action to get Provincial Govt. and DFO attention via call-ins repeatedly to just a few phone numbers, from 1000hrs-1300hrs on 16MAR2018.
- The event lists the below information:

"Details

Call-in to get fish farms out! This is an action to support the Swanson Occupation (<https://www.facebook.com/GETTHEFISHFARMSOUT/>) that will be happening in boardroom 108 of the Grad House at UVic.

We need to pressure the BC government not to let corporate interests run roughshod over Indigenous sovereignty and wild salmon! The BC government is deciding whether to renew Marine Harvest's tenure on Swanson Island, which expires this June. The time to act is now.

We will perform a rolling phone-in to government offices with a prepared script in an effort to tie up their lines for the morning. This will make sure that they know the demands of First Nations in the Broughton Archipelago and that we all want fish farms out!

This call-in will focus on raising the issues:

No restocking of existing empty pens/sites (especially the seemingly imminent Marine Harvest restock at Swanson Island)
Marine Harvest has assaulted [REDACTED] and that needs to be addressed.
No use of hydrogen peroxide to be used to treat sea lice infestations;
No renewal of licences and/or tenures (especially the Swanson Island one being considered by the BC government); and
For the industry to remove all open-net cage fish farms sites from the collective territorial waters.

Location: Boardroom 108 inside the Grad House at the University of Victoria. The Grad House is located at 3800 Finnerty Rd. To find the room, enter the building and head left through a glass door and look for room 108.

Bring: Plan to show up for 10 AM with your phone until 1 PM or for as long as you can! The more people we have, the more offices we can phone and make our concerns heard.

Not able to attend in person? Use our documents to call the offices yourself or organize your own call-in at a different time with some friends! (Pics of the phone list posted in the discussion.) We will be focusing our efforts on Friday March 16th from 10 AM onward so you may get a busy signal during that time (if we're successful!), so targeting another time window might be the most effective way to contribute.

Contact [REDACTED] if you have any questions, or post n the discussion and we'll get back to you asap!

Gilakas'la and thank you for your help in getting fish farms out of Kwakwaka'wakw territory!

We respectfully and gratefully acknowledge that this event is taking place on the territory of the Lekwungen-speaking peoples, particularly the Songhees, Esquimalt, and WSÁNEĆ whose historical relationships to this territory continue today and into the future."

Event lists 68 people going and 22 interested.

Attached are screen captures of the numbers that have been published for folks to call to tie up certain Provincial and Federal Govt. phone lines tomorrow.

The only ones of note regarding DFO are for:

- Minister LeBlanc's Ottawa number 613-992-1020 and his Shédiac Constituency office: 506-533-5700

- Vancouver RHQ 604-666-0384
- Victoria C&P DFO Office 250-363-3252
- And DFO Aquaculture Consultations, naming Brenda McCorquodale, 250-754-0134
- All other numbers the Event participants are sharing are provincial Govt. MLA numbers

Hi Nitasha –

This info and the attachments here are for our DFO info only – and not to go out in products (Aquaculture end has some specific rules about what info can be shared even widely just within DFO). But I thought they may help with concepts of where/what we are looking at relative to the Swanson Island MHC fish farm site and protests around there, as well as location of the occupiers camp and the Midsummer Fish farm site, which is the only one that MHC has an active injunction order in place for.

Re: the vessel picture – Claire noted below that it was “buzzing around the arrays” (fish farm pens). Can we try running that vessel registration number [REDACTED] (TC would have that as a recreational register or licence number, non-commercial format). It’s hard to see for sure, [REDACTED] the male manning the camera might be identifiable from open source/social media.

Thanks!

'Namgis Judicial Review and Injunction Application in Federal Court

On March 6, 2018, the 'Namgis First Nation filed a Notice of Application in Federal Court against the Minister of DFO, the Canadian Coast Guard (CCG), and Marine Harvest Canada. The 'Namgis are seeking judicial review of: 1) DFO's policy not to test for Piscine Orthoreovirus (PRV) or Heart and Skeletal Muscle Inflammation (HSMI) in fish prior to issuing licences under s.56 of the Fishery (General) Regulations (FGR) which authorize the introduction, release or transfer of fish into the marine environment; and 2) Any decisions made by the Minister DFO and CCG or his delegate to issue licences under s.56 or the FGR to introduce, release or transfer fish into the marine environment at Marine Harvest Canada Inc.'s aquaculture facility located at Swanson Island, BC. On March 9, 2018, the 'Namgis filed a motion for an interlocutory injunction to prevent the Minister from issuing a licence to transfer smolts to the Swanson Island facility operated by Marine Harvest Inc. without first testing for PRV, pending the resolution of the underlying judicial review. The hearing of the injunction is set for March 20-21, 2018 in Federal Court. The 'Namgis also requested a meeting with the Minister during his trip this week in British Columbia but the Minister was unable to meet. The Chief of the 'Namgis First Nation, Chief Svanvik, met briefly with the RDG yesterday and the RDG passed along Mark Knudsen's contact information to assist the 'Namgis in their request for a meeting or conversation with the Minister.

Hey,

I received this information from Zac – is this what you are looking for?

To prepare a population of fish for the marine environment, hatcheries induce smoltification by changing the lighting regime. The goal being to have a very tight timeframe within which the population undergoes smoltification and is ready for transfer to the sea sites. During the process of smoltification, the physiology of the fish changes dramatically to prepare them to tolerate the marine environment. This process is stressful, and the stress and physiologic changes predispose these fish to opportunistic infections if they remain in fresh water, the most common being fungal (Saprolegnia). Individual fish that remain in fresh water may be able to reverse the process of smoltification, but at a population level, the consequences of failure to enter the marine environment within a short period following the induction of smoltification can be disastrous with mortality ranging up to 50% over a period of days

Lauren not to add a 4:05pm Friday afternoon request on your plate, but by any chance in all the material you have written for the lawyers, do you have any small blurb that I could put in our Ops Plan that speaks to Timing of the Proposed fish restocking/transfers

I am kind of looking at the angle of why now and does it have to be done??

I can pull stuff out of a large document if you can just throw me something. Its going in a protected document so it won't be public.

- FYI in email below – Matriarch Camp at Premier Horgan's office is still in place (no signs of moving up island or elsewhere yet).
- Mya/Mandy – social media has remained quiet the last few days on the topic of the Matriarch Camp/ [REDACTED] moving. [REDACTED] indicated on social media (14MAR2018) that there is fundraising going on to support [REDACTED], "Matriarch Camp fundraiser" [REDACTED] posted a brief video about fundraising f [REDACTED] what appears to be a small concert venue with someone on a stage singing and playing guitar for an audience.
- [REDACTED] indicated she had a meeting @ Saanich police yesterday (14MAR2018) regarding a complaint about having been in lockup with no female staff on duty, she appears to have been occupied with that activity.
- Note that there is a publicly posted Event tomorrow posted in Facebook called: Phone-In to Get Fish Farms Out! Swanson Island. It appears to be a low level protest action to get Provincial Govt. and DFO attention via calls repeatedly to just a few phone numbers, from 1000hrs-1300hrs on 16MAR2018.
- The event lists the below information:

"Details

Call-in to get fish farms out! This is an action to support the Swanson Occupation (<https://www.facebook.com/GETTHEFISHFARMSOUT/>) that will be happening in boardroom 108 of the Grad House at UVic.

We need to pressure the BC government not to let corporate interests run roughshod over Indigenous sovereignty and wild salmon! The BC government is deciding whether to renew Marine Harvest's tenure on Swanson Island, which expires this June. The time to act is now.

We will perform a rolling phone-in to government offices with a prepared script in an effort to tie up their lines for the morning. This will make sure that they know the demands of First Nations in the Broughton Archipelago and that we all want fish farms out!

This call-in will focus on raising the issues:

No restocking of existing empty pens/sites (especially the seemingly imminent Marine Harvest restock at Swanson Island)

Marine Harvest has assaulted [REDACTED] and that needs to be addressed.

No use of hydrogen peroxide to be used to treat sea lice infestations;

No renewal of licences and/or tenures (especially the Swanson Island one being considered by the BC government); and

For the industry to remove all open-net cage fish farms sites from the collective territorial waters.

Location: Boardroom 108 inside the Grad House at the University of Victoria. The Grad House is located at 3800 Finnerty Rd. To find the room, enter the building and head left through a glass door and look for room 108.

Bring: Plan to show up for 10 AM with your phone until 1 PM or for as long as you can! The more people we have, the more offices we can phone and make our concerns heard.

Not able to attend in person? Use our documents to call the offices yourself or organize your own call-in at a different time with some friends! (Pics of the phone list posted in the discussion.) We will be focusing our efforts on Friday March 16th from 10 AM onward so you may get a busy signal during that time (if we're successful!), so targeting another time window might be the most effective way to contribute.

Contact [REDACTED] if you have any questions, or post in the discussion and we'll get back to you asap!

Gilakas'la and thank you for your help in getting fish farms out of Kwakwaka'wakw territory!

We respectfully and gratefully acknowledge that this event is taking place on the territory of the Lekwungen-speaking peoples, particularly the Songhees, Esquimalt, and WSÁNEĆ whose historical relationships to this territory continue today and into the future.”

Event lists 68 people going and 22 interested.

Attached are screen captures of the numbers that have been published for folks to call to tie up certain Provincial and Federal Govt. phone lines tomorrow.

The only ones of note regarding DFO are for:

- Minister LeBlanc's Ottawa number 613-992-1020 and his Shédiac Constituency office: 506-533-5700
- Vancouver RHQ 604-666-0384
- Victoria C&P DFO Office 250-363-3252
- And DFO Aquaculture Consultations, naming Brenda McCorquodale, 250-754-0134
- All other numbers the Event participants are sharing are provincial Govt. MLA numbers

Subject: Request for Bulletin - Swanson Occupation

Hi Jason,

As per our telephone conversation, Claire Doucette has requested a bulletin, through Jo, identifying the key players of the Swanson Occupation for her officers.

Jo advised that Ottawa has recently directed C&P staff in Claire's area

Both Jo and I have had a number of teleconferences where some key players have been identified but it has never been provided in writing. We have requested this information over the past few months but we still have no received any information from Claire's team to date.

I am hesitant to create a bulletin identifying the key players due to the simple fact that I do not have the authority to monitor these individuals without any information from Claire or her team. To identify key players would mean that I could potentially be overstepping my boundaries. I suggested to Jo, and she agrees, that we let Claire and her team follow direction from Ottawa

Once the information is gathered, perhaps it can be provided to us for further investigation at which point we could assist in creating bulletins and/or other products. There is absolutely no indication of any sort of harm towards DFO, DFO staff, and/or assets at this particular time. The protestors are vocal about their disapproval for fish farms and their need to protest but there is no evidence of risk to DFO officer safety

Please let me know what your thoughts are.

Thanks,

Nitasha Chohan

Hi folks,

Per request from Claire Doucette, attached are the 2 Bulletins which NFIS created re: protests at the Victoria DFO Office. NFIS is limited re: seeking & disseminating info on other protesters if they are not currently under investigation for fisheries violations or for issues of Officer safety.

- 1 individual, [REDACTED] has indicated intention to move up island to Kelsey Bay/Sayward to protest Govt. and fish farm management. To date there appears to be support being rallied to help her do this, however NFIS is not aware of such a move happening yet.
- [REDACTED] not at protests in other locations, including the DFO Victoria Office.
- These individuals are highlighted as they were directly involved in criminal mischief chaining and locking shut the front doors of the DFO Victoria office on 3 occasions in 2018, while staff were still inside. They expressed to Saanich Police and DFO C&P staff their desire to get arrested and charged so that they could highlight their opinions about fish farms in a court setting.
- To date, no one is charged over the protest events at DFO Victoria.

Johanna Jenkins

'Namgis Judicial Review and Injunction Application in Federal Court

On March 6, 2018, the 'Namgis First Nation filed a Notice of Application in Federal Court against the Minister of DFO and Marine Harvest Canada. The 'Namgis are seeking judicial review of: 1) DFO's policy not to test for PRV or HSMI in fish prior to issuing licences under s.56 of the FGR; and 2) Any decisions made by the Minister or his delegate to issue licences under s.56 or the FGR to introduce, release or transfer fish into the marine environment at Marine Harvest's aquaculture facility located at Swanson Island, BC. On March 9, 2018, the 'Namgis filed a motion for an interlocutory injunction to prevent the Minister from issuing a licence to transfer fish to Swanson without first testing for PRV, pending the resolution of the underlying judicial review. The hearing of the injunction is set for March 20-21, 2018 in Federal Court. A decision will be required on whether DFO's policy not to test for PRV or HSMI prior to issuing licenses is consistent with s.56 of the FGR; and whether any decisions made by the Minister or his delegate to issue licences under s. 56 of the Regulations to introduce, release or transfer fish into Swanson Island are lawfully permitted.

The 'Namgis also requested a meeting with the Minister during his trip this week in BC but the Minister was unable to meet. The Chief of the 'Namgis First Nation, Chief Svanvik, met briefly with the RDG on March 14 and the RDG passed along Mark Knudsen's contact information to assist the 'Namgis in their request for a meeting or conversation with the Minister.

Renewal of aquaculture tenures in the Broughton Archipelago

Provincial land tenures in the Broughton Archipelago begin expiring in June 2018 and are under consideration for renewal. While the tenure agreement terms state that the Province does not have a legal obligation to renew these tenures once expired, [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] DFO has issued federal aquaculture licenses for the operation of these sites through June 30, 2022; these licenses can only be altered or revoked in the case of a clear conservation risk.

Various protest activities, including the occupation of several aquaculture sites, have been ongoing since the fall of 2017 to protest aquaculture activities conducted in the Broughton area without the consent of local First Nations. Consistent with commitment made by Premier Horgan and several of his Ministers, the Province has engaged in a government-to-government-to-government process to discuss aquaculture licensing in the Broughton Archipelago and to reach an agreement with local First Nations on a planned approach.

Off of the Midsummer Island hatchery we located a protest camp set-up on Cedar Island but no individuals were present (see attached). In speaking with a hatchery worker there I learned that they were aware of the camp and commented that a couple have been driving a boat around there over the past couple of days. Both the boaters and the workers have been taking pictures.

The camp itself looks fairly organized and we could see two hunting tents.

We will remain in the area tomorrow scouting about but it would seem that the protest camp found at Cedar Island would be their main staging area.

I have higher resolution photos than those in the document if you want them.

No action on the water for boats other than a couple of recreational halibut fishers, a couple of tug and tows and a commercial crab fishers

Off of the Midsummer Island hatchery we located a protest camp set-up on Cedar Island but no individuals were present (see attached). In speaking with a hatchery worker there I learned that they were aware of the camp and commented that a couple have been driving a boat around there over the past couple of days. Both the boaters and the workers have been taking pictures.

The camp itself looks fairly organized and we could see two hunting tents.

We will remain in the area tomorrow scouting about but it would seem that the protest camp found at Cedar Island would be their main staging area.

Hi there,

It appears that the RCMP are at the protestor's camp after a "private complaint" to move them on. Letting you know that they may appear back at Lara's office or at another office on the island.

- ██████ indicated she had a meeting @ Saanich police yesterday (14MAR2018) regarding a complaint about having been in lockup with no female staff on duty, she appears to have been occupied with that activity.
- Note that there is a publicly posted Event tomorrow posted in Facebook called: Phone-In to Get Fish Farms Out! Swanson Island. It appears to be a low level protest action to get Provincial Govt. and DFO attention via call-ins repeatedly to just a few phone numbers, from 1000hrs-1300hrs on 16MAR2018.
- The event lists the below information:

"Details

Call-in to get fish farms out! This is an action to support the Swanson Occupation (<https://www.facebook.com/GETTHEFISHFARMSOUT/>) that will be happening in boardroom 108 of the Grad House at UVic.

We need to pressure the BC government not to let corporate interests run roughshod over Indigenous sovereignty and wild salmon! The BC government is deciding whether to renew Marine Harvest's tenure on Swanson Island, which expires this June. The time to act is now.

We will perform a rolling phone-in to government offices with a prepared script in an effort to tie up their lines for the morning. This will make sure that they know the demands of First Nations in the Broughton Archipelago and that we all want fish farms out!

This call-in will focus on raising the issues:

No restocking of existing empty pens/sites (especially the seemingly imminent Marine Harvest restock at Swanson Island)
Marine Harvest has assaulted ██████ and that needs to be addressed.
No use of hydrogen peroxide to be used to treat sea lice infestations;
No renewal of licences and/or tenures (especially the Swanson Island one being considered by the BC government); and
For the industry to remove all open-net cage fish farms sites from the collective territorial waters.

Location: Boardroom 108 inside the Grad House at the University of Victoria. The Grad House is located at 3800 Finnerty Rd. To find the room, enter the building and head left through a glass door and look for room 108.

Bring: Plan to show up for 10 AM with your phone until 1 PM or for as long as you can! The more people we have, the more offices we can phone and make our concerns heard.

Not able to attend in person? Use our documents to call the offices yourself or organize your own call-in at a different time with some friends! (Pics of the phone list posted in the discussion.) We will be focusing our efforts on Friday March 16th from 10 AM onward so you may get a busy signal during that time (if we're successful!), so targeting another time window might be the most effective way to contribute.

Contact ██████ if you have any questions, or post n the discussion and we'll get back to you asap!

Gilakas'la and thank you for your help in getting fish farms out of Kwakwaka'wakw territory!

We respectfully and gratefully acknowledge that this event is taking place on the territory of the Lekwungen-speaking peoples, particularly the Songhees, Esquimalt, and WSÁNEĆ whose historical relationships to this territory continue today and into the future.”

Attached are screen captures of the numbers that have been published for folks to call to tie up certain Provincial and Federal Govt. phone lines tomorrow.

The only ones of note regarding DFO are for:

- Minister LeBlanc's Ottawa number 613-992-1020 and his Shédiac Constituency office: 506-533-5700
- Vancouver RHQ 604-666-0384
- Victoria C&P DFO Office 250-363-3252
- And DFO Aquaculture Consultations, naming Brenda McCorquodale, 250-754-0134
- All other numbers the Event participants are sharing are provincial Govt. MLA numbers

Hi Mandy,

According to a number of the previous protestors/supporters at the Victoria DFO office, the police are on site at John Horgan's office in an attempt to remove the Matriarch Camp. Currently, there are no indications of any impact to the Victoria office. However, the protestors could set up camp the site as they may not be able to return to John Horgan's office.

Please advise your staff to remain vigilant and report any suspicious activity to the appropriate parties.

The Namgis Indigenous Nation has shown strong interest in meeting with DFO to discuss aquaculture in their area; no formal meetings have been held, however, Todd Johansson has spoken to the Namgis on several occasions. They were also provided with the number for the Minister's Pacific Region Advisor who they may contact to request a meeting. Due to the litigation underway, DFO staff are unlikely to meet with the Namgis until the ruling is set down.

Hi Claire - is this related to the Namgis? If so, it isn't accurate as they met with the RDG last week when they arrived at RHQ seeking a meeting with the Minister who was not there. I will need to check with Lauren tomorrow, but believe that they may be interested in other meetings too. I will try to get back to you tomorrow am. Hope that's ok.

Allison, I wrote an Ops Plan back last September and it had this statement in it. At the time this is what Karen Calla had advised. Is this still an accurate statement? Thank you

- In consultation with the Director from Aquaculture Management Division, the FN involved in the occupations has been unwilling to meet with DFO to discuss aquaculture. FN protestors have made it quite clear that there is no negotiating; they want removal of the aquaculture tenures from their traditional waters.

Lauren, I am finalizing an Ops Plan for this week to address the potential fish transfer. Is this a correct statement?

The Namgis Indigenous Nation has filed an Injunction against DFO to cease the issuance of a transfer permit; this permit would allow MHC to transfer smolts from their Ocean Falls hatchery to their Swanson Island aquaculture tenure.

Good point. In that case...we'd have to just let these lie as is perhaps and just know that checking with C.S. tips is somewhere to potentially look for info when we are sourcing things? I will keep the copies of these tips shared to us in the same folder I gather info for the protests and can leave it at that for now (?).

I thought about IIFs, but if they are anonymous, who would be the suspects or entities to link them to? Could link them to marine harvest but that could create issues given our suspicions of the genuineness of the reports

There's been 6 of these received by me. Nitasha and I believe /found info that fish farm protesters/supporters may be calling these in, in response to a joint 'report poaching' campaign between Vancouver C.S. and Marine Harvest Canada, a public bulletin went out and there were comments objecting to MHC being involved in reporting crimes. I spoke with both C.R. and Lower Mainland C.S. Groups who have been receiving multiples of these. They are now aware. We agreed of course C.S. should still handle them per normal to us, but agreed - no urgency on a disposition back about them.

Could it be captured in a general way, no details, in an IIF?

I don't believe there needs a response (especially because it is anonymous). Fish farms are licenced to operate where they are. If for some reason it is found that they are operating away from leased sites, then that would be an issue - but probably not DFO's.

I would recommend you communicate these types of reports to the Aqua group (if not already done so) for officer awareness. Not sure how to document this for intel purposes because of the anonymous nature.

Could one of you advise me on this one? How to reply? I'm surprised CrimeStoppers fwd'd this, to be honest. Subject: Swanson Fish Hatchery

No action on the water for boats other than a couple of recreational halibut fishers, a couple of tug and tows and a commercial crab fishers

Off of the Midsummer Island hatchery we located a protest camp set-up on Cedar Island but no individuals were present (see attached). In speaking with a hatchery worker there I learned that they were aware of the camp and commented that a couple have been driving a boat around there over the past couple of days. Both the boaters and the workers have been taking pictures.

The camp itself looks fairly organized and we could see two hunting tents.

We will remain in the area tomorrow scouting about but it would seem that the protest camp found at Cedar Island would be their main staging area.

I have higher resolution photos than those in the document if you want them.

Cheers

The matriarch camp at horgans office is calling for support. They are hoping for more people to arrive after stating that rcmp arrived and said the camp has to move.

There are no indications of protest activity planned for our office.

Joe can you please review these two sentences for the Ops Plan:

While indigenous peoples took up residency on aquaculture sites, the operations of the facilities were able to continue. However, protestors did try to interfere with the delivery of "smolts" (juvenile salmon) to the arrays. When the company vessel tried to facilitate delivery to the Port Elizabeth site, protesters positioned their vessels in such a way, that for safety reasons, RCMP had to assist with developing an exclusion zone so MHC could deliver.

Morning Jay,

Do you have any contacts with Langford RCMP? The reason I ask is apparently they are evicting the protesters from Horgan's office. I was hoping to speak with some there to find out if that's true. They will likely show up at my office if they get evicted. If I wasn't at these CCG meetings today and tomorrow in Vancouver I would have just stopped by their office,

Subject: March 20 & 21, 2018 - Potential for Protestors - RHQ

Hello Regional Security,

Please note that the 'Namgis First Nation have filed a lawsuit against DFO and are seeking an injunction to prevent the restocking of fish farms located in Swanson Island. The individuals are due in court on March 20–21st at the Provincial Court of BC, Vancouver. There are a number of call outs requesting supporters of the cause to attend and protest at the courthouse. At this current time, there is no indication of these protestors attending RHQ. However, they could make a surprise stopover to RHQ due to the close proximity.

Thanks,

Subject: An interesting piece re: pipeline expansion over Burnaby Mountain and in south coast of BC

The link below is to a Globe and Mail article which is very easy to follow along with timeline descriptions and visuals of where pipeline expansion projects are occurring and would occur in Burnaby/Vancouver and through southern Vancouver Island area waters. Grain of salt, I wouldn't call the piece 'objective' but it does relay what's going on in reference to the anti-pipeline/Kinder Morgan protest actions currently going on in Burnaby.

As I've noted in past, some of the same protesters focusing on aquaculture fish farms also participate in or support the protests again Kinder Morgan expansion going on in Burnaby. The NFIS concerns is what's going on with protests at fish farm sites, however I think it's worth noting that many of the same folks work in multiple 'eco-protest' networks.

Hello folks:

We have received a tasking with a very short deadline for a DM meeting with BC DM of the Environment Mark Zacharias. In order to task info for the scenario note, we need a list of topics. We presently have no agenda. We are making inquiries to DMO and BC to confirm topics, but until we know more, I think we can safely start work on the following:

Aquaculture (AE-AMD)
G7 Oceans Agenda (SP-ER)
Marine Protected Areas (AE-Oceans)
Marine Planning (AE – Oceans)
SRKW (OPP/Science)
Marine Safety / Spill Response (CCG)

Can we have a phonecall at 12:45 (in 30 mins) to confirm these and add any other topics, themed oceans and science. Or join me in room 14S041.

SCENARIO NOTE
MEETING WITH BRITISH MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE, LANA POPHAM IN VANCOUVER, BC

Overview

You are scheduled to meet with the BC Minister of Agriculture Lana Popham, on Thursday, March 15, 2018, from 8:30 am to 9:30 am. The purpose of the meeting is to discuss issues related to:

1. Aquaculture
2. Indigenous Reconciliation
3. Fisheries Act Review
4. Salmon Fisheries: Integrated Fisheries Management Plans (IFMP)
5. Wild Salmon
6. Ocean Protection Plan (OPP) Implementation

Your overall objective is to reassure her that DFO will work in close collaboration with the province to advance common goals of environmental protection, Indigenous reconciliation and appropriate use of scientific evidence in decision making on aquaculture.

In recent weeks, the province has been dealing with the fall-out following the announcement of proposed regulations that could stall the Trans Mountain Expansion Project.

On February 20, 2018, the BC government delivered its provincial budget, which focused on housing affordability, childcare and increased services. The budget included a $29 million over three years in BC's agriculture, food, and seafood sectors through Grow BC, Feed BC and Buy BC program to expand local markets. This program could play a complimentary role to the $30 million Canadian Food and Seafood Program from DFO.

Recently, Ms. Popham faced media criticism about the tone of a letter she sent to Marine Harvest in October, 2017 in which she indicated tenures may not be renewed, despite the fact that tenure approval is the responsibility of the Ministry of Forests, Lands and Natural Resource Operations. The opposition has questioned what they called her "activist opposition to fish farming".

s.21(1)(b)

1. Issue: Aquaculture

The province is facing increasing - and often times divergent - pressure from Indigenous groups, industry, international and other levels of governments on aquaculture issues.

Minister's Objective

- To reaffirm the Department's commitment to support sustainable aquaculture development, while respecting jurisdictional mandates and areas of responsibility.

Key Messages

Health of Fish

- We have recently announced the creation of an independent expert panel to provide recommendations on the appropriate use and consideration of scientific evidence in protecting the marine environment in decision-making on aquaculture.

Broughton Archipelago - Process

- We recognize the concerns of First Nations, especially of those in the Broughton archipelago area. We also recognize the challenges that this represents to industry as it relates to the renewal of tenures.

Washington Legislation on Atlantic Salmon Farming

- We understand industry concerns following the recent Washington state legislature's decision to phase out ocean-based Atlantic salmon farms.
- DFO is committed to regulating a responsible and sustainable aquaculture sector based on science and evidence-based decision making.

Aquaculture Legislative Reform

- Last June, during our CCFAM meeting, we discussed exploring new aquaculture legislation that would address barriers to industry growth, safeguard the environment, and be compatible with existing provincial and territorial regimes.

- Through the CCFAM Strategic Management Committee (SMC) on aquaculture, provinces and territories are working together to develop a proposal for an aquaculture act expected to be presented at the next Ministerial meeting this summer.

BC Minister of Agriculture's Advisory Council on Finfish Aquaculture (MAACFA)

- We look forward to working with you in considering how to best respond to the recommendations set out in the MAACFA report.

Long- Term Vision for Aquaculture

- The long-term vision for aquaculture can only be developed in collaboration with provincial and territorial partners, as well as with Indigenous governments, industry and other stakeholders.
- We are committed to putting a long-term vision into place, to help ensure Canada can continue to support an aquaculture sector that is well regulated through effective science-based measures and respect for all stakeholders.
- I seek your support to help the federal government implement this vision and your suggestions on implementation and improvement.

Effluent Discharge from Fish Processing Plants

- I take any potential risks to wild salmon very seriously. I am committed to working collaboratively with the provincial government on this issue, as well as more broadly on issues relating to aquaculture management in British Columbia.
- Environment and Climate Change Canada and the Province of BC are responsible for the regulation of fish processing effluent.
- Fisheries and Oceans Canada is supporting these agencies as they investigate this matter and will take appropriate action, should it be found that the effluent from this plant poses a concern to wild fish or their habitat.

- DFO's licensing conditions for marine finfish aquaculture outline requirements operators must follow regarding the collection, retention and disposal of blood generated during fish harvest at aquaculture sites.

Responsive on PRV

- Piscine Orthoreovirus (PRV) is found in both wild and farmed salmon on the coast of British Columbia. It does not represent a risk to human health.
- DFO Science reviewed the potential impacts of PRV on the west coast of North America and concluded that there is a low likelihood that PRV has a significant impact on wild Pacific salmon populations.

Marine Harvest Canada Injunction

- While DFO recognizes the rights of individuals to protest peacefully and lawfully, individuals should not trespass on private property and need to respect biosecurity protocols at aquaculture facilities. The safety of individuals, including protestors and aquaculture facility employees, is paramount.

Science advisor aquaculture panel

- Robust and credible science helps us make evidence-based decisions that support the protection of our environment, ensuring that sustainable industries continue to provide good, middle-class jobs for Canadians.
- On February 2, 2018, I announced that Canada's Chief Science Advisor, Dr. Mona Nemer, will be leading an expert panel to look at how we use science to protect our waters as we make decisions on aquaculture.
- The terms of reference for the Panel were posted online recently, with the expectation of a draft report in July and the full report by fall 2018.
- We look forward to the panel's recommendations as we remain a strong, science-based regulator of the aquaculture industry.

2. Issue: Indigenous Reconciliation

Minister's Objective

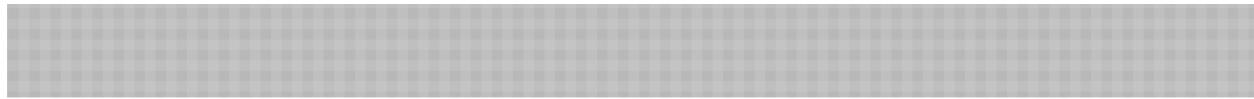

- To obtain BC's support on efforts underway across the federal government and within the Department to advance reconciliation with Indigenous Peoples.

Key Messages

- DFO supports the new Framework on the Recognition and Implementation of Indigenous Rights. We recognize that fish, fisheries, oceans, aquatic habitat, and marine waterways are culturally, socially, and economically significant for Indigenous communities.
- DFO values open dialogue and will continue to use its negotiation tables as a primary vehicle for discussion on Indigenous rights, continuing to encourage First Nations to negotiate how their rights will be implemented.
- The decision on the Ahousaht Case from the Supreme Court of BC will likely generate interest from Indigenous communities across Canada.
- DFO has developed an operational readiness plan in order to ensure that DFO communicates with stakeholders and Indigenous groups promptly following the decision, and that fisheries continue to be managed in an orderly, safe, stable and predictable manner.

s.14(a)
s.21(1)(b)

3. Issue: Fisheries Act Changes and Implementation

Minister's Objective

- To reassure the BC government that the implementation of Fisheries Act changes will be done in close cooperation with all provinces and territories, including BC.

Key Messages

- In the past two years provinces and territories, including British Columbia, have contributed significant input to the Fisheries Act changes. Much of this input was reflected in Bill C-68 which was tabled in the House of Commons on February 6, 2018.
- A number of briefings took place through CCFAM at the Deputy Minister level, as well as at the technical level through the Fisheries Act Task Group. More briefings will be held in the weeks to come.
- We look forward to work with the province as program, policy and regulatory updates are developed consistent with the changes to the Fisheries Act, particularly in the areas of habitat science, monitoring and protection.

s.14(a)
s.21(1)(a)
s.21(1)(b)

4. Issue: Salmon Fisheries: Integrated Fisheries Management Plans (IFMP)

Minister's Objective

- To reinforce the good collaboration with BC on this subject, especially with respect to the management of Fraser mainstream recreational fisheries.

Key Messages

- BC Salmon Integrated Fisheries Management Plans (IFMPs) are developed with feedback from First Nations, commercial, and recreational fishermen, and the Integrated Harvest Planning Committee.
- Fishing plans are based on scientific advice from the Canadian Science Advisory Secretariat, DFO and other stakeholders.
- DFO is proposing a reduction in exploitation rates for specific chinook stocks of concern, to support conservation and promote rebuilding steelhead.

s.21(1)(a)
s.21(1)(b)

5. Issue: Wild Salmon

The provincial government is discussing the idea of a dedicated provincial government entity to streamline the wild salmon policy, as currently, responsibility for salmon falls between six provincial ministries.

Minister's Objective

- To affirm DFO's commitment to protecting and maintaining wild Pacific salmon stocks, highlighting the progress on the Government's response to the Cohen Commission and work underway to develop a five-year implementation plan related to Canada's Policy for Conservation of Wild Pacific Salmon (WSP).

Key Messages

- The developing of the Wild Salmon Policy Implementation Plan is a key part of DFO's commitment to acting on the outstanding recommendations of the Cohen Commission, which includes the sustainable management of wild Pacific salmon in collaboration with First Nations, the BC government, stakeholders, and other partners.
- DFO appreciates BC's participation to date, and is interested in other related opportunities for collaboration, especially around habitat.
- Broad consultation sessions were undertaken in the fall of 2017 on the development of a draft Wild Salmon Policy Implementation Plan which involved consultations with more than 90 First Nations. Open houses were held with stakeholders and the public across the province. Many comments call for greater collaboration between our respective agencies.

s.14(a)

s.21(1)(a)

s.21(1)(b)

6. Issue: Ocean Protection Plan (OPP)

Minister's Objective

- To reassure the Government of BC, that the Ocean Protection Plan is being implemented with specific initiatives that will benefit the BC environment and marine habitat.

Key Messages

- Budget 2017 provided $1.5 billion over five years for the Oceans Protection Plan (including $1.14 billion for DFO/CCG) to create a state of the art marine safety system, both prevention and response; preserve and restore marine ecosystems; strengthen Indigenous partnerships; and invest in a stronger evidence base and increased community participation and public awareness.
- The majority of the initiatives under the Oceans Protection Plan will benefit British Columbia by protecting Canada's oceans by improving oil spill prevention and response; increasing emergency response capacity, including local and Indigenous emergency response capacity; and investing in research to ensure decisions are evidence-based.
- Budget 2018 provides $155 million over five years to increase our capacity to protect species at risk, including recovery initiatives for priority species, areas and threats to our environment.

Budget 2018 provides $35 million over five years (part of $167.4 million to Fisheries and Oceans Canada, Transport Canada and Environment and Climate Change Canada) to better protect, preserve and recover endangered whale species in Canada including the Southern Resident Killer Whale in British Columbia.

- DFO is undertaking work to increase critical habitat for the Southern Resident Killer Whales to include important foraging habitat off the West Coast of Vancouver Island in and around Swiftsure Bank.

Background

1. Aquaculture

Health of Fish

In early December 2017, the province inspected two fish processing facilities, the Brown's Bay Packing plant near Campbell River and the Lions Gate Fisheries plant in Tofino. Laboratory results confirmed the presence of piscine reovirus (PRV).

On December 20, 2017, DFO responded with the release of a public science advisory report focused on the Infectious Hematopoietic Necrosis Virus (IHNV). The report was conducted by the Canadian Science Advisory Secretary as the IHNV is known to have caused disease on Atlantic salmon farms in the Discovery Islands. However, the report concluded that the risk posed to Fraser River Sockeye Salmon due to IHNV on Atlantic salmon farms in the Discovery Islands is minimal.

The risks associated with other pathogens also known to cause disease on marine Atlantic salmon farms in the Discovery Islands were not assessed. Other pathogens will be assessed in a subsequent process.

On February 2, 2018, DFO announced the creation of an independent expert panel to provide recommendations on the appropriate use and consideration of scientific evidence in decision-making process on aquaculture. The panel will be led by Canada's Chief Science Advisor, Dr. Mona Nemer, who will deliver a final report to Minister LeBlanc and Minister of Science Kirsty Duncan (Annex 1).

Broughton Archipelago— Salmon Farmers

The escape of Atlantic salmon from a Washington state pen last summer has spurred debate in Canada about open-net fish farming due to fears the foreign fish could cause harm to the wild species of Pacific salmon. On January 23, 2018, six BC First Nations served an eviction notice to Marine Harvest Canada (the province's largest producer of farmed fish). Some of the company's leases expire in June, 2018. First Nations have made demands for an end to open-net fish farming in the Broughton Archipelago area.

On January 30, 2018, BC provincial ministers met with First Nation governments from the Broughton Archipelago in Vancouver to discuss tenure renewals in the Broughton area. At the request of the province, DFO officials also attended this meeting.

First Nations representatives requested that the province not approve any tenure renewals without their consent. First Nations also expressed their desire for negotiations to remain between provincial and First Nations governments. First Nations requested that DFO not participate in future meetings related to this process.

Provincial and First Nations governments issued a joint statement following the meeting confirming their intent to honour the implementation of the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples and implement a “a consent-based government-to-government process” as part of the tenure renewal process (Annex 2).

As tenures expire, some or all of the salmon farm tenures in the Broughton Archipelago may not be renewed. First Nation participants also expressed a desire not to have tenures renewed in other areas of the province. This could have significant adverse implications on the aquaculture industry in BC, as well as broader implications on departmental decision making.

The joint statement is in alignment with the letter that the BC Minister of Agriculture sent to salmon farmers (Marine Harvest Canada) in October 2017, warning them that routine restocking plans for the Broughton locations could be problematic, as tenures could not be guaranteed.

The minister, Doug

Donaldson, said the provincial government's vision for the future includes moving them out of the ocean and into land-based operations, wherever possible.

Washington Legislation on Atlantic Salmon Farming

Washington state officials cancelled a lease with Cooke Aquaculture Pacific in February, 2018 at the site where open-net pens holding farmed Atlantic salmon collapsed. The decision came after an investigation found the company negligent for failing to adequately clean its nets.

On February 8, 2018, a bill to phase out net pen farming of Atlantic salmon in Washington passed the state Senate. On March 2, 2018, the House passed the bill, Washington will no longer allow commercial net-pen aquaculture for Atlantic salmon in state waters. Current leases will be allowed to run out. The last one expires in 2025. The legislation is yet to be signed by Governor Jay Inslee, who has expressed unequivocal support.

Washington officials have put pressure on the BC government to join the state in phasing out ocean-based Atlantic salmon open-net farms as the province decides whether to renew farm tenures, which expire in June 2018.

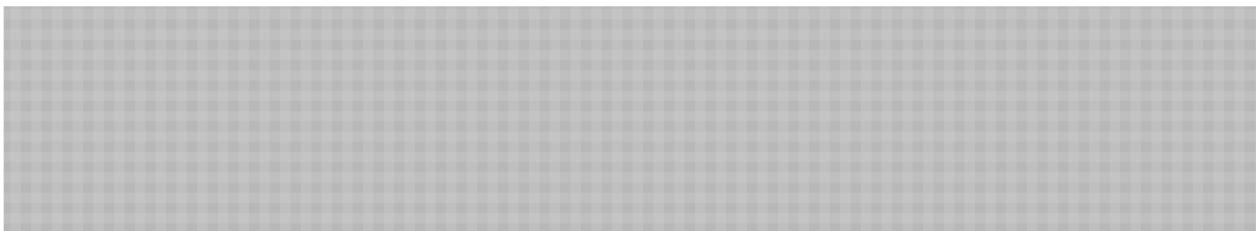

The BC Salmon Farmers Association states that the province's industry is well managed. The BC salmon industry employs more than 6,000 people, and constitutes the province's largest agricultural export.

s.21(1)(a)

s.21(1)(b)

Aquaculture Legislative Reform

DFO is also engaging a broad array of stakeholders and Indigenous groups to understand their key priorities that may be addressed by an aquaculture act. To date, DFO has conducted 31 sessions across Canada, of which 10 included Indigenous groups. DFO will continue these engagement sessions until the end of March 2018.

Overall, feedback received during the engagement sessions will be consolidated

BC Minister of Agriculture's Advisory Council on Finfish Aquaculture (MAACFA)

In July 2015, the province of BC created the Minister of Agriculture's Advisory Council on Finfish Aquaculture (MAACFA) to develop recommendations concerning the future of BC's tenuring policies around finfish aquaculture. The council has wide representation from First Nations, environmental groups, industry, and local communities. Because of DFO's lead role in regulating and licensing aquaculture activities in BC, DFO participates as an observer on MAACFA, providing presentations and materials as necessary.

A report has been prepared by MAACFA but has not been released publically. DFO staff have been given an advance copy and key messages from the report is that no agreement was reached amongst council members as to the level of risk posed by net pen farming to wild salmon stocks. A number of recommendations were put forth around strengthening science-based decision-making and increasing consultations with First Nations. The recommendations in the MAACFA report include:

- Define in a prescriptive manner how the precautionary principle is being applied to salmon farm siting; provide evidence that it poses no more than a minimal risk to wild salmon;
- Acknowledge and incorporate First Nations' rights, title and stewardship responsibilities in all aspects of fish farm governance, including tenuring, licensing, management and monitoring, in a manner consistent with the United Nations Declarations of Rights and Indigenous Peoples (UNDRIP);
- Establish a salmon aquaculture forum comprised of coastal and interior First Nations to provide advice on net-pen aquaculture management;
- BC and DFO should work together to increase their capacity; develop a common understanding of scientific findings;
- Establish an independent panel to review conflicting science; and,

s.14(a)
s.21(1)(a)
s.21(1)(b)

- Provide incentives for the continued research, development and adoption of salmon farming technologies that reduce the risk to wild salmon, including land-based containment.

Long- Term Vision for Aquaculture

On November 22, 2017, you announced at the Canadian Aquaculture Industry Alliance Annual General Meeting a broad vision to support sustainable aquaculture in Canada. The Long Term Vision (previously referred as Aquaculture 2030 Vision) is intended to address public concerns about environmental impacts, especially in BC, over aquaculture practices in Canada.

The vision encompasses an evolving set of actions with the goal of achieving an aquaculture sector that is well regulated through effective science-based measures, and will be developed in collaboration with provinces and territories, and Indigenous governments. This vision will build on ongoing work by DFO, but also will consider new activities, under a framework of four key pillars: Collaboration and Governance; Innovation for Sustainable Growth; Healthy Fish and Ecosystems; and, Transparency and Accountability.

Many of the proposed activities that could be in the draft document will require the support of partners in other federal government Departments and provincial and territorial governments, as well as Indigenous Peoples, industry and other stakeholders to achieve the overarching goals.

Effluent Discharge from Fish Processing Plants

s.14(a)

s.21(1)(b)

In September 2017, a wild salmon advocacy group circulated video footage of blood and other effluent coming from a Brown's Bay, BC aquaculture processing plant. According to group representatives, the effluent has been tested and revealed evidence of Piscine Orthoreovirus (PRV), a virus which has been linked by some to potentially fatal Heart and Skeletal Muscle Inflammation (HSMI) in farmed salmon. This advocacy group also contributed to the recent W5 program on BC Fish farms. The Department has received media enquiries on the issue.

Under the existing regulatory environment, management of effluent from processing plants is a shared responsibility involving the Canadian Food Inspection Agency (CFIA), Environment and Climate Change Canada (ECCC), and the Province of British Columbia.

When farmed fish are harvested, DFO's conditions of licence require the containment of blood within harvest vessels and prevent its release into the marine environment. The CFIA assumes regulatory oversight once harvest aquaculture products enter the processing facility. The effluent discharge created during the processing of fish and released into the water is managed by the province through permits issued under the authority of the Environmental Management Act by the provincial Ministry of Environment and Climate Change Strategy.

Although DFO does not audit or monitor this discharge because it falls under provincial authority, the Department's comprehensive monitoring and auditing program of farmed fish provides DFO confidence in the health of the fish being harvested. DFO has confidence that pathogens that cause a significant risk to wild salmon are being addressed prior to harvest, which then minimizes risks at the effluent discharge.

On November 9, 2017, a letter was sent on your behalf to Minister Heyman, with a copy to the Honourable Lana Popham, BC Minister of Agriculture, and the Honourable Catherine McKenna, Minister of ECCC, outlining the interests of DFO and ECCC in protecting wild fish and preventing pollution. The letter concluded with a recommendation for DFO, ECCC and the Province of BC to undertake a review of policies respecting discharge from fish processing plants and to take any additional steps that may be required to ensure potential risks are identified and addressed.

Since then, both the provincial Ministry of Environment and ECCC have initiated investigations based on their respective areas of regulatory responsibility. As details of ongoing investigations are confidential, the current status of these reviews is unknown.

Although DFO has no regulatory role to play in licensing processing plants, the BC Ministry of Environment requested the Department's assistance in reviewing the provincial permit for effluent discharge at Brown's Bay Packing Company. DFO Science also assisted in sample collection during the first week of December, and will test samples for the presence of diseases and pathogens, including PRV.

Marine Harvest Canada Injunction

Since August 2017, members of Broughton area First Nations have been occupying two Marine Harvest Canada (MHC) salmon farms on the north coast of Vancouver Island to pressure for the removal of aquaculture operations from the area. Marine Harvest applied for an injunction against the fish farm protesters that was heard on November 14. Canada and BC are not named as a party in the injunction proceedings, as such, DFO were not served with court documents.

Normally, an injunction proceeding is an expedited court process, involving a narrow question for the court: whether to grant an injunction, or not. Injunctive relief would not include a declaration on aboriginal rights or title, or the legality of fish farms. However, during the November 14 hearing, the judge adjourned the hearing for four weeks (to December 14), on request of the respondent protestors and stated that the purpose of the adjournment is to allow the respondents to prepare further arguments in support of their claim of Aboriginal title.

The November 14 Application Response filed by the respondents opposes the granting of an injunction, and seeks no other relief, although they do refer to their claimed Aboriginal rights and title, and their views on fish farms. The respondent further arguments that were due to be served on December 3, have not been filed, so the content of those arguments is unknown. Marine Harvest had until December 10 to reply to any further respondent arguments.

Meanwhile, adjourned the judge has ordered that the two named respondents / protesters will undertake to stop their protests and will remove obstructing structures at the fish farm within 72 hours. If the protesters continue to obstruct the fish farm, Marine Harvest is granted the right to reappear in Supreme Court, on 36-hours notice.

The potential impacts of a court decision are unknown at this time, as pleadings are not closed. Currently, the only issue for court determination is whether to grant the injunction Marine Harvest seeks, which is likely to have minimal impacts on DFO, but further pleadings could be filed.

The letters served by Marine Harvest Canada to the protesters this week have been widely circulated on social media along with continued messages of defiance from the local First Nations. C&P continues to monitor the situation in cooperation with the RCMP's Aboriginal Liaison Team.

Science advisor aquaculture panel

Our government is establishing an expert panel to evaluate the processes to conduct and communicate science, which is part of the Department's Long Term Aquaculture Vision.

This panel will review the complex and challenging scientific questions considered in decision-making for aquaculture development and regulation.

The Department is currently developing options regarding the structure and composition of this expert panel. On February 2, 2018, Canada's Chief Science Advisor, Dr. Mona Nemer, will be leading an expert panel to look at how science is used to make decisions on aquaculture. The terms of reference for the Panel were posted online recently, with the expectation of a draft report in July and the full report by fall 2018.

2. Indigenous Reconciliation

The Government of Canada's commitment to building renewed nation-to-nation, government-to-government, and Inuit-Crown relationships with Indigenous Peoples based on respect, recognition, cooperation, and partnership extends to the fisheries, oceans, and marine waterways portfolio. In many cases, DFO is the face of the federal government for many Indigenous people, and is thus well-suited to advance the reconciliation agenda.

DFO is undertaking numerous initiatives to advance reconciliation, including establishing new negotiating tables with Indigenous groups pursuant to constructive agreements, embarking on a national review exercise with Indigenous groups to renew and co-design its Indigenous programs.

s.21(1)(b)

On December 5, 2017, Minister Popham wrote to you requesting your participation in the BC government's proposed government-to-government-to-government process.

DFO senior officials participated in the government-to-government meeting that took place soon after on an informal basis.

On January 12, 2018, the BC Ministry of Indigenous Relations and Reconciliation and the five Maa-nulth First Nations jointly announced and signed a new government-to-government agreement to strengthen and affirm their treaty partnership.

It is expected that the government-to-government agreement between the BC government and the Maa-nulth First Nations will create a regular forum to discuss, prioritize and collaborate on topics of mutual interest, including land, resource management and treaty implementation issues.

Following the January 30, 2018 announcement on the Broughton Archipelago (Annex 3), the BC government announced they would embark on government-to-government discussions to address the issues and concerns about fish farms in the Nations' traditional territories and "to do the necessary hard work to find a path forward together in the Broughton Archipelago in keeping with and enacting the principles of the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples."

DFO is in the process of developing Rights and Recognition Framework and the Recognition of Indigenous Rights and Self-Determination which will guide Departmental efforts towards reconciliation.

Following the PM's announcement of a new Framework on the Recognition and Implementation of Rights on February 14, 2018, Minister LeBlanc wrote to 5 representatives of Indigenous Nations to reassure the Government of Canada's priority on reconciliation between Canada and Indigenous peoples, by extending an offer to transfer licences and quotas for groundfish, salmon and shellfish valued at just over $8 million, bringing the value of the Five Nations' existing access in these species to $40 million. Additionally, Minister LeBlanc indicated Canada's commitment to reviewing and co-developing the Allocation Policy for Pacific Salmon and to increase their Chinook salmon access.

s.21(1)(b)

In the second phase of the Ahousaht trial, which concluded in October 2016, the British Columbia Supreme Court heard arguments on the further delineation of the established Ahousaht Aboriginal right to fish and to sell fish, on whether DFO's fisheries management regime continues to infringe that right, and on the justification of the Crown's prima facie infringement of the Ahousaht right as found in the BCSC's 2009 decision in the first phase of this trial.

A decision is expected imminently. Canada will be given seven days' notice before the day of release. DFO will likely have very little time to analyze the decision before it becomes public, as it is expected that the Ahousaht First Nations will make the decision public shortly after the lawyer lockup ends on the day of release.

Additionally, DFO agreed to cancel this year's commercial roe fishery on BC's central coast. However, it will allow Heiltsuk First Nationa (located in Bella-Bella) limited spawn fishery for food, ceremonial and commercial purposes in the spirit of reconciliation. In the past, DFO has not allowed a First Nation commercial spawn fishery unless a licensed commercial row fishery was also allowed.

3. Fisheries Act Review

On February 6, 2018, Bill C-68 was tabled in the House of Commons, announcing proposed amendments to the Fisheries Act that would restore lost protections and incorporate modern safeguards to protect our fish and their habitat for generations to come. You also announced that the government will invest up to $284.2 million to support restoring lost protections and incorporating modern safeguards.

Provinces and territories were given 24 hours' notice before the tabling of the Bill. CCFAM Deputy Ministers requested a briefing the day of tabling, which was provided. A longer briefing was held on February 7, 2018 by the CCFAM Fisheries Act Task Group, which included participants from other provincial and territorial departments implicated by the Bill. Regional engagement with BC is planned with staff from the Fisheries Protection Program to discuss the proposed amendments and next steps, which is complementary to the work of the CCFAM Task Group.

Public reaction to date has been mostly positive, with accolades coming from environmental groups and some fishers organizations. BC's First Nations Fisheries Council have expressed satisfaction with the direction of the federal government, however, they would have preferred to see it go further.

4. Salmon Fisheries: Integrated Fisheries Management Plans (IFMP)

DFO prepares annual Pacific Salmon IFMPs for the five species of salmon in British Columbia. The plans for Northern BC and Southern BC/Fraser River will be finalized in June or early July. It is expected the plans – once released - may attract media attention, given the forecast of low returns expected in a number of species, diminished prey availability for Southern Resident Killer Whales, issues addressed in the Committee on the Status of Endangered Wildlife in Canada (COSEWIC) assessments for five salmon species (Sakimaw Sockeye, Okanagan Chinook, Interior Fraser Coho, Fraser Sockeye, Interior Fraser Steelhead, and Southern BC Chinook), and environmental concerns facing migrating salmon.

- Fraser Sockeye: 2018 is a dominant return year for the famous Adams River Sockeye migration. A quantitative forecast has been developed, but there is considerable concern as returns in most recent years have fallen well below the median forecast. The draft IFMP identifies options for management approaches, including window closure considerations to protect weak populations at the start of the migration. Also proposed is an escapement plan option, setting out harvest control rules for in-season management.

There will likely be disagreement between First Nations, harvest groups, and NGOs about how much harvest should be taken in mixed stock fisheries to protect weak, endangered Sockeye populations. Another management approach being considered in the draft IFMP is a set of rules governing opportunities to harvest abundant populations in terminal locations, known as Excess Salmon to Spawning Requirements (ESSR) fisheries. This could provide additional access to First Nations groups in the Fraser River.

- BC Chinook Salmon: The 2018/19 draft Northern and Southern BC Salmon IFMP contemplates a substantial reduction in BC Chinook salmon harvests to address conservation concerns, which has been sent to First Nations and stakeholders on March 1, 2018 for review and comment. There is evidence of a regional pattern of reduced survival rates and productivity across many BC Chinook salmon stocks. This pattern extends to Southeast Alaska, Washington, and Oregon Chinook Salmon stocks as well; fishery reductions are also being planned by the State of Alaska to protect chinook populations returning to Southeast Alaska and northern BC transboundary rivers. Pre-season forecasts are for a well-below average abundance of Chinook salmon, in many cases below levels required to achieve minimum spawning escapement targets.
- DFO is proposing reduction in exploitation rates (in the range of 25-35%) for specific chinook stocks of concern. Management and conservation measures implemented to date have not been sufficient to rebuild populations, as stocks of concern are continuing to decline or are static.
- DFO will also take additional actions to increase Chinook availability and accessibility in key Southern Resident Killer Whale (SRKW) foraging areas within their critical habitat. Measures will be designed to increase accessibility to prey and also reduce the presence and noise of fishing vessels and recreational boaters in key foraging areas. The Department intends to implement measures on a trial basis in 2018.
- Interior Fraser Steelhead (Thompson and Chilcotin): On February 13, 2018, COSEWIC informed the Minister of Environment and Climate Change Canada that COSEWIC's Emergency Assessment Subcommittee had assessed both the Thompson River and Chilcotin River Steelhead Trout as Endangered and recommended that an Emergency Order be issued, placing these wildlife species on Schedule 1 of the Species at Risk Act.

Threats to steelhead include poor ocean survival (which includes, but is not limited to, predation of juveniles by Harbour seals and increased ocean temperatures), reduced freshwater habitat quality, bycatch release mortalities from fisheries targeting Pacific salmon, and release mortalities from recreational catch and release fisheries targeting adult steelhead.

Given ongoing declines in Interior Fraser River Steelhead escapement, a comprehensive, precautionary approach will be required for 2018 in the management of all fisheries in southern BC that are likely to impact steelhead. The draft 2018 management plan proposes a new rolling window closure (lasting approximately 3-4 weeks) that will curtail salmon-directed fisheries, including for First Nations food, social and cultural uses and commercial fisheries, to afford additional protection to Interior Fraser Steelhead.

Southern BC Chum fisheries will be most affected by these measures, due to an overlap in migration timing with Interior Fraser River Steelhead.

The BC government's Seafood Secretariat supports sustainable fisheries, which falls under the Minister of Agriculture.

5. Wild Salmon

Canada's Policy for Conservation of Wild Pacific Salmon (Wild Salmon Policy or WSP) was released in 2005 after five years of consultations with First Nations, partners, and stakeholders. It clarifies the rationale for a conservation-based management approach for salmon and their ecosystems. The goal of the WSP is to "restore and maintain healthy and diverse salmon populations and their habitats for the people of Canada in perpetuity." It is distinct from the Atlantic Wild Salmon Policy, and contains both core policy elements (goal, objectives, and guiding principles) and implementation focused elements (strategies and action steps). The WSP is integral to the Department's policy framework, and guides resource management decision-making and scientific advice.

The development of a detailed WSP Implementation Plan is part of a renewed focus on the 75 recommendations of the Cohen Commission final report, The Uncertain Future of Fraser River Sockeye. The most recent Cohen status update was published on September 28, 2017. Eight of these recommendations related directly to the WSP, while the rest fall under the themes of Fisheries Management, Aquaculture, Habitat, and Science. In this public update, the Department announced that DFO and its partners (Government of BC and Environment and Climate Change Canada) have acted on 64 of the 75 recommendations.

Informed by the recommendation from the Cohen Commission that an implementation plan would make the WSP more effective, and to integrate salmon program delivery, DFO Pacific Region staff are working with key partners to develop a final 2018-2022 WSP Implementation Plan. The Implementation Plan will outline key activities and their timelines and accountabilities to be undertaken over the next five years to implementing the Wild Salmon Policy. It will publicly commit DFO to annual reporting on progress and focuses on transparent dissemination of information.

An initial draft WSP Implementation Plan was the focus of over 32 consultation and engagement sessions, stakeholder meeting updates and online engagement that occurred across BC and Yukon in fall/winter 2017. Consultation sessions involved 13 meetings with over 90 First Nations and 12 public open houses in 12 locations. Hundreds of written and on-line submissions were received during the public input period, which ended in December 2017. A final draft of the five year WSP implementation plan is now being developed, informed by input from fall 2017 consultations, for approval and release publicly in 2018 (anticipated early fall).

During the development of the draft WSP Implementation Plan, BC government representatives offered ideas and advice, alongside other partners including the BC First Nations Salmon Coordinating Committee under the BC First Nations Fisheries Council; the Yukon Salmon Sub-Committee; and the Pacific Salmon Foundation. Further meetings with partners, including BC government officials are anticipated as the final five-year WSP Implementation Plan is completed.

6. Ocean Protection Plan (OPP)

On February 16, 2018, you announced an additional $72,000 under OPP to support the Vancouver Aquarium's Pollution Tracker, a monitoring program that will help identify the sources of contaminants in BC's marine environment. You also announced the release of the "What we Heard" report on the Southern Resident Killer Whale Symposium that was held in Vancouver in October, 2017.

For the 2018 salmon fishing season, DFO will take additional fishery management measures to increase chinook availability in the Southern Resident Killer Whale foraging areas within their critical habitat. DFO will be engaging with stakeholders on these measures in the future. DFO has also proposed fishing closures to reduce competition for chinook on a trial basis in four areas, including the mouth of the Fraser River, the west side of Pender Island, the south side of Saturna Island and in part of the Strait of Juan de Fuca. The trial is proposed for May to September, 2018 to coincide with the orcas expected foraging.

However, several conservation groups have complained the federal government failure to issue an emergency order reducing threats to endangered orcas off the BC coast ahead of fishing and whale-watching season could mean the species extinction. These organizations claim DFO and the Ministry of Environment and Climate Change did not recommend an emergency order to cabinet by March 1, 2018, which could have established priority feeding refuges, and set in place fishing and speed reductions for commercial vessels for the season.

Allison,

Could take a look at my scenario note and let me know if I am missing anything. Do you have any updates on the court injunction (I heard Lauren was in court as we speak). Most of the content is the same from the SN for the meeting with Lana Popham last week so am hoping it's all up-to-date. As you can see, need a pretty quick turnaround on this (tomorrow). Thanks.

I think you have lots of canned stuff to draw from.

Hello folks:

We have received a tasking with a very short deadline for a DM meeting with BC DM of the Environment Mark Zacharias. In order to task info for the scenario note, we need a list of topics. We presently have no agenda. We are making inquiries to DMO and BC to confirm topics, but until we know more, I think we can safely start work on the following:

Aquaculture (AE-AMD)
G7 Oceans Agenda (SP-ER)
Marine Protected Areas (AE-Oceans)
Marine Planning (AE – Oceans)
SRKW (OPP/Science)
Marine Safety / Spill Response (CCG)

Can we have a phonecall at 12:45 (in 30 mins) to confirm these and add any other topics, themed oceans and science. Or join me in room 14S041.

TBD by SP

1. Issue: Aquaculture

The province is facing increasing - and often times divergent - pressure from Indigenous groups, industry, international and other levels of governments on aquaculture issues.

Minister's Objective

- To reaffirm the Department's commitment to support sustainable aquaculture development, while respecting jurisdictional mandates and areas of responsibility.

Key Messages

Health of Fish and Expert Panel on Aquaculture Science

- Robust and credible science helps us make evidence-based decisions that support the protection of our environment, ensuring that sustainable industries continue to provide good, middle-class jobs for Canadians.
- On February 2, 2018, I announced that Canada's Chief Science Advisor, Dr. Mona Nemer, will be leading an expert panel to look at how we use science to protect our waters as we make decisions on aquaculture.
- The terms of reference for the Panel were posted online recently, with the expectation of a draft report in July and the full report by fall 2018.
- We look forward to the panel's recommendations as we remain a strong, science-based regulator of the aquaculture industry.

Broughton Archipelago - Process

- We recognize the concerns of First Nations, especially of those in the Broughton archipelago area. We also recognize the challenges that this represents to industry as it relates to the renewal of tenures.

Washington Legislation on Atlantic Salmon Farming

- We understand industry concerns following the recent Washington state legislature's decision to phase out ocean-based Atlantic salmon farms.
- DFO is committed to regulating a responsible and sustainable aquaculture sector based on science and evidence-based decision making.

Aquaculture Legislative Reform

- Last June, during our CCFAM meeting, we discussed exploring new aquaculture legislation that would address barriers to industry growth, safeguard the environment, and be compatible with existing provincial and territorial regimes.
- Through the CCFAM Strategic Management Committee (SMC) on aquaculture, provinces and territories are working together to develop a proposal for an aquaculture act expected to be presented at the next Ministerial meeting this summer.

BC Minister of Agriculture's Advisory Council on Finfish Aquaculture (MAACFA)

- We look forward to working with you in considering how to best respond to the recommendations set out in the MAACFA report.

Long-Term Vision for Aquaculture

- The long-term vision for aquaculture can only be developed in collaboration with provincial and territorial partners, as well as with Indigenous governments, industry and other stakeholders.
- We are committed to putting a long-term vision into place, to help ensure Canada can continue to support an aquaculture sector that is well regulated through effective science-based measures and respect for all stakeholders.
- I seek your support to help the federal government implement this vision and your suggestions on implementation and improvement.

Effluent Discharge from Fish Processing Plants

- I take any potential risks to wild salmon very seriously. I am committed to working collaboratively with the provincial government on this issue, as well as more broadly on issues relating to aquaculture management in British Columbia.

- Environment and Climate Change Canada and the Province of BC are responsible for the regulation of fish processing effluent.
- Fisheries and Oceans Canada is supporting these agencies as they investigate this matter and will take appropriate action, should it be found that the effluent from this plant poses a concern to wild fish or their habitat.
- DFO's licensing conditions for marine finfish aquaculture outline requirements operators must follow regarding the collection, retention and disposal of blood generated during fish harvest at aquaculture sites.

Responsive on PRV

- Piscine Orthoreovirus (PRV) is found in both wild and farmed salmon on the coast of British Columbia. It does not represent a risk to human health.
- DFO Science reviewed the potential impacts of PRV on the west coast of North America and concluded that there is a low likelihood that PRV has a significant impact on wild Pacific salmon populations.

Marine Harvest Canada Injunction

- While DFO recognizes the rights of individuals to protest peacefully and lawfully, individuals should not trespass on private property and need to respect biosecurity protocols at aquaculture facilities. The safety of individuals, including protestors and aquaculture facility employees, is paramount.

Background

1. Aquaculture

Health of Fish and Expert Panel on Aquaculture Science

In early December 2017, the province inspected two fish processing facilities, the Brown's Bay Packing plant near Campbell River and the Lions Gate Fisheries plant in Tofino. Laboratory results confirmed the presence of piscine reovirus (PRV).

On December 20, 2017, DFO responded with the release of a public science advisory report focused on the Infectious Hematopoietic Necrosis Virus (IHNV). The report was conducted by the Canadian Science Advisory Secretary as the IHNV is known to have caused disease on Atlantic salmon farms in the Discovery Islands. However, the report concluded that the risk posed to Fraser River Sockeye Salmon due to IHNV on Atlantic salmon farms in the Discovery Islands is minimal.

The risks associated with other pathogens also known to cause disease on marine Atlantic salmon farms in the Discovery Islands were not assessed. Other pathogens will be assessed in a subsequent process.

On February 2, 2018, DFO announced the creation of an independent expert panel to provide recommendations on the appropriate use and consideration of scientific evidence in decision-making process on aquaculture. The panel will be led by Canada's Chief Science Advisor, Dr. Mona Nemer, who will deliver a final report to Minister LeBlanc and Minister of Science Kirsty Duncan (Annex 1).

The terms of reference for the Panel were posted online recently, with the expectation of a draft report in July and the full report by fall 2018.

Broughton Archipelago— Salmon Farmers

The escape of Atlantic salmon from a Washington state pen last summer has spurred debate in Canada about open-net fish farming due to fears the foreign fish could cause harm to the wild species of Pacific salmon. On January 23, 2018, six BC First Nations served an eviction notice to Marine Harvest Canada (the province's largest producer of farmed fish). Some of the company's leases expire in June, 2018. First Nations have made demands for an end to open-net fish farming in the Broughton Archipelago area.

On January 30, 2018, BC provincial ministers met with First Nation governments from the Broughton Archipelago in Vancouver to discuss tenure renewals in the Broughton area. At the request of the province, DFO officials also attended this meeting.

First Nations representatives requested that the province not approve any tenure renewals without their consent. First Nations also expressed their desire for negotiations to remain between provincial and First Nations governments. First Nations requested that DFO not participate in future meetings related to this process.

Provincial and First Nations governments issued a joint statement following the meeting confirming their intent to honour the implementation of the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples and implement a “a consent-based government-to-government process” as part of the tenure renewal process.

As tenures expire, some or all of the salmon farm tenures in the Broughton Archipelago may not be renewed. First Nation participants also expressed a desire not to have tenures renewed in other areas of the province. This could have significant adverse implications on the aquaculture industry in BC, as well as broader implications on departmental decision making.

The joint statement is in alignment with the letter that the BC Minister of Agriculture sent to salmon farmers (Marine Harvest Canada) in October 2017, warning them that routine restocking plans for the Broughton locations could be problematic, as tenures could not be guaranteed.

[REDACTED] The minister, Doug

Donaldson, said the provincial government's vision for the future includes moving them out of the ocean and into land-based operations, wherever possible.

Washington Legislation on Atlantic Salmon Farming

Washington state officials cancelled a lease with Cooke Aquaculture Pacific in February, 2018 at the site where open-net pens holding farmed Atlantic salmon collapsed. The decision came after an investigation found the company negligent for failing to adequately clean its nets.

On February 8, 2018, a bill to phase out net pen farming of Atlantic salmon in Washington passed the state Senate. On March 2, 2018, the House passed the bill, Washington will no longer allow commercial net-pen aquaculture for Atlantic salmon in state waters. Current leases will be allowed to run out. The last one expires in 2025. The legislation is yet to be signed by Governor Jay Inslee, who has expressed unequivocal support.

Washington officials have put pressure on the BC government to join the state in phasing out ocean-based Atlantic salmon open-net farms as the province decides whether to renew farm tenures, which expire in June 2018.

s.21(1)(b)

The BC Salmon Farmers Association states that the province's industry is well managed. The BC salmon industry employs more than 6,000 people, and constitutes the province's largest agricultural export.

Aquaculture Legislative Reform

[REDACTED] DFO is also engaging a broad array of stakeholders and Indigenous groups to understand their key priorities that may be addressed by an aquaculture act. To date, DFO has conducted 31 sessions across Canada, of which 10 included Indigenous groups. DFO will continue these engagement sessions until the end of March 2018.

Overall, feedback received during the engagement sessions will be consolidated [REDACTED]

BC Minister of Agriculture's Advisory Council on Finfish Aquaculture (MAACFA)

In July 2015, the province of BC created the Minister of Agriculture's Advisory Council on Finfish Aquaculture (MAACFA) to develop recommendations concerning the future of BC's tenuring policies around finfish aquaculture. The council has wide representation from First Nations, environmental groups, industry, and local communities. Because of DFO's lead role in regulating and licensing aquaculture activities in BC, DFO participates as an observer on MAACFA, providing presentations and materials as necessary.

A report has been prepared by MAACFA but has not been released publically. DFO staff have been given an advance copy and key messages from the report is that no agreement was reached amongst council members as to the level of risk posed by net pen farming to wild salmon stocks. A number of recommendations were put forth around strengthening science-based decision-making and increasing consultations with First Nations. The recommendations in the MAACFA report include to:

- Define in a prescriptive manner how the precautionary principle is being applied to salmon farm siting; provide evidence that it poses no more than a minimal risk to wild salmon;
- Acknowledge and incorporate First Nations' rights, title and stewardship responsibilities in all aspects of fish farm governance, including tenuring, licensing, management and monitoring, in a manner consistent with the United Nations Declarations of Rights and Indigenous Peoples (UNDRIP);
- Establish a salmon aquaculture forum comprised of coastal and interior First Nations to provide advice on net-pen aquaculture management;
- BC and DFO should work together to increase their capacity; develop a common understanding of scientific findings;
- Establish an independent panel to review conflicting science; and,
- Provide incentives for the continued research, development and adoption of salmon farming technologies that reduce the risk to wild salmon, including land-based containment.

Long- Term Vision for Aquaculture

On November 22, 2017, you announced at the Canadian Aquaculture Industry Alliance Annual General Meeting a broad vision to support sustainable aquaculture in Canada. The Long Term Vision (previously referred as Aquaculture 2030 Vision) is intended to address public concerns about environmental impacts, especially in BC, over aquaculture practices in Canada.

The vision encompasses an evolving set of actions with the goal of achieving an aquaculture sector that is well regulated through effective science-based measures, and will be developed in collaboration with provinces and territories, and Indigenous governments. This vision will build on ongoing work by DFO, but also will consider new activities, under a framework of four key pillars: Collaboration and Governance; Innovation for Sustainable Growth; Healthy Fish and Ecosystems; and, Transparency and Accountability.

Many of the proposed activities that could be in the draft document will require the support of partners in other federal government Departments and provincial and territorial governments, as well as Indigenous Peoples, industry and other stakeholders to achieve the overarching goals.

Effluent Discharge from Fish Processing Plants

In September 2017, a wild salmon advocacy group circulated video footage of blood and other effluent coming from a Brown's Bay, BC aquaculture processing plant. According to group representatives, the effluent has been tested and revealed evidence of Piscine Orthoreovirus (PRV), a virus which has been linked by some to potentially fatal Heart and Skeletal Muscle Inflammation (HSMI) in farmed salmon. This advocacy group also contributed to the recent W5 program on BC Fish farms. The Department has received media enquiries on the issue.

Under the existing regulatory environment, management of effluent from processing plants is a shared responsibility involving the Canadian Food Inspection Agency (CFIA), Environment and Climate Change Canada (ECCC), and the Province of British Columbia.

When farmed fish are harvested, DFO's conditions of licence require the containment of blood within harvest vessels and prevent its release into the marine environment. The CFIA assumes regulatory oversight once harvest aquaculture products enter the processing facility. The effluent discharge created during the processing of fish and released into the water is managed by the province through permits issued under the authority of the Environmental Management Act by the provincial Ministry of Environment and Climate Change Strategy.

Although DFO does not audit or monitor this discharge because it falls under provincial authority, the Department's comprehensive monitoring and auditing program of farmed fish provides DFO confidence in the health of the fish being harvested. DFO has confidence that pathogens that cause a significant risk to wild salmon are being addressed prior to harvest, which then minimizes risks at the effluent discharge.

On November 9, 2017, a letter was sent on your behalf to Minister Heyman, with a copy to the Honourable Lana Popham, BC Minister of Agriculture, and the Honourable Catherine McKenna, Minister of ECCC, outlining the interests of DFO and ECCC in protecting wild fish and preventing pollution. The letter concluded with a recommendation for DFO, ECCC and the Province of BC to undertake a review of policies respecting discharge from fish processing plants and to take any additional steps that may be required to ensure potential risks are identified and addressed.

s.21(1)(b)

Since then, both the provincial Ministry of Environment and ECCC have initiated investigations based on their respective areas of regulatory responsibility. As details of ongoing investigations are confidential, the current status of these reviews is unknown.

Although DFO has no regulatory role to play in licensing processing plants, the BC Ministry of Environment requested the Department's assistance in reviewing the provincial permit for effluent discharge at Brown's Bay Packing Company. DFO Science also assisted in sample collection during the first week of December, and will test samples for the presence of diseases and pathogens, including PRV.

Marine Harvest Canada Injunction

Since August 2017, members of Broughton area First Nations have been occupying two Marine Harvest Canada (MHC) salmon farms on the north coast of Vancouver Island to pressure for the removal of aquaculture operations from the area. Marine Harvest applied for an injunction against the fish farm protesters that was heard on November 14. Canada and BC are not named as a party in the injunction proceedings, as such, DFO were not served with court documents.

Normally, an injunction proceeding is an expedited court process, involving a narrow question for the court: whether to grant an injunction, or not. Injunctive relief would not include a declaration on aboriginal rights or title, or the legality of fish farms. However, during the November 14 hearing, the judge adjourned the hearing for four weeks (to December 14), on request of the respondent protesters and stated that the purpose of the adjournment is to allow the respondents to prepare further arguments in support of their claim of Aboriginal title.

s.21(1)(a)
s.21(1)(b)

The November 14 Application Response filed by the respondents opposes the granting of an injunction, and seeks no other relief, although they do refer to their claimed Aboriginal rights and title, and their views on fish farms. The respondent further arguments that were due to be served on December 3, have not been filed, so the content of those arguments is unknown. Marine Harvest had until December 10 to reply to any further respondent arguments.

Meanwhile, adjourned the judge has ordered that the two named respondents / protesters will undertake to stop their protests and will remove obstructing structures at the fish farm within 72 hours. If the protesters continue to obstruct the fish farm, Marine Harvest is granted the right to reappear in Supreme Court, on 36-hours notice.

The potential impacts of a court decision are unknown at this time, as pleadings are not closed. Currently, the only issue for court determination is whether to grant the injunction Marine Harvest seeks, which is likely to have minimal impacts on DFO, but further pleadings could be filed.

The letters served by Marine Harvest Canada to the protesters this week have been widely circulated on social media along with continued messages of defiance from the local First Nations. C&P continues to monitor the situation in cooperation with the RCMP's Aboriginal Liaison Team.

Subject: RE: Updates

Hi Mandy -

Quiet. It sounds like Langford RCMP were asking [REDACTED] to move her camp away from Premier Horgan's office. It sounds like she/the camp are staying put there for now; it's a possibility that she/the camp may now stay at Horgan's office on principle to defy RCMP telling her to move the camp away and to try to gain more sympathy or media attention to her cause.

[REDACTED] Nitasha or I will advise if it gets confirmed either way.

[REDACTED] So no signs of her moving up island, but no signs of her intending to return to DFO office either. Very quiet apart from that.

Re: injunction process - the court dates are today (21 Mar) and tomorrow. It appears likely that Namgis FN and any of their supporters are waiting on that outcome before deciding on any further actions - possibly suggests the protesters up Island will also be waiting on the decision made by the hearing Judge, which probably will not come before this Friday, and may not come until next week.

Will update you if anything changes which might affect your location.

Cheers,
Jo

Hi Linda -

Call is cancelled today. My fault for not communicating that before 1000 hrs, sorry I missed that today.

My apologies - [REDACTED] Nitasha is away as well (and rest of NFIS IO/Supervisory staff is in Quebec).

FYI - There have been no significant developments since I last spoke with you. I will fwd you the info I sent to Mandy the other day.

When I am back to work on Monday, I will retract the original meeting request, re-confer with Claire's staff (whether Thurs. 1000 hrs continues to be the best time for them) and I'll resend out a new request with all the dial in information.

This morning both you and Claire were looking for the dial-in numbers, hence I'll renew the meeting info/invite out to everyone.

Cheers,
Jo

Hi Linda, Colin and Andrew –

FYI, I'm canceling tomorrow's joint phone call conference re: protest updates. The DFO C&P Aquaculture staff will be away and I've been tasked specifically on a short timeline project over the next 2 days.

However, please feel free to call either Nitasha or myself for updates from our end. I believe I caught everyone on here up with a copy most of our recent info with the updated Bulletin Nitasha did up about the Victoria DFO protests (from 12MAR2018). If you did not receive it, let me know and we'll get it to you. Since then, only really new information is that an injunction application was filed by Namgis FN against DFO and Marine Harvest – that info is widely available through local news media on Vancouver Island.

Thanks –

My apologies folks, today's call was also cancelled as myself and Nitasha were both unavailable. There have been, from DFO/NFIS end, no significant new information updates or indications of protest troubles brewing for DFO Victoria or at the Swanson site.

Calls will resume next week.

I understand some folks on this call have been needing the dial-in numbers still - I will send out a new invitation next week (for DFO folks - I will rescind the current meeting invite).

Thanks all,

FYI

From: Webb, Allison
Sent: March-23-18 4:25 PM
To: XPAC-GRP, BC Aquaculture Regulatory Program
Subject: Update on Today's Decision on the Injunction

Hello team – Just wanted to make sure that you were all aware of the court decision today. The 'Namgis First Nation filed a judicial review of DFO's policy to not test for PRV or HSMI prior issuing I&T licences, as well as DFO's practice of not consulting on I&T licensing decisions. 'Namgis sought an interim injunction to prevent DFO from authorizing Marine Harvest Canada to transfer fish to their Swanson Island site until there is a Court ruling on their judicial review application. The injunction hearing concluded on Wednesday, March 21, 2018 and the judge issued his decision that no injunction was granted. This means that we will be issuing the I&T licence to restock fish at the Swanson Island site shortly.

I want to take this opportunity to thank everyone who provided information for this injunction hearing, I know that timelines were extremely tight. We were able to answer questions and provide the necessary records due to our solid teamwork and collective efforts in documenting what we do. While we still have a lot of work ahead of us related to this judicial review, your efforts have put us in a good place to be able to meet upcoming deadlines.

I'm sure that you may have questions related to the injunction and judicial review so please feel free to contact your managers and we'll try to keep you updated as things go forward as best we can with very tight timeframes. Because this is of broad interest, we will use our next All Staff call on April 4th to provide an update on this as well as previous and upcoming cases and answer any questions that you might have.

I recognise that these court processes not only cause workload pressures, but also uncertainty so if you have any concerns, please do let us know. I would expect that we will be required to adjust some of our procedures in future and we'll discuss that with you as soon as we have some more time to digest the ruling.

Thanks and have a good weekend,
Allison

Folks, I see where the plane is flying on Sunday. The injunction was not granted so we are unsure as to what that means on Monday when the aqua company tries and delivers fish to Swanson Island. Continued observations and focus on that area would be greatly appreciated.

Dustin, I see where you are filing reports so I have cc.'ed you.

EVENT INFORMATION

Report Date and Time:

March 25, 2018 2200 hrs

Incident Date and Time:

March 23, 2018 1530 hrs

Issue:

Potential protest activity at Swanson Island aquaculture site, owned and operated by Marine Harvest Canada, (MHC).

Background:

Indigenous Peoples have voiced their concern and disapproval of the aquaculture industry citing it is negatively impacting the wild salmon stocks. In 2017, construction and habitation of structures on MHC's Midsummer Island array occurred. In December 2017, MHC was successful in applying for an injunction which saw the removal of the protesters from this array.

In January 2018, protest activity surfaced in Victoria where indigenous peoples set up camp beside the C&P Victoria office, again voicing their disapproval of the industry. Persons associated to this camp have now stated that they are focusing their efforts on north island, in the Sayward area.

MHC applied to DFO for a permit to restock the Swanson Island array. The Namgis Indigenous Nation filed for an injunction to stop the issuance of this specific permit. On March 23, 2018 the courts ruled against the injunction and a transfer permit was issued by DFO to MHC.

s.20(1)(b)

Current Status:

Smolts are due to arrive at MHC's Swanson Island array

Strategic Considerations:

MHC staff have advised DFO that a group delivered dive gear to the Swanson Island encampment. Protesters/supporters have been active on facebook, posting statements such as "time to bring out the big guns" and making reference to "farms going up in flames".

Strategic Communications:	C&P will continue to work with communications

Hi Claire,

MHC does not have an agreement with 'Namgis to operate in their territory. 'Namgis does not support salmon aquaculture, therefore as far as I know they have not been open to an agreement with MHC. (Brenda may have more details)

MHC does pay user fees to Canada as part of their aquaculture licence – details on aquaculture user fees are in the link below. For marine finfish, the fees relate to their licensed biomass. Brenda – do you have any more details on how much MHC pays in licence fees? Should I ask licensing?

<http://www.pac.dfo-mpo.gc.ca/aquaculture/licence-permis/index-eng.html#ov-fees>

MHC also pays the province fees for the tenure permit.

The BC industry have been speaking to us about this as well.

Last year DFO added a condition to scientific collection licences saying that sampling on an aquaculture tenures could not take place without written permission from the tenure holder. This was a new condition added last year – and I believe C&P did enforce this condition last summer.

However, industry was asking for something like the seal industry has on the east coast, where any person (whether a they have a licence or not) can not get closer than 1 nautical mile to the seal fishery. This provision is actually in the Marine Mammal Regulations. <http://www.dfo-mpo.gc.ca/fm-gp/seal-phoque/management-gestion-eng.htm>

DFO does not have any language in the Pacific Aquaculture Regulations about “Observing aquaculture activities”, like in the Marine Mammal regulations. So we do not have any enforcement ability to limit protestors from coming close to aquaculture facilities – even for biosecurity purposes. I have suggested that this could be considered as part of a potential aquaculture act – but of course, that still doesn’t solve their immediate concern.

Just as an FYI, [redacted] called me at the beginning of February to specifically ask if we could work at the administrative/bureaucratic level to block permits, especially at the TC permit level.

My response was no, we do not have the authority to interfere in the workings of another department. Should all conditions be met, we have to respect the right of public protest, as long as they are doing so in a safe and respectful manner.

Subject: Upcoming visit of the Sea Shepherd !!!!

Hey hey, good morning Allison and Lauren,

CAIA is still making pressure to see if we (DFO) can make some efforts to block the upcoming visit of the Sea Shepherd next summer.

s.19(1)

I explained to [REDACTED] that it was difficult for DFO to take a formal/official position and officially try to block it, we could try to see which Departments must issue a license and who we speak with.

Any ideas or intel ?

I understand they need few permits to come over Cdn waters.....Scientific, navigation, International ???

Can you provide me with some info.....

I know it will make its way to MINO. This is how CAIA and some others play these days.
They Ask Alistair, John or I something and when not pleased with the answer, they go straight to MINO.....

Tks

On the profile of one of the protesters from the Victoria DFO protests, he appears to have posted it yesterday evening (26MAR2018). [REDACTED]. Attached.

He is seeking support (open request, not targeted) to protest @ DFO RHQ Vancouver today (Monday, 26MAR2018).

I have not seen his sentiment mirrored on other FB pages yet, and it does not appear his post was 'Shared' yet, but be aware.

FYI,

'Operation Virus Hunter' is now a listed routine 'campaign' on the main global Sea Shepherd (SSCS) website, <https://seashepherd.org>

If you select the tab at the top called "Campaigns" you'll see it's the 6th one listed. In previous years, it was not listed as a 'campaign', just as an operation. It appears while SSCS have many 'Operations' throughout any given year, they have fewer large scale ongoing 'Campaigns'.

This above mentioned page contains links to donate funds, links to media, a campaign blog, photos, videos and the crew – interestingly, [REDACTED]

As previously mentioned, the website does mention sending the RV Martin Sheen "for the 3rd year to British Columbia to conduct research of the problem."

Sea Shepherd also posted an article on 04MAR 2018 called "Is Closure of BC Central Coast Roe Fishery a Red Herring? #SayNotToROE", <https://seashepherd.org/2018/03/05/protected-is-closure-of-bc-central-coast-herring-roe-fishery-a-red-herring-saynotoroe/>

In the article, which criticizes the herring roe fishery in Strait of Georgia, it also mentions an approximate date for return of the RV Martin Sheen to BC:

"Sea Shepherd's research vessel, the R/V Martin Sheen, will return in June for Operation Virus Hunter III, a salmon defense campaign off the coast of British Columbia, assisting Scientist Alexandra Morton in her investigation on the impact that salmon farms have on wild salmon and herring populations in the Province." The article also implies that Operation Virus Hunter III will be looking herring, not just salmon.

FYI – NFIS was not aware of this interest in herring until now. I'm not seeing indications of any suggested protests, however.

The website is interesting. They cite themselves as the source for one of their visual charts of information about herring closures.

Hi Brenda, sorry I missed today's herring update call (was on a PMA call).

Have you see or were you aware of the Sea Shepherd Conservation Society (SSCS) taking an interest in the SOG and other area herrings fisheries? SSCS is the organization that owns and runs the sailing yacht/research vessel MARTIN SHEEN which [REDACTED] has been using as a platform regarding salmon aquaculture.

Sea Shepherd posted an online opinion piece on 04MAR2018 called "Is Closure of BC Central Coast Roe Fishery a Red Herring? #SayNotToROE", <https://seashepherd.org/2018/03/05/protected-is-closure-of-bc-central-coast-herring-roefishery-a-red-herring-saynotoroe/>

Report Date and Time: March 29, 2018 1200 hrs

Incident Date and Time: March 26 -28, 2018 1530 hrs

Issue:

Potential protest activity at Swanson Island aquaculture site, owned and operated by Marine Harvest Canada, (MHC).

Background:

Indigenous Peoples have voiced their concern and disapproval of the aquaculture industry citing it is negatively impacting the wild salmon stocks. In 2017, construction and habitation of structures on MHC's Midsummer Island array occurred. In December 2017, MHC was successful in applying for an injunction which saw the removal of the protesters from this array.

In January 2018, protest activity surfaced in Victoria where indigenous peoples set up camp beside the C&P Victoria office, again voicing their disapproval of the industry. Persons associated to this camp have now stated that they are focusing their efforts on north island, in the Sayward area.

MHC applied to DFO for a permit to restock the Swanson Island array. The Namgis Indigenous Nation filed for an injunction to stop the issuance of this specific permit. On March 23, 2018 the courts ruled against the injunction and a transfer permit was issued by DFO to MHC.

Current Status:

Smolts were delivered [REDACTED] without incident. There were many more vessels and protesters on the water [REDACTED] and they performed a ceremony around the delivery vessel.

Strategic Considerations:

While protesters/supporters have been active on facebook, nothing has transpired that infers any active physical obstruction. Deliveries are scheduled for everyday [REDACTED]

Bbry email issues and this showed up today.
How about adding:

- Open, maintain, track all C+P related communications on single file in event of disclosure or ATIP requirements.
- Act as point of contact for C+P with resource management and liaise with comms, NFIS and MSOC on all fish farm related protest issues in Region.

We will have to consider suitability of person for training or understudy with RCMP DLT but Supt Brewer will have to support. Not sure of next training course but member would still work closely with DLT lead.

Folks, I have been thinking about the whole idea of placing a body with the RCMP who would deal with the protest issue on behalf of C&P/DFO. I want to make sure that if we move forward with this, the individual is fully apprised of what our expectations would be. I am taking the perspective that this needs to be a regional deliverable and not just an Aquaculture responsibility and have therefore drafted it with this in mind. Below is a list of responsibilities that I have drafted up. I would appreciate your review and opinion of this matter and any thoughts you would have from an RHQ perspective.

Thank you

- Primary role would be to represent C&P regarding Aquaculture protest issues
- Participate with RCMP's Department Liaison Team in discussions with Indigenous Peoples – begin to develop a relationship with IN's from a C&P perspective
- Provide a weekly briefing to the Director, Chief of Enforcement OPs and Chief of Aquaculture as to activities for the week
- Attend all protest activities with RCMP – record, and report on all issues – initiate any DVS entries for investigation
- Facilitate C&P presence with Area Chiefs via the Chief of Enforcement Ops if required – ie. If C&P boats and personnel are required for protest activities
- Author Event Reports on major benchmarks

From Today's Call:

- NHQ is looking for a troop coordinator for the first two months: can be anyone. They are also looking for a trainer for the last two months and this person must be a use of force instructor. The troop graduates the end of July.
- Nanaimo has the larger aluminum vessel. [REDACTED] This is available to all offices.
- Swanson Island Occupation is still going on. MHC was stocking [REDACTED] Protest has been peaceful.
- Need to update on our status for heavy trailer endorsement,
- Mandy asked if we are supposed to close files before fines are paid. Linda is going to find the answer; different offices are doing different things.
- DVS files left open and due to be closed by May 18th.
- Need volunteers to do a survey for PPSC service-looking for volunteers.
- Crottey needs an actor for 3 weeks in April, anyone interested?

Above are my notes from the call. I would really like to start having a weekly detachment call, preferably after this call, but I am open to another day. Things have been so hectic with the protesters, maybe now we can get back to normal. I have attached a word document with Mya's weekly report and an email that is cam's weekly report.

What I would like to talk about during our regular weekly calls is:

- safety issues/concerns/HOIR's if there are any
- pay issues, new and emerging
- file loads and work completed the last week
- any equipment or facility issues
- any patrol events etc.
- Assistance to other detachments/training/anything else that takes you away
- leave plans

*Also a friendly reminder to please put all your leave/training and court in the detachment calendar. This is what I use to schedule things and determine availability. It's pretty important, and is literally as simple as clicking on a day on the calendar and typing in some words, then click save.

For this week, can we do Thursday morning at 0900 for our call? [REDACTED]
hopefully Cam's PMA in the afternoon.

Does that work for everybody? Let me know,

Bulletin #: 2018-W-IB-007

Subject:	Recognition of Rights Framework and its Implementation
Distribution:	Tasking and Coordination Group (TCG) – Pacific Region
Issued on behalf of:	Murray Gilchrist, Chief Intelligence, Western Canada

KEY JUDGMENTS

There may be implications to the Department of Fisheries and Oceans' (DFO) ability to maintain orderly, safe, and sustainable fisheries as protest activities may increase in the upcoming weeks. Disruptive actions may be taken to prohibit Marine Harvest from restocking their pens if the 'Namgis First Nation band are unsuccessful in receiving their injunction. The hearing of the injunction is set for March 20-21, 2018 in federal court. Many of the protestors or supporters of the cause have indicated that reconciliation with the government cannot occur if the leases are renewed by DFO.

Protest activities may escalate as there has been a significant increase in tension between protestors and Marine Harvest employees. This tension could extend to DFO frontline officers and offices. The protestors are using women on the frontline. These women are getting into altercations with Marine Harvest staff, DFO staff, and local police. During the Victoria office incidents, the women were arrested and later posted that they had been "shackled."¹ These women have now made their way to Swanson Island to join the individuals occupying the site. It is suspected that the women are being used to garner more attention and sympathy from their supporters.

BACKGROUND

On February 14, 2018, Prime Minister Justin Trudeau announced the launch of an engagement process with First Nations, Inuit, and Metis on the development of the Recognition of Rights Framework and its implementation. The framework is designed to provide guidance for recognition and implementation of Indigenous rights and as a tool for dispute resolution.² The intention is to have the framework introduced in 2018 and implemented before October 2019.³

Please refer to Intelligence Bulletins 2018-W-IB-002 and 2018-W-IB-004 for more detailed background information.

RECENT EVENTS

Social media platforms and media outlets have been monitored daily since February 16, 2018. In reviewing the comments on social media since the release of Intelligence Bulletin 2018-W-IB-004, the sentiment amongst the Indigenous populations has shifted. The Indigenous populations who disapprove the aquaculture industry have voiced their frustrations with DFO's management of the aquaculture industry.

Protest activity in support of ceasing fish farms surfaced at the DFO office located in Victoria in November 2017 and has been ongoing throughout March 2018. During these activities, the protestors chained the front door shut on a three occasions in an attempt to receive charges that would allow them to highlight their disagreements with DFO in court. After the third arrest in March, one of the protestors posted "...being arrested with leg cuffs and hand chuffs my question is what the fuxx is this constant talk on reconciliation."⁴ Other supporters of the cause have also cited the Framework stating that reconciliation will only occur once the government and DFO end the leases with Marine Harvest.

Marine Harvest has recently applied to restock its pens. Restocking would begin [REDACTED] and would take place every second day for a two-week period.⁵ On March 6, 2018, the 'Namgis First Nation filed a Notice of Application in federal court against the Minister of DFO, the Canadian Coast Guard (CCG), and Marine Harvest Canada. The 'Namgis are seeking judicial review of: 1) DFO's policy not to test for Piscine Orthoreovirus (PRV) or Heart and Skeletal Muscle Inflammation in fish prior to issuing licenses under s.56 of the Fishery (General) Regulations (FGR) which authorize the introduction, release or transfer of fish into the marine environment; and 2) Any decisions made by the Minister DFO and CCG or his delegate to issue licenses under s.56 or the FGR to introduce, release or transfer fish into the marine environment at Marine Harvest Canada's aquaculture facility located at Swanson Island, BC.⁶

Further on March 9, 2018, the 'Namgis filed a motion for an interlocutory injunction to prevent the Minister from issuing a license to transfer smolts to the Swanson Island facility operated by Marine Harvest without first testing for PRV, pending the resolution of the underlying judicial review. The hearing of the injunction is set for March 20-21, 2018 in federal court."⁷ The news of the 'Namgis application was shared widely on social media.

Subject: [REDACTED] stating she was warned by RCMP she was violating Cermaq's injunction order.

<https://vimeo.com/> [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] posted a video 01APR2018; she states she was phoned by and informed by RCMP that she had violated the court injunction in place at Burdwood (Cermaq Co.) facility and states she thinks "this needs to be challenged" (a little unclear what "this" is, but she states that "these Norwegian run companies creating these imaginary boundaries around their farms and if you go inside there and look at their farms you can be arrested").

Should perhaps be shared to Claire Doucette's staff? [REDACTED]

Also of note, last week Resource Management & Science advised [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] (and those were granted by DFO). This may tie in to information on the Sea Shepherd Conservation Society which indicated recently that they (SSCS) were concerned about declining herring stock in BC waters, with a focus on Strait of Georgia (SOG) herring fisheries. SSCS created a hashtag called "#SayNotToROE", which I believe is a new topic for SSCS in BC waters and on Instagram there is info re: herring are a primary food source of Chinook and Killer Whales (not quite accurate).

<https://seashepherd.org/2018/03/05/protected-is-closure-of-bc-central-coast-herring-roe-fishery-a-red-herring-saynotoroe/>

The hashtag is probably not hugely successful as there are several other topics (unrelated) using the same hashtag also. However I thought it interesting to note that SSCS is possibly branching out into other fisheries interests in BC waters beyond aquaculture salmon facilities. I advised herring resource management staff, who appreciated the information as it was a rumour they had heard as well.

SSCS also indicates on <https://seashepherd.org/virushunter/> that Operation Virus Hunter is now a routine Campaign for SSCS as the operation is now organized on their webpage so it has permanent links and several dedicated webpages, including links to fundraising, plus the statement, "Sea Shepherd is sending its research vessel, the R/V Martin Sheen, for the third year to British Columbia to conduct scientific research of the problem. [REDACTED] [REDACTED] " 2016 was the 1st year RV Martin Sheen was sent [REDACTED] and 2017 was the 2nd year, implying 2018 would be the 3rd year.

FYI – the herring fisheries in south coast area, including SOG herring fishery, is pretty much finished for 2018 season.

- Crottey needs an actor for 3 weeks in April, anyone interested?

Above are my notes from the call. I would really like to start having a weekly detachment call, preferably after this call, but I am open to another day. Things have been so hectic with the protesters, maybe now we can get back to normal. I have attached a word document with Mya's weekly report and an email that is Cam's weekly report.

What I would like to talk about during our regular weekly calls is:

- safety issues/concerns/HOIR's if there are any
- pay issues, new and emerging
- file loads and work completed the last week
- any equipment or facility issues
- any patrol events etc.
- Assistance to other detachments/training/anything else that takes you away
- leave plans

*Also a friendly reminder to please put all your leave/training and court in the detachment calendar. This is what I use to schedule things and determine availability. It's pretty important, and is literally as simple as clicking on a day on the calendar and typing in some words, then click save.

For this week, can we do Thursday morning at 0900 for our call? [REDACTED]
hopefully Cam's PMA in the afternoon.

Does that work for everybody? Let me know,

Cheers,

Howie, I spoke to [REDACTED] (MHC) yesterday regarding the deliveries that took place [REDACTED] at Swanson. While protesters were around, they did not impact the delivery of fish and MHC was successful in delivering all their smolts to that site. He did indicate that protesters are still at the Swanson site on the island but otherwise he hasn't heard or seen anything else going on in the Broughton. As you may be aware Midsummer is under the protection of a court order so I don't anticipate you would have any issues there. As well, all Cermaq sites were successful in getting an injunction against the protesters.

By way of this email I am attaching our two intel folks who have been assigned to this initiative. Jo/Nitasha, if you see or hear anything in your day to day perusal of intelligence work/ scanning, can you please let all of the attached recipients know. Howie explains below what he and his team are doing.

Thank you

Hi Claire,

I normally send these notes to Joe at the beginning of the quarter [REDACTED]

Our Fish Health team is about to begin our second quarter fish health audits (April – June) and we will be in the Broughton area next week (April 9 – 13) and the Port Hardy and Central Coast area the week of April 23 – 27, please let me know of any farms/ area's where protest or occupation are taking place and for safety reasons we should avoid. Swanson Island farm site was not randomly selected this quarter so we have no plans at this time to visit this site, but do have Midsummer, Larsen, Humphrey, Sargeaunts and Glacier Falls on our list for fish health audit in the Broughton area.

Thanks

Howie

Hi Jason,

As per our telephone conversation, Claire Doucette has requested a bulletin, through Jo, identifying the key players of the Swanson Occupation for her officers.

Jo advised that Ottawa has recently directed C&P staff in Claire's area [REDACTED]

Both Jo and I have had a number of teleconferences where some key players have been identified but it has never been provided in writing. We have requested this information over the past few months but we still have no received any information from Claire's team to date.

I am hesitant to create a bulletin identifying the key players due to the simple fact that I do not have the authority to monitor these individuals without any information from Claire or her team. To identify key players would mean that I could potentially be overstepping my boundaries. I suggested to Jo, and she agrees, that we let Claire and her team follow direction from Ottawa and gather the information. Once the information is gathered, perhaps it can be provided to us for further investigation at which point we could assist in creating bulletins and/or other products. There is absolutely no indication of any sort of harm towards DFO, DFO staff, and/or assets at this particular time. The protestors are vocal about their disapproval for fish farms and their need to protest but there is no evidence of risk to DFO officer safety [REDACTED]

Please let me know what your thoughts are.

Nitasha,

you're correct in that NFIS should not be determining the key players. It is up to Enf. Ops to determine who the suspects are and for them to pass along that info to us. In support of their investigation, we can create target profiles/assessments on those that are suspected of violating the Fisheries Act. I will contact Joe Knight and Greg Plummer to get this info.

Laura – Can you help me out with this? Not sure about the sharing of this info, but imagine it is a matter of public record – the conditions of the licence rather than the personal details associated with this.

Hope you are well,

Subject: Sharing of conditions of experimental licence

Hi Allison,

I had a call from [REDACTED] (CAIA) last week asking if we could share the conditions of the scientific licence that will be issued to the Martin Sheen when it arrives in Canadian waters this summer. I indicated that I would inquire, but couldn't see any reason why not, although I didn't commit either way. Can you please advise on whether this is possible?

[REDACTED] reason for asking is that they intend to hold the Department (and possibly the RCMP) accountable for enforcing the conditions of licence. [REDACTED]

I committed [REDACTED] that I would inquire and get back to him once I had an answer either way.

Thanks,

Alistair

6. Broughton Archipelago Plan (D. Travia)

- Province to provide an update on the January Broughton meeting
- Reconciliation is a central component of the Government of Canada's commitment to developing a renewed, nation-to-nation relationship with Indigenous Peoples, and several processes have been established to support reconciliation efforts.
- DFO will be following the overall direction laid out through these processes to work towards reaching agreements with First Nations in BC around fisheries and aquaculture management and governance issues.
- Our Minister will not be engaging in this government-to-government process directly. There is no direct regulatory decision for the Department related to these sites—DFO has issued federal licences for the continued operation of these sites through June 30, 2022.
- Andy Thomson, Regional Director, Fisheries Management, will participate in the process to provide input and support, as appropriate, as well as information regarding DFO management of aquaculture in BC.
- We do have some questions regarding the proposed government-to-government process:
 - o does the Province have a sense of what range of options might be considered when entering into this government to government process?
 - o [REDACTED]

s.21(1)(a)

s.21(1)(b)

- what about the broader implications for other sectors/industries operating in territory claimed by First Nations?

7. Farm Safety (C. Jackson/L. Neilson)

- Action item from December 4, 2017 AMC: DAC will create a government agency attendee list and bring to AMC for review
- Protests at salmon farm sites this summer have escalated and companies have raised concerns regarding the safety of their workers.
- Industry has approached DFO to see if the Department could coordinate a discussion with other government agencies to see if there are additional measures that governments can take, within our respective mandates, to help ensure farm worker safety.
- Industry used the example of clear markings of aquaculture tenures as a possible improvement that could be made. This would involve the Province and Transport Canada.
- DFO is willing to coordinate/facilitate a discussion on this but we are looking for support from the Province and ideas on who else we should engage.

8. Integrated Geoduck Management Framework (C. Jackson)

- DFO has been reviewing aquaculture applications for geoduck and evaluating them under the new Integrated Geoduck Management Framework (IGMF) since March, 2017.
- Since the release of the IGMF, the Project Review Team (PRT) has received 11 applications
 - 1 application was rejected as it fell outside the requirements of the IGMF
 - 1 application was withdrawn
 - 5 applications remain under review at the PRT stage while DFO works with CSSP partners on an approach for ensuring adequate water quality and biotoxin monitoring.
 - 2 applications for new geoduck facilities have been accepted by the PRT and are currently in statussing with BC.
 - 1 applications for an amended geoduck facility has been accepted by the PRT and is currently in statussing with BC.
 - 1 application has been received [REDACTED] but overlaps with another application already at PRT, so is being held at PRT while a solution to overlap is being considered.
 - None of the applications at the PRT stage are from First Nations for red areas.
- DFO is currently working with CSSP partners on an approach for ensuring adequate water quality and biotoxin monitoring to allow for harvest of Geoduck post licensing.
- The Department has received significant feedback from First Nations that the IGMF does not provide enough flexibility to meet their interests /aspirations related to geoduck (aquaculture and/or access to wild). s.20(1)(b)
s.21(1)(b)

- DFO is currently examining options on how First Nations interests can be addressed through a variety of tools such as the IGMF, treaty negotiations, and other policies.

9. Provincial Review of Discharge and IPM Permitting (MOE)

- ② Effluent Discharge from BC Processing Plants
- Since the November 2017 release of video footage of blood and other effluent coming from the Brown's Bay Packing processing plant near Campbell River, the issue of effluent treatment and disease transmission has received significant public and media attention.
- In response to a request by provincial officials, DFO Science collected samples during the first week of December to test samples for the presence of pathogens, including PRV. All samples tested positive for PRV.
- A Rapid Science Response (RSS) has been completed and provided to the Province of BC.
- In November, the Province of BC began reviewing the current discharge permit for the Brown's Bay plant and referred a draft of an updated permit to DFO (Aquaculture Management Division, Pacific Region) for comment/input. No comments have been provided to date.
- On December 20, 2017, the Province of BC announced a broader review of the regulations and discharge permitting process related to fish plants and the use of pesticides to treat sea lice.
- The Province is responsible for the licensing of fish processing plants. Federally, ECCC is responsible for administering section 36 of the Fisheries Act. However, given DFO's and expertise related to aquaculture, fish health and minimizing impacts to wild salmon, DFO staff are prepared to work with the responsible federal and provincial agencies to support and inform this review by the Province, as appropriate (including coordination with ECCC).

10. Integrated Pest Management (IPM) (L. Lavigne)

- The BC Salmon Farmers Association organized a workshop on Integrated Pest Management on January 10-11. The workshop highlighted the many tools required for pest management (area based management, management thresholds, therapeutics, best management practices). If management thresholds are low, and there few treatment tools available, resistance will develop.
- An Integrated Pest Management (IPM) overview document, which describes the status of IPM in BC, was drafted by the Strategic Working Group (a DFO and industry working group) and discussed at our DAC meeting in October.
- The IPM document examines the core elements of an IPM for aquaculture and the treatments available for sea lice in the different salmon farming jurisdictions along with which of those treatments are available in BC.
- Federal and Provincial governments play a critical role in ensuring various treatment options are available for the aquaculture industry to use. DFO would like to explore with the Province how a longer term strategy for IPM can be developed, similar to IPM strategies for terrestrial farming.

- DFO is looking to work with industry and the Province to develop a work plan to outline next steps and identify short, medium and long term actions that can be taken to support IPM in BC.

11. Freshwater Policies (D. Travia/C. Jackson)

- David Travia will discuss process of ongoing policy development on freshwater fish enhancement and access.
- Work on a provincial paper outlining policies for freshwater enhancement, aquaculture and commercial access is ongoing
- DFO is currently reviewing the ONA application to add sturgeon to their licence. Provincial comments have been requested. The Department will begin reviewing their request to add rainbow trout in the near future.

12. Fisheries and Aquaculture Clean Technology Adoption Program (FACTAP) (L. Lavigne)

- The Fisheries and Aquaculture Clean Technology Adoption Program (FACTAP) officially launched on December 18, 2017
- Shirley Choi is coordinating this program for the Pacific region
- The program will provide funding of up to $20 million over four years to Canada's fisheries, aquaculture and processing companies to implement market-ready clean technologies, processes, and practices into their day-to-day operations.
- FACTAP can provide funding of up to 75% of eligible project costs, the applicant must also receive funding from provincial or territorial governments of at least 10% of the project cost in cash or in-kind.

13. External Evaluations (C.Jackson)

- There are currently a number of evaluations going on related to Aquaculture management in B.C.
 - i. CESD/OAG audit is nearing completion. The final report is expected to be released in Spring 2018
 - ii. A review of the DFO Fish Health Audit and Surveillance program has been completed and will be shared with the Province shortly
 - iii. A review of the options for the provision of diagnostic services has been initiated. The option of conducting diagnostic testing internally within DFO will be analyzed first.

14. Minister of Agriculture Advisory Council on Finfish Aquaculture (MAACFA) debrief (D. Travia)

- David Travia will be providing a debrief on the last Minister of Agriculture Advisory Council on Finfish Aquaculture

15. Legislative Reform and Strategic Management Committee Meeting (SMC) updates (D. Travia/L. Neilson)

- D. Travia / L. Neilson to provide an update
- The Last SMC was held in Toronto on September 13, 2017.
- A special SMC conference call was held November 24, following the Minister's announcement of the federal "Vision".
- The SMC Working Group on Aquaculture Legislation and Regulations has had more than a dozen conference calls and a two-day meeting in Vancouver since fall 2017.

16. Follow up from December AMC and Preparation of March 8, 2018 AMC Agenda (All)

- Refer to agenda from December 4, 2017 AMC

Action Items:

- For the Farm Safety Item "DAC will create a government agency attendee list and bring to AMC for review:
- Development of the AMC March 8, 2018 Agenda will begin in February.

Hi Elizabeth,

With the protest activity we've had around our office, Mandy decided to install a CCTV video surveillance system at our Victoria Office. I'm letting you know because there will be a $75-100/month fee associated with maintaining it. With the BM budget be able to bear that additional cost? Or should it be going to C&P?

Nonviolent Direct Action Training Against Kinder Morgan

Public · Hosted by Social Environmental Alliance - SEA

Details

Want to learn more about nonviolent moral action this spring to challenge indigenous racism, the dirty carbon economy and Trudeau's deceptive climate narrative?

Thinking of participating in local civil disobedience actions being organized by Rise & Resist in Victoria or the international mass mobilization against the Kinder Morgan pipeline in Burnaby?

In the spirit and tradition of everyday people of conscience engaging in nonviolent direct action/risking arrest to expose and engage in moral witness against injustice, we will conduct a training at 1-5pm on April 22 in Victoria, B.C. followed by a potluck dinner, climate emergency speakers (6:30-9), and dancing and song until midnight.

Experienced trainers from the Rise & Resist collective and Greenpeace Victoria will facilitate the training.

It's important that participants plan to attend the full training.

s.19(1)

Format

will include small and large group discussion, role-plays and other interactive exercises. Please dress comfortably.

There is no fee to attend the training, but we will collect donations at the event to help cover costs.

Please contact [REDACTED] if you have questions.

This event is hosted and co-sponsored by Rise & Resist, Social and Environmental Alliance, Greenpeace Victoria, Leap Victoria and the Victoria Event Centre.

I thought that you all might find this very interesting. It supports our discussions at the All Staff meeting where we discussed the need for better comms.

FYI, the management team is meeting on April 23-24 to discuss a couple of major pieces of follow up from the All Staff and will give you an update at our next All Staff call after that. We appreciated all the feedback and involvement and it will be really helpful to us in our planning going forward.

Subject: Social Media Scan - Aquaculture

Hi JF—for your info, our social media team has updated their social media scan of aquaculture mentions.

Overall, conversations about aquaculture have increased and have remained steady over the past several months. Mentions have increased by 227% from January to March 2018 compared to the same time period in 2017. The increase is largely due to the bloodwater video, ongoing opposition from First Nations communities, and Washington state's recent plan to phase out Atlantic salmon farming.

Executive Summary

The following report outlines the most popular themes and conversations on social media regarding aquaculture. The report identifies events and media headlines that generated high engagement, a breakdown of conversation by province, key themes, and examples of social media posts which oppose and support aquaculture.

Despite aquaculture being an industry that includes many aquatic species, the overwhelming majority of social media mentions discussed salmon aquaculture therefore the majority of this report focuses on salmon.

Conversations on social media regarding aquaculture are predominantly negative. They have been spurred on by events that have had high visibility in the media (diesel spill at B.C. aquaculture facility; escaped salmon in Washington, USA; videos of disfigured salmon surfacing online; First Nations occupations/protests, bloodwater video).

In general, those who oppose aquaculture are most concerned with the perceived health risks when consuming farmed fish. People are also concerned about the impact farmed fish may have on the environment, the survival of wild populations and they also show support for the First Nations communities who oppose the aquaculture industry. Social posts position their content as being backed up by science, call for people to purchase wild salmon instead, and may contain graphic videos and images to elicit an emotional response from the user.

Comments that support aquaculture caution others to be wary of the articles that suggest banning all fish farms or urging people to only buy wild. They want people to get all of the facts before forming opinions about the industry and they may be skeptical towards media reports. Those who support aquaculture make the case that the industry helps wild populations, provides stable jobs in coastal communities and is a global sustainable solution.

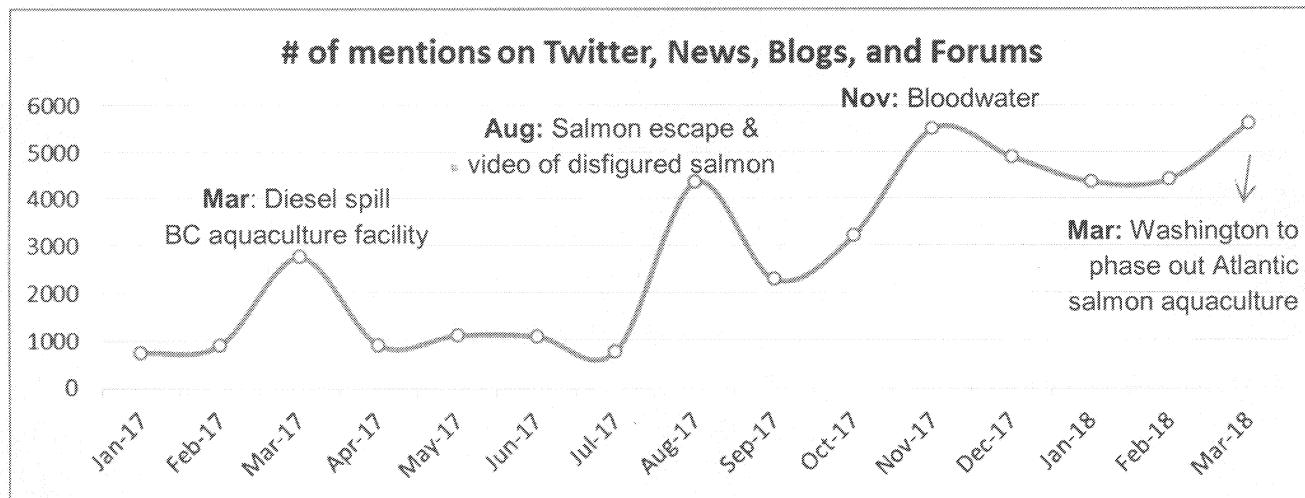

Overall, conversations about aquaculture have increased and have remained steady over the past several months. Mentions have increased by 227% from January to March 2018 compared to the same time period in 2017. This has been the result of the bloodwater video, ongoing opposition from First Nations communities, and Washington state's recent plan to phase out Atlantic salmon farming.

Tips for creating digital content

- Highlight investments into science and technology or innovative research that helps better monitor and understand the impacts of aquaculture on the environment.
- Show how the industry has evolved over the past several decades. This will help to combat the old data and misconceptions about aquaculture that have been distorting public perception.
- Be specific and provide concrete ways that DFO emphasizes that the department's commitment to protecting the environment and maintaining the highest standards to ensure seafood is safe to consume. Do not create videos, social media posts, or web content that uses generic phrases such as "DFO ensures the sustainability of Canadian aquatic species".
- Proactively answer common questions and misconceptions online (see Frequently Asked Questions)
- Dispel myths by creating content such as infographics or short videos that are based on scientific facts.
- Collaborate with other government departments:
 - CFIA/Health Canada to cross-promote social media content that focuses on health and safety tips, facts, and quizzes.
 - ECCC and Eureka to cross promote science, innovation and research for environmental subtopic. Consider leveraging ECCC's Instagram account to reach younger audiences
 - Consider Statistics Canada and @Canada to promote facts, stats and infographics for information about the economic impact of aquaculture

What is driving the conversation?

Total # of mentions: 42,863 from January 1, 2017 to March 27, 2018 in Canada

March 5, 2017 – Diesel spill, British Columbia: 1,000 litres of diesel was spilled at a B.C. aquaculture facility off of the coast of Northern Vancouver. This prompted concerns from people in First Nations communities, who were worried that the spill may have an impact on the community's food source. Reactions were negative and users commented that they want fish farms and tankers banned and that the facility should be sued.

August 22, 2017 – Atlantic Salmon Escape, Washington State: A net broke at an aquaculture facility and thousands of Atlantic salmon escaped into the Pacific Ocean. The story generated high interest from local, national, and international media outlets and on social media, where the top web article about this story was shared nearly 61,000 times. Reactions from users were negative, angry and worried, stating this incident was only a matter of time and there have been many warnings about this in the past. Users said that aquaculture facilities should be kept inland to avoid these types of incidents and that Atlantic salmon should never have been in the Pacific in the first place.

August 25, 2017 – Footage of Disfigured Salmon: Videos showing what appears to be deformed and unhealthy salmon at an aquaculture facility was published online. Web articles were shared widely via DeSmog Canada (26,500 shares) and CBC (26,700 shares) accumulating over 507,000 video views combined. A CBC Facebook post which generated over 2,400 shares had mixed reactions to the post. Many of the users commented that they were disgusted, and that fish farms should be banned or held inland, however a small minority also reported that they have seen fish in the wild with these types of abnormalities. There was also conflicting statements made by people who said they have worked in aquaculture facilities, where some say they have never seen anything like this while others say it is quite common.

October and November 2017- First Nations Occupations and Protests: First Nations protests and occupations kept the momentum going on social media. The occupation at Marine Harvest caused another online petition to start on November 11. The petition was started by Sea Legacy, a group of wildlife photographers and filmmakers who urged the provincial and federal government to remove open-net farms from First Nations territory in British Columbia. The occupation was also posted on Instagram by Sea Legacy, National Geographic and Leonardo DiCaprio.

November 28, 2017 – Bloodwater: A video showing what appears to be blood being released into the water from two fish processing plants in B.C. went viral on social media. The post claims that the effluent was tested and contains piscine reovirus from both fish plants, and is threatening wild salmon populations nearby. The Facebook video currently has 3 million views and 71,000 shares and 354K views on Vimeo.

The story was published on popular news sites such as Vice.com (15.6K link shares), Buzzfeed (5.1K link shares) and BBC (3.2K link shares).

January 10-11, 2018 – Tyee.ca: A two-part article about DFO and aquaculture was published on the website thetyee.ca. The articles, Inside DFO's Battle to Downplay a Deadly Farmed Salmon Disease and DFO's Plan to Gut Rules Protecting Wild Salmon from Fish Farm Disease were shared 5.8K times (both articles combined). Comments stated that there is collusion amongst federal and provincial governments, scientists, and the aquaculture industry, that DFO has failed to manage the fisheries and that there is a conflict of interest within the department.

January 23, 2018 - First Nations hand eviction notice to fish farm: Members of at least six B.C. First Nations delivered an eviction notice to Marine Harvest causing a spike in mentions on January 23. The CTV News article was shared 2.7K times and retweeted 41 times.

Where are conversations happening?

Provinces talking about aquaculture or related stories the most: B.C. (57%), ON (16%) and NL (10%)

British Columbia

- Conversations in B.C. saw the highest spikes in mentions for the diesel spill at Burwood Island Group (March), Atlantic salmon escape (Aug), First Nations occupations of aquaculture facilities (Sep, Oct, Nov), and the Bloodwater video (Nov/Dec)
- Members of First Nations communities have been vocal on Twitter and posts have provided updates on occupations, protests and the injunction to be removed from Marine Harvest's site.

Ontario

- Conversations in Ontario focused on the Atlantic salmon escape (August 2017) and the Diesel spill (March).

Newfoundland and Labrador

- Conversations on Twitter are being driven by industry, government, and politicians.
- Conversation is concentrated amongst a small number of users. Of the 1,833 mentions, there were 250 unique users, and the top three most active users accounted for 53% of the mentions, all of whom were from the industry.
- A spike in mentions occurred in September when the provincial government launched new actions to be taken to improve aquaculture development (#thewayforward) and the Aquaculture Summit in Gander, NL.
- Messages emphasize economic prosperity, job growth and position NL as a leader in the industry.

Key themes opposing aquaculture

The majority of comments about aquaculture are negative and are in opposition to it. The following outlines some of the key themes found in social media posts and comments.

Health

Chemicals: Of all comments made about aquaculture, the most prevalent is related to health matters. Users are concerned that farmed salmon is not safe for consumption and describe it as toxic, poison, lethal, gross, disgusting, infected, frankenfish and carcinogenic. Two of the most popular articles¹ on this subject have been shared almost 800,000 times (combined).

Users are concerned that fish feed pellets contains dioxins, PCBs, ethoxyquin, and other chemicals. They state these pellets are used to make fish grow faster in order to yield a higher production. They also believe that salmon is full of antibiotics and contribute to a rise in antibiotic resistance. Other comments also mentioned that farmed salmon contains added dyes to change their appearance and that farmed salmon is genetically modified (and therefore less healthy).

Examples of comments:

"I would not feed that crap to my dog"
"literally the worst thing you could eat"
"Friends don't let friends eat farmed salmon"

Examples of images shared on social media:

¹ Farmed Salmon is Full of Antibiotics and Mercury, Here's How to Tell If Your Salmon is Safe (546.7K shares)
Farmed Salmon – one of the most toxic foods in the word (248.9K shares)

Fat Content: Comments from social posts state that farmed salmon is less healthy to eat than wild because farmed salmon has more calories and fat. Social posts often compare the amount of Omega-3 and Omega-6 between the two and say that farmed salmon has layers of fat surrounding internal organs. Comments also say that farmed salmon is prone to develop diabetes. Users state that salmon are predators and must hunt for their food, therefore have more muscle mass resulting in a firmer texture and better taste.

Wild salmon has almost DOUBLE the amount of Iron.

Farmed Salmon is FULL of toxins! YES, not only they're dyed pink to mimic the colour of wild salmon, these fish contain lots of harmful chemicals because of the way they're raised.

When buying salmon, make sure that it says "wild" on the package. Don't be fooled by terms like "organic", "imported" or "natural".

Labelling: Comments expressed concerns that there are no clear labels or standards with regards to wild and farmed fish. Some have stated that salmon is sometimes labelled wild when they are not and there is no traceability to hold anyone to account. Users also commented that Canada does not have a law saying that products need to be labeled GMO. Other comments also claimed that cheaper farmed fish is passed off as a more expensive species. This shows there is a lack of trust in what retailers are selling and also shows a desire from consumers to know what they are eating.

Examples of comments:

"So don't buy farmed? Is there a way to tell what is responsible?"

"When we buy, it's hard to know if it's wild or not :("

"How do we tell the difference when we go to a restaurant?"

Environmental impact

Harming wild populations: People who oppose aquaculture believe that farmed salmon increases the risks of disease in wild populations. The bloodwater video published in November drew international attention to the issue and users were horrified by the imagery. Opponents of fish farms have stated that the "science is in," that this is the last chance to save wild salmon and that fish farms should be on land.

Investigative diver Tavish Campbell is streaming LIVE from a farmed salmon processing plant in downtown Tofino. The plant, owned by Lions Gate Fisheries and a partner organization of Creative Salmon, is discharging diseased salmon blood directly into the Clayoquot Sound UNESCO biosphere reserve. Tavish is joined by independent biologist Alexandra Morton - this is your chance to interact in real time and see firsthand the effects these fish farms are having on our environment.

Waste: A video was also posted on Facebook by Sea Shepherd Conservation Society showing footage of salmon farms in B.C. The videos show herring swimming in and near fish farm pens, coming into contact with the waste produced by farmed salmon and being trapped in the pens. Other visuals showed salmon covered in sea lice, salmon that were disfigured, blind, and with tumors.

What disease is this?

10,000s of endangered herring are swimming in this waste

Examples of comments:

"And there's so much talk of wanting to add these types of 'sustainable' systems in other aquatic areas, where life has all ready been diminished / destroyed."

"Salmon farms are like toxic waste dumps and are depleting the wild salmon runs in BC"

Sea lice: Users concerned about the environment discuss sea lice, pesticides and antibiotics that are used to manage this problem. There is a fear that the pesticides and antibiotics used are harmful to other aquatic species and that farmed fish can build resistances to these pesticides, forcing farmers to use more over time. Other comments also stated that pesticides can cause genetic mutations in fish, and they fear that escaped fish will mate with the wild population.

Oceana posted a video on Facebook on September 25 to highlight the problem with sea lice. The video is accompanied by agitated music and images of salmon with sea lice on them.

Post message: Sea lice might look small, but they can do big damage to farmed salmon. These small bloodsuckers and all of the chemicals used to combat them are just another reason to think twice about farmed salmon.

Sustainability: Social media posts and comments often claim that it takes four or five pounds of wild fish to create one pound of farmed fish since the feed used is made from wild-caught fish. Oceana quotes that it takes 3kg of wild feeds for 1kg of farmed fish.

First Nations

Comments are generally supportive towards the First Nations/Indigenous communities that are currently against aquaculture in B.C.

Example of comments:

"We need to start listening to the Indigenous peoples if there is any hope in saving the planet. They truly have the earth's best interest at heart."

"We need to take care of our land, our oceans. When will Canada become a leader, not an embarrassment? You are responsible to this. Fish farms in open ocean and tributaries are banned in Alaska and most of Europe. #canada #trudeau #embarrassed"

The story was picked up by two National Geographic photographers/filmographers that started an online petition urging the DFO Minister and B.C. Premier not to renew leases at aquaculture facilities in Broughton/Musgmagw Dzawada'enuwx territory. The protest was promoted on social media resulting in 776 tweets from November 11 to November 17. Social posts consisted of photos of disfigured salmon and profiles of the women occupying the aquaculture facility.

National Geographic's Instagram account (83 million followers) also posted about the situation, posting a video which was viewed 1.2 million times and had nearly 254,000 likes and over 1,400 comments. Comments varied on the posts saying to avoid farm salmon and to buy wild salmon only. However, comments also showed that there were many people who were unaware of the potential negative impacts of aquaculture facilities.

Examples of comments:

"I just learned something. Thanks for the information"

"this is so eye opening!"

"didn't know any of this! I wish it was #commonknowledge I'm not big on fish but that ecosystem is essential"

"I had thought the opposite that farming the fish would help the environment!!"

'Money talks'

A number of other comments have a negative perspective towards the government and industry. Users state that profit will always be the bottom line at the expense of protecting the environment.

Examples of comments:

"Why do government members and big companies continue to line their own pockets while destroying every natural [thing] on our planet"

"Money looks to be the only thing this company cares about."

"Any US based food watch organization is suspect in my opinion- just look at what the lobbyists and greed have brought to the FDA..."

"DFO has been accused of conflict of interest; being responsible for saving our wild stocks and policing [the] Aquaculture Industry"

Key themes supporting aquaculture

Protect Wild Salmon

Users who are supportive of aquaculture say that farming fish takes the pressure off of wild-caught commercial fisheries and that it would be more detrimental to shut down all fish farms. Comments say that commercial fisheries remain a larger threat to wild populations and they are concerned by articles who push for removing aquaculture facilities altogether.

Users have commented that the industry has come a long way since it began and that it is in the industry's best interest to manage the industry responsibly.

"In my view, it is thanks to aquaculture that we still have wild salmon returning to streams in BC. It is simple math — farming salmon reduces the need for consumers to buy thousands of commercially caught wild salmon. Let's celebrate the fact that technology and science have allowed us to move away from the path we were on of netting the last of the wild stocks... with this issue you should question why you are so quick to follow the "stop all industry" groups that only base their opinion in emotion..."

"Don't mind me over here in Vancouver island processing record numbers of sockeye, chum and pinks that just grow stronger every cycle. I guess it must be some other BC coast where the fish farms are killing wild salmon."

"Aquaculture is a critical movement that is necessary in order to preserve our wild stocks! @paulnicklen I enjoy your posts however I am totally disappointed at the inaccuracy of your groups statements regarding fish farms."

Stable Jobs

Industry tends to post content that shows the benefits of providing stable jobs to coastal communities and First Nations.

I've seen personally how young kids, as summer students come to work and live on these farms. Learning about the oceans. From oxygen concentration, to the algea types and function. These students are getting college type education, and learning more about the environment they live in than ever before.

"There are literally thousands of First Nations Canadians working in the Fish Farm Industry. Before you throw them out of work maybe you should check out the truth."

Propaganda

Some comments have made claims that the media is one-sided propaganda relying on "junk science" to conduct "junk reporting". An example of this sentiment comes from users commenting on the CTV W5 exclusive "Farm Troubles". Although many users reacted negatively towards aquaculture in the comments, others were not as quick to believe the report.

"Shame on you W5. People!!!! Do your OWN research, get the REAL facts, then make an informed and properly educated decision. I will gladly buy and consume farmed fish after reading the actual government reports and not just excerpts from them placed appropriately to scare the general public and advance someone else's agenda/career."

"The videos of disformed fish, are cherry picked over hours of video, collected from over 20 farms. And repeated for shock factor."

"I know media left and right is often biased, I'd like to know more about the real information regarding salmon farms"

Staged Protests / Lack of Scientific Integrity

Comments have shown some skepticism towards people who oppose aquaculture, stating people have been "brainwashed". Comments question the validity and credibility of researchers and sources. They state that the same researchers, sources and outdated statistics continue to be shared online. Other comments also noted the industry's reputation is still recovering from mistakes made in the past and people need to update their opinions.

"Anti fish farming is funded, and is a job. These people on the front lines are pawns thinking they are fighting for environmental protection. But instead they are fighting for market shares and investment rates."

"Disease from salmon farms has never been implicated to have impacted wild salmon in British Columbia. Other than findings of certain anti-fish farm activists, whose scientific procedure has been shown at times to not have scientific integrity, there is no evidence of harm to wild salmon from farmed."

"...most people hear the fallacies and facts about the industry when [it] was new in the 80's lol. I can assure you, this is not the 80's. our practices are strong, Eco-friendly and sustainable for global food and jobs for our people on the North Island!"

Economic Growth

Industry and governmental organizations tend to focus on the economic benefit of aquaculture and promote the idea that this will be the way meet the growing international demands for seafood. The tone of these posts and the visual content that accompanies messaging is often positive, proud and celebratory.

In September 2017, the Department of Fisheries and Land Resources of the Government of Newfoundland launched their campaign #thewayforward to outline how the government's vision for sustainability and growth in the province. As part of this initiative, the province posted content about aquaculture and growing the industry. The posts emphasized how aquaculture will increase employment and strengthen communities. The tagline "Safe...Strong...Sustainable" is used to underpin the province's strategy.

Example of social media posts:

Sustainability

Industry and governments also strongly promote the sustainability of aquaculture and emphasize to users that by supporting aquaculture, you are helping the environment. Information is often shared in infographics to outline the number of different ways that aquaculture helps the planet. They also emphasize that aquaculture needs to be "done right", suggesting that there should be a continued commitment to improving the industry.

Example of infographic:

Frequently Asked Questions Regarding Farmed Salmon

When images and videos of disfigured salmon were shared online, there were a number of questions that users asked. Overall, it appears that people want some kind of indicator to tell the difference between wild and farmed salmon, how frequently diseases occur, whether diseases are specific to a facility or all facilities, and why do fish become sick in fish pens.

Examples of questions:

- So gross-what do we need to avoid?!
- So at the grocery store, what is the most sustainable type of salmon? Or is there a sustainable type?
- How do you know if the fish your buying is caught wild?
- What percentage is not safe to eat and how much of that gets to the consumer?
- Does this type of skin disease happen to wild salmon?
- Are the farms in Norway just as bad?
- What happened to this fish? Is this the norm?
- What causes this?
- Why does this happen?
- What percentage of farmed fish are diseased? How often are they diseased?
- Does this happen with any kind of fish farm or is it particular to only salmon fish farms?
- I don't know anything about this topic. Is that salmon farms are inherently toxic, or is it this farm in particular?
- Why is Atlantic salmon being farmed on the west coast?
- What is the difference between open net and closed net?

Example of how questions are addressed:

Whole Foods Markets: To address concerns that some people have had in the past, Whole Foods provides information on their website and YouTube to keep consumers informed and assure them that they are committed to the highest standard of quality when it comes to aquaculture. Their video emphasizing that their seafood is only sourced from responsibly managed fish farms, no antibiotics, no added hormones, no parasiticides has over 2.4 million views.

- Outlines why aquaculture is a good thing (when done right) and that they are rigorous in selecting their sources.
- Standards for each type of seafood sold (finfish, shrimp, mollusks, salmon, rainbow trout, tilapia, Arctic char, catfish).

- Shows consumers what labels to look for.

"It is estimated that, each year: 970 – 2,700 billion fishes are caught from the wild, of which, 450 – 1,000 billion fishes are caught to make fishmeal and fish oil. 37 – 120 billion farmed fish are killed for food.* Evidence shows us that fish are just as capable of feeling pain as the rest of the vertebrates such as dogs, cats and even us humans. Appendix C: Methodology

Mentions gathered were from January 1, 2017 and November 10, 2017. The data collected searched for the following keywords: aquaculture, fish farm(s), farmed salmon, sea lice, piscine reovirus and fish disease.

- Data was gathered from Twitter, news websites, blogs, forums and filtered to Canadian users.
- Additional queries were made to search for social media content posted to Facebook and Instagram, however this data could not be filtered by location. These searches were used to review comments and posts to define the key themes and sentiments on social media.
- Despite aquaculture being an industry that includes many aquatic species, the overwhelming majority of social media mentions discussed salmon aquaculture therefore the majority of this report focuses on salmon.

Subject: Persons of interest in Kelsey Bay

Good morning,

I received an email [REDACTED] regarding three individuals seen at Kelsey Bay yesterday. Below is her description and images she took with her phone.

I'm awaiting a confirmation from her on some of the details and I will provide those when I get them.

ANDREW: [REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

Kelsey Bay would benefit from security cameras. What is the process to bring Sayward Futures into the conversation and get an estimate on security cameras at Kelsey Bay?

[REDACTED] Any input is appreciated.

See [REDACTED] description here:

While I was at the wharf yesterday I watched three different people come onto the wharf and examine the ladders in exactly the same precise manner. Their presence on the wharf was definitely not like the regular tourist visit. Each one stopped, stepped over the ledge and peered down, then stepped back onto the wharf, grasped the ladder handles, leaned over and looked down again. It looked a little suspicious. I got a photo of the first person, who I thought might be wearing a wig, had pjs on Second [REDACTED] female wearing a hot pink jacket [REDACTED] With her was a tall thin male [REDACTED] who took a few phone pics of the scenery toward my h'kusam. While these two were at the far end of the wharf, a small boat (one like SAR uses, with the inflated sides, I can't think of what it's called)* with 2 males seemed to come out of nowhere from under the wharf and sped across to the entrance to the small craft harbour entrance.

[REDACTED] since confirmed it is a grey zodiac approx 12-14ft in length. April 18th security report from Swanson reports a grey zodiac at the landbase. I will follow up and acquire photos if available. ***

I felt compelled to read this material and I have to say ... WOW!

It is difficult to believe that our government would go to such great lengths to protect this industry instead of taking steps to protect our wild fish, but IMO the evidence contained in these two documents makes it pretty clear that that is what seems to be going on. Wild fish be damned.

In addition, my understanding is that she is not registered as a commercial vessel so does not have to comply with reporting and AIS requirements.

[REDACTED] My main thought would be outside our authority but if the vessel has been involved in possible criminal activity in the past, CBSA could use their authority to deny access. Question for LS.

Hi all, I am also asking questions about this since it is not a state to state request.

E.g. if it were another government requesting approval for state sponsored research (e.g. from NOAA), GAC would triage the request to relevant federal departments. In this case, for research in the ocean, they would come to DFO Science and we would coordinate input to GAC from CCG, the relevant region, FHM, and Oceans. Sometimes we have asked for an observer for example, or have objected to the research plan (e.g. for species at risk).

Our people were not aware of any request on this vessel in this context. On average, we get about 60 requests a year. I am asking about the process for ENGO-led (non-Govt vessels) as there may be a different process to follow. Arran.

Good Afternoon Deputy

Trust all is well with you. Wanted to reach out to share the following with you on behalf of the work we do with the Canadian Aquaculture Industry Alliance (CAIA).

For the past few weeks, we have been exploring between Fisheries and Oceans Canada, Transport Canada and Public Safety which government department has oversight and approval of foreign vessels entering Canadian waters for the purpose of research activities. Specifically, every spring/summer in British Columbia, the Sea Shepard Society and their vessel the "Martin Sheen" is permitted to enter Canadian waters for the supposed purpose of undertaking marine research. The Canadian researcher they publicly claim they support is [REDACTED] They have announced as of today that this vessel is departing Hawaii on May 1, 2018 to makes it way to British Columbia. However, every year this vessel is used to facilitate protests on BC salmon farms – in many cases breaching bio-security protocols and disrupting farming activities. RCMP intervention at times has been required. The sector has reached out to Fisheries and Oceans Canada and are aware that they have explored and placed additional research license conditions on [REDACTED] activities. CAIA has obtained the attached DFO research licence and of note, the "Martin Sheen" vessel is not listed as one of the 2 vessels she intends to use this year – yet we know it is on its way to BC and on social media the Sea Shepard Society has stated they are sailing to Canadian waters to aid in [REDACTED] "research" efforts. Of paramount concern is both the safety of the farms and the fish that are being grown as well as the farm workers who are ultimately harassed by the protests that frequently result and the farm occupations that can ensue.

When we reached out to DFO, we were directed to Transport Canada. We received the following response:

In terms of marine scientific research, there is no permit required from TC. If they are a foreign vessel they need permits from CBSA and DFO depending on what they are doing. But if they are doing State sponsored marine scientific research, this does require a process through GAC, in which TC is involved - but these are non-state actors.

It is challenging to prevent a vessel to enter Canadian vessels because of the law of the sea, depending on the flag/vessel size it may get inspected at a port. While TC doesn't have any intel related to Sea Sheppard – any intel should share it with the RCMP and CBSA. The RCMP is the contact if there is a problem.

We subsequently communicated through Minister Goodale's Office and received the following response today:

CBSA does not determine the legitimacy of research applications. When research authorizations are required for foreign-based applicants, they must apply directly to the Department of Fisheries and Oceans and/or to Global Affairs Canada for such authorizations. The role of the CBSA is to provide advance border-related information to foreign expeditions planning research in Canada while promoting compliance with Canadian regulations and safety procedures. The CBSA communicates all advance expedition information to regional operational areas to ensure proper resources are in place to support a well-managed, facilitative and controlled entry into Canada of identified foreign research entities. Your best point of contact is the border watch line, Toll-free: 1-888-502-9060.

Given the track record of the Sea Shepard Society and the use of their vessel to facilitate protests and not research – and the fact they are not listed as part of the DFO issued research licence, the sector has been seeking for several weeks to inquire whether third-parties can come forward and be included in a formal process to provide information or express concern before vessels are permitted to enter Canadian waters? Is there oversight of these vessels if, in fact, they are in breach of license conditions? Can a vessel be revoked or not permitted to enter Canadian waters absent being included in a research licence application? Apologies for this outreach but we have had troubles trying to get clear answers on this process. Happy to discuss further or provide any background information.

Regards and thanks

Subject: Intent of Sea Shepherd Conservation Society regarding Aquaculture Protest in BC

Distribution:

Issued on behalf of:

BLUF: There is a high likelihood that the RV Martin Sheen will provide logistics support to research [REDACTED] and increase media exposure of salmon aquaculture protests to keep the issue top of mind.

Key Judgement

- NFIS judges that it is Highly Likely that the RV Martin Sheen will be used to generate media attention supporting protests against salmon aquaculture in BC in 2018. This judgement is supported by past activity. [REDACTED] – strongly indicate that disruption may occur in the course of [REDACTED] research.

Findings:

- [REDACTED] a researcher with works published in peer-reviewed journals. [REDACTED] She is opposed to salmon aquaculture on the west coast.
- The Martin Sheen is a US Vessel that has assisted [REDACTED] in the past, and is registered to the SSCS.
- The SSCS have publically denounced salmon aquaculture as environmentally dangerous and support [REDACTED] views. They have publically supported the position of other protestors.
- DFO has previously collected on the vessel, SSCS, and [REDACTED] activities.

Gaps

- [REDACTED]

Background

On 1 May 2018, NFIS received information that the Research Vessel Martin Sheen (RV Martin Sheen) was en-route to Canada to support research on salmon aquaculture. Given past concerns, NFIS was tasked with assessing the vessel's intent.

Intelligence Bulletin

[REDACTED] research focuses on salmon aquaculture's purported deleterious effects on wild salmon stocks and its implications for whale population off BC.⁵ [REDACTED] co-published articles in scientific journals, general interest books, electronic media, and polemics against salmon aquaculture.⁶

Background: The Sea Shepherd Conservation Society, The Martin Sheen

The Sea Shepherd Conservation Society (SSCS) is an environmental advocacy group that has gained significant publicity through: the use of sophisticated media campaigns, celebrity endorsements and donations, direct-action protest tactics, and in some cases collaboration with foreign governments. SSCS seek celebrity endorsements which include high profile (and by implication net-worth) individuals purchasing vessels for the group, in turn the group names vessels after these donors. The Sailing Vessel Martin Sheen is an example of this. It was purchased by and named after the eponymous Hollywood actor in 2014.⁸ The vessel is US-Flagged, and registered with the US Coast Guard as a research vessel.⁹ It has also been involved in campaigns in Mexico and elsewhere in the South Pacific.

The vessel itself is known to DFO due to its involvement in 2016 and 2017 salmon aquaculture protests. Prior to both protests, the SSCS released media announcements [REDACTED] In the course of these, a lengthy history of collaboration and moral support emerged [REDACTED] and the SSCS dating to at least 2009.¹⁰ SSCS supports [REDACTED] contention that salmon aquaculture is detrimental to the environment, and continues to deliver this message through media releases, and a dedicated campaign -dubbed Operation Virus-Hunter. SSCS are supportive of the position taken by protestors. During 2016 protests, [REDACTED] used the Martin Sheen as a logistics platform. Further the vessel transported protestors to salmon aquaculture sites.¹¹ In 2017 the vessel was present in BC waters during protests although its role is unclear at this time.

Prior DFO Collection Efforts

Previous DFO products on the vessel focused on collecting information from open sources and partner agencies. In 2016, these were used to generate a Threat-Risk Assessment, periodical, and daily reporting on the vessel's position and activities. In 2017, no formal product was generated; however DFO MSOC-West conducted monitoring of the vessel's activities throughout its presence in Canada.

Malcolm,

We did a quick check. TC authorities here are very limited. From a Transport Canada perspective, the vessel has a right of free passage under international maritime rules and does not require a reason to enter our waters, unless it is violating some marine safety or shipping regulation or standard.

TC administers economic restrictions on what foreign ships can do under the Coastal Trading Act. IE they cannot move goods between Canadian ports. But I doubt that applies here.

My guess is the answer would focus on the specifics of the "research" authorizations from DFO and GAC.

Is there oversight of these vessels if, in fact, they are in breach of license conditions? Can a vessel be revoked or not permitted to enter Canadian waters absent being included in a research licence application? Apologies for this outreach but we have had troubles trying to get clear answers on this process. Happy to discuss further or provide any background information.

Regards and thanks

Malcolm,

We did a quick check. TC authorities here are very limited. From a Transport Canada perspective, the vessel has a right of free passage under international maritime rules and does not require a reason to enter our waters, unless it is violating some marine safety or shipping regulation or standard.

TC administers economic restrictions on what foreign ships can do under the Coastal Trading Act. IE they cannot move goods between Canadian ports. But I doubt that applies here.

My guess is the answer would focus on the specifics of the "research" authorizations from DFO and GAC.

Subject: Urgent CBSA Inquiry - Sea Shepard Society Protest Efforts in British Columbia

Good Afternoon Deputy

Trust all is well with you. Wanted to reach out to share the following with you on behalf of the work we do with the Canadian Aquaculture Industry Alliance (CAIA).

For the past few weeks, we have been exploring between Fisheries and Oceans Canada, Transport Canada and Public Safety which government department has oversight and approval of foreign vessels entering Canadian waters for the purpose of research activities. Specifically, every spring/summer in British Columbia, the Sea Shepard Society and their vessel the "Martin Sheen" is permitted to enter Canadian waters for the supposed purpose of undertaking marine research. The Canadian researcher they publicly claim they support is [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] They have announced as of today that this vessel is departing Hawaii on May 1, 2018 to makes it way to British Columbia. However, every year this vessel is used to facilitate protests on BC salmon farms – in many cases breaching bio-security protocols and disrupting farming activities. RCMP intervention at times has been required. The sector has reached out to Fisheries and Oceans Canada and are aware that they have explored and placed additional research license conditions on [REDACTED] activities. CAIA has obtained the attached DFO research licence and of note, the "Martin Sheen" vessel is not listed as one of the 2 vessels she intends to use this year – yet we know it is on its way to BC and on social media the Sea Shepard Society has stated they are sailing to Canadian waters to aid in [REDACTED] "research" efforts. Of paramount concern is both the safety of the farms and the fish that are being grown as well as the farm workers who are ultimately harassed by the protests that frequently result and the farm occupations that can ensue.

When we reached out to DFO, we were directed to Transport Canada. We received the following response:

In terms of marine scientific research, there is no permit required from TC. If they are a foreign vessel they need permits from CBSA and DFO depending on what they are doing. But if they are doing State sponsored marine scientific research, this does require a process through GAC, in which TC is involved - but these are non-state actors.

It is challenging to prevent a vessel to enter Canadian vessels because of the law of the sea, depending on the flag/vessel size it may get inspected at a port. While TC doesn't have any intel related to Sea Sheppard – any intel should share it with the RCMP and CBSA. The RCMP is the contact if there is a problem.

We subsequently communicated through Minister Goodale's Office and received the following response today:

CBSA does not determine the legitimacy of research applications. When research authorizations are required for foreign-based applicants, they must apply directly to the Department of Fisheries and Oceans and/or to Global Affairs Canada for such authorizations. The role of the CBSA is to provide advance border-related information to foreign expeditions planning research in Canada while promoting compliance with Canadian regulations and safety procedures. The CBSA communicates all advance expedition information to regional operational areas to ensure proper resources are in place to support a well-managed, facilitative and controlled entry into Canada of identified foreign research entities. Your best point of contact is the border watch line, Toll-free: 1-888-502-9060.

Given the track record of the Sea Shepard Society and the use of their vessel to facilitate protests and not research – and the fact they are not listed as part of the DFO issued research licence, the sector has been seeking for several weeks to inquire whether third-parties can come forward and be included in a formal process to provide information or express concern before vessels are permitted to enter Canadian waters? Is there oversight of these vessels if, in fact, they are in breach of license conditions? Can a vessel be revoked or not permitted to enter Canadian waters absent being included in a research licence application? Apologies for this outreach but we have had troubles trying to get clear answers on this process. Happy to discuss further or provide any background information.

Hi there,

So if I understand correctly, DFO has issued [REDACTED] a FGR Sec 52 Scientific Collection Licence which does in fact cover the Martin Sheen? But her license is such that it prohibits the collection within the tenure area of aquaculture facilities, which should theoretically limit her ability to engage in the kinds of activities outlined below.... but hasn't in the past.

Can we respond at all to the last para- I assume that we don't have a process to let third parties come forward to express concerns, but there is oversight and actions can be taken to address breaches to licence conditions.

Given the track record of the Sea Shepard Society and the use of their vessel to facilitate protests and not research – and the fact they are not listed as part of the DFO issued research licence, the sector has been seeking for several weeks to inquire whether third-parties can come forward and be included in a formal process to provide information or express concern before vessels are permitted to enter Canadian waters? Hello Catherine - we are aware of the actions of the Martin Sheen, which has done tours for several years now.

The Region has issued annually a FGR Sec 52 Scientific Collection Licence [REDACTED] It generally allows for the collection by dip net of juvenile salmon for sea lice and other fish health studies. DFO puts terms and conditions regarding where that collection can occur and prohibits the collection within the tenure area of aquaculture facilities to protect bio security.

[REDACTED]

We are unaware of the Sea Shepard Society or the MV Martin Sheen being issued a licence for collection or any other form of research authorisation. If some form of authorisation is required for CBSA to permit entry, we don't believe it has come from DFO, we will follow up with CBSA. We will work with Philippe and Arran on this.

The Sea Shepherd Conservation Society acquired the RV Martin Sheen in 2014 to conduct scientific research. (<https://www.onegreenplanet.org/news/sea-shepherd-unveils-new-vessel-martin-sheen/>) The vessel is registered in the United States and is classified as a research vessel.

The vessel arrived in Canadian waters in July 2016 and was used as a logistics platform for protests against Atlantic salmon aquaculture in BC. [REDACTED] she was aboard the MV Martin Sheen and was in the vicinity of two salmon fish farms.

[REDACTED] Her intention was to collect samples from the farms to prove the detrimental effect they have on wild species. (TRA 2016 and daily sitreps).

In 2017, the vessel was present in BC waters during protests, including the occupation of salmon farms, although its role is unclear.

The vessel's global activities include conducting a four-month campaign in Mexico in 2015 for conservation efforts regarding the vaquita porpoise (<http://www.ticotimes.net/2015/06/11/sea-shepherds-rv-martin-sheen-lands-in-costa-rica-for-4-month-research-mission>). It then sailed to Costa Rica to conduct research. In addition, the vessel was involved in the rescue of a leatherback turtle in Mexico in 2018. (<https://www.facebook.com/SeaShepherdMartinSheen/>)

Open source research does not yield any information to indicate that the RV Martin Sheen vessel or its crew has been involved in violent or otherwise criminal activities.

See trail of email below. From a TC standpoint, our role here is very limited. There is nothing TC can do.

But I am thinking the lack clarity about what we can do from a whole of government perspective, warrants that we have a conversation on it. I think this issue is a good candidate for a MERP meeting/call.

Good Afternoon Deputy

Trust all is well with you. Wanted to reach out to share the following with you on behalf of the work we do with the Canadian Aquaculture Industry Alliance (CAIA).

For the past few weeks, we have been exploring between Fisheries and Oceans Canada, Transport Canada and Public Safety which government department has oversight and approval of foreign vessels entering Canadian waters for the purpose of research activities. Specifically, every spring/summer in British Columbia, the Sea Shepard Society and their vessel the "Martin Sheen" is permitted to enter Canadian waters for the supposed purpose of undertaking marine research. The Canadian researcher they publicly claim they support is [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] They have announced as of today that this vessel is departing Hawaii on May 1, 2018 to makes it way to British Columbia. However, every year this vessel is used to facilitate protests on BC salmon farms – in many cases breaching bio-security protocols and disrupting farming activities. RCMP intervention at times has been required. The sector has reached out to Fisheries and Oceans Canada and are aware that they have explored and placed additional research license conditions on [REDACTED] activities. CAIA has obtained the attached DFO research licence and of note, the "Martin Sheen" vessel is not listed as one of the 2 vessels she intends to use this year – yet we know it is on its way to BC and on social media the Sea Shepard Society has stated they are sailing to Canadian waters to aid in [REDACTED] “research” efforts. Of paramount concern is both the safety of the farms and the fish that are being grown as well as the farm workers who are ultimately harassed by the protests that frequently result and the farm occupations that can ensue.

When we reached out to DFO, we were directed to Transport Canada. We received the following response:

In terms of marine scientific research, there is no permit required from TC. If they are a foreign vessel they need permits from CBSA and DFO depending on what they are doing. But if they are doing State sponsored marine scientific research, this does require a process through GAC, in which TC is involved - but these are non-state actors.

It is challenging to prevent a vessel to enter Canadian vessels because of the law of the sea, depending on the flag/vessel size it may get inspected at a port. While TC doesn't have any intel related to Sea Sheppard – any intel should share it with the RCMP and CBSA. The RCMP is the contact if there is a problem.

We subsequently communicated through Minister Goodale's Office and received the following response today:

CBSA does not determine the legitimacy of research applications. When research authorizations are required for foreign-based applicants, they must apply directly to the Department of Fisheries and Oceans and/or to Global Affairs Canada for such authorizations. The role of the CBSA is to provide advance border-related information to foreign expeditions planning research in Canada while promoting compliance with Canadian regulations and safety procedures. The CBSA communicates all advance expedition information to regional operational areas to ensure proper resources are in place to support a well-managed, facilitative and controlled entry into Canada of identified foreign research entities. Your best point of contact is the border watch line, Toll-free: 1-888-502-9060.

Given the track record of the Sea Shepard Society and the use of their vessel to facilitate protests and not research – and the fact they are not listed as part of the DFO issued research licence, the sector has been seeking for several weeks to inquire whether third-parties can come forward and be included in a formal process to provide information or express concern before vessels are permitted to enter Canadian waters? Is there oversight of these vessels if, in fact, they are in breach of license conditions? Can a vessel be revoked or not permitted to enter Canadian waters absent being included in a research licence application? Apologies for this outreach but we have had troubles trying to get clear answers on this process. Happy to discuss further or provide any background information.

Regards and thanks

Subject: Travel of the RV Martin Sheen to Canada and its involvement with researcher [REDACTED]

Distribution: Information for the Assistant Deputy Minister

Issued on behalf of: Darren Goetze, Director General, Conservation & Protection

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY:

- The Sea Shepherd Conservation Society's (SSCS) Research Vessel Martin Sheen left Hawaii on 1 May, a month earlier than in previous years, and is en-route to the Pacific Coast.
- In the past, the vessel has provided logistics support to researcher [REDACTED] a marine researcher opposed to aquaculture, and operating on the Pacific Coast.
- Although the SSCS has publicly stated that they would be supporting [REDACTED] research, the RV Martin Sheen is not mentioned [REDACTED]

- [REDACTED]
- [REDACTED]

BACKGROUND:

The Sea Shepherd Conservation Society's (SSCS) is an environmental group that has gained significant prominence using sophisticated media campaigns, celebrity endorsements and donations, and direct-action protest tactics. It has publically denounced salmon aquaculture as environmentally dangerous.

Intelligence Bulletin

On 1 May 2018, NFIS received information that the Research Vessel Martin Sheen (RV Martin Sheen) had left its port in Hawaii on 1 May, and was en-route to Canada to support ██████████ research on salmon aquaculture. The vessel is US-flagged, and registered with the US Coast Guard as a research vessel. In past years, the RV Martin Sheen was involved, among other things, in Mexico to support conservation efforts on the vaquita porpoise, and in Costa Rica to conduct marine research.

The SSCS has a history of collaboration and moral support with ██████████ marine wildlife researcher, though direct logistic support to her research activities using the RV Martin Sheen only started in 2016. The SSCS supports ██████████ contention that salmon aquaculture is detrimental to the environment, and continues to deliver this message through media releases and a dedicated campaign dubbed Operation Virus-Hunter. Although the SSCS has publicly stated that they would be supporting ██████████ research, the RV Martin Sheen does not appear ██████████ ██████████

██████████ Her current research focuses on salmon aquaculture's purported deleterious effects on wild salmon stocks and its implications on the whale population off British Columbia. ██████████ written several articles in scientific journals, general interest books, and electronic media, against salmon aquaculture. ██████████ There are a number of media articles and videos speaking of her work on salmon farms, ██████████ ██████████

The SSCS has supported ██████████ research by using drones and divers in proximity of aquaculture sites. The use of drones filming employees and operations raised issues of safety, trespassing, and privacy, while the use of divers was seen as potentially unsafe due to the presence of mooring lines and other potential underwater obstacles.

s.19(1)

s.21(1)(a)

s.21(1)(b)

ANALYSIS:

The current approach taken by the SSCS is more subtle than their reputation precedes. The SSCS leans on the local expertise ██████████ as well as the support of coastal communities that share their viewpoints, to empower its message on the deleterious effects of aquaculture.

██████████ The SSCS uses social media, press conference, and media exposure to keep their supporters aware and engaged as to their legitimate intent to support research. For example, local leaders in British Columbia, such as Chief Councillor of the Kwikwasut'inuxw Haxwa'mis First Nation Bob Chamberlain, invited ██████████

██████████ SSCS researchers to test any fish found within their traditional territories, including fish farms. These types of messages have led to trespassing of individuals supportive of the SSCS, waiting for the RV Martin Sheen to assist in their research efforts.

STRATEGIC CONSIDERATIONS

In 2016, DFO generated a Threat-Risk Assessment and released reporting on the RV Martin Sheen's activities. In 2017, no formal product was produced; however DFO MSOC-West monitored the vessel's activities in Canada.

The RV Martin Sheen typically winters in Hawaii. Its pattern over the previous two years has been to depart for Canada around 1 June. This year, the vessel departed one month earlier.

Subject: BN Context. hopefully it helps

Context for the 'protest'

Protest

The current approach taken by the SSCS in British Columbia is more subtle than their reputation precedes. The SSCS leans on the local expertise [REDACTED] as well as the support of coastal communities that share their viewpoints on the deleterious effects of aquaculture.

[REDACTED]
SSCS uses social media, press conference, and media exposure to keep their supporters aware and engaged as to their legitimate intent to support research. This has sometimes resulted in additional local backing to conduct the scientific research as seen in the use of numerous local small water craft to assist in collection.

As the vessel travels up the coast the message is often compounded by local leaders such as Chief Councillor of the Kwikwasut'inuxw Haxwa'mis First Nation Bob CHAMBERLAIN inviting [REDACTED] SSCS researchers to "to test any fish found within the traditional territories of our people, and this includes fish farms." These types of message have led to trespassing individuals, 'affiliated' to SSCS, waiting for the Martin Sheen to assist in their research efforts.

Research Concerns: The reported use of drones, divers, and proximity to aquaculture sites create risks to persons and operations and impacts both the safety of employees and orderly conduct of the fisheries.

Seine nets were thrown from boats and a diver assisted with collection. The use of a diver was seen as potentially unsafe due to the presence of mooring lines and other potential underwater obstacles. Of concern to fish farm operators was the way in which [REDACTED] crew interacted with Marine Harvest staff, engaging them in conversation in an attempt to obtain a Mort (deceased fish from farm). Furthermore, there were concerns over the use of drones filming employees and operations, which raised issues of safety, trespassing, and privacy.

That's what I mean. The FO's did not indicate to me they wanted the RFI changed to reflect only target profiles and that they no longer needed a timeline. Let's get at least one of them to weigh in on it next week (?). The RFI has to come from them, not me. I just help them author it where needed. What you are working on, profiles, was already approved by NFIS and TCG, so it's just getting in an RFI to reflect that then (?). They believe their original RFI encompassed whatever they may have asked in terms of target profiles, but I agree with you, getting some clarification of the purpose of the product might help focus that better.

So...

1. Have to determine if the original RFI still stands (do they still want a timeline and we modify it, or is the original RFI can be stood down completely and create a new RFI with new criteria. Would only take a few minutes to write, maybe an hour or 2 to get them to review it for submission.
2. Get them to clarify what they are seeking to be included in the target profiles – what kind of info would assist their purpose ([REDACTED]

The current RFI already asks for creation of a product for "identification of protesters/activists and roles they played (what they did)" and "Also requesting background checks on individuals and anything else that will assist in our investigation." That's why I am thinking maybe good to just have a quick conversation with them re: any details.

Maybe I am missing something. I thought I was to look through the drives and see if I could create target profiles for the main people? The original RFI is requesting a timeline. Please see attached.

I think I may be missing something (?). Was there a conversation held with Claire D. or Joe Knight that the RFI had changed? That original RFI was not answered yet to my knowledge (due to the delay of info sharing to us) and I've only ever received that December RFI as well, it's the only one I've put forward for Aquaculture C&P re: timeline of events and identity of key persons of interest.

Perhaps we should have a convo with Claire/Joe/Greg Plummer to clarify that RFI if that will help?
All 3 of them are unavailable this week due to Requal training/wrapping that up, but if you'd like I can request a call with them next week – what would best times be for you?

Thanks!

Thank you for this.

I have been reviewing the information provided on the hard drives. Do you have the updated RFI as to what they are exactly looking for? Derek sent me the one from December but that one is no longer relevant.

Thanks,

Nitasha

Hi Nitasha – nothing urgent, I just noticed an increase the last few days in open source stories about fish farms in BC.

1. Person associated with Swanson Occupation group [REDACTED] seems to have created/narrated this video posted by Global news on April 26th ;
“Opponents of B.C.’s open-net fish farms have released new video they say shows, once again, the damage done to our oceans. [REDACTED] has the story, and the response from the industry.” “Cermaq Canada says it is reviewing the video and investigating the claims made including exactly where the video was shot”.

BLUF:

- The Sea Shepherd Conservation Society's (SSCS) Research Vessel Martin Sheen left Hawaii on 1 May, a month earlier than in previous years, and is en-route to the Pacific Coast.
- In the past, the vessel has provided logistics support to researcher [REDACTED] a marine researcher opposed to aquaculture and operating on the Pacific Coast.
- Although the SSCS has publicly stated that they would be supporting [REDACTED] research, the RV Martin Sheen is not mentioned [REDACTED]
- [REDACTED]
- [REDACTED]

BACKGROUND:

The Sea Shepherd Conservation Society's (SSCS) is an environmental group that has gained significant prominence using sophisticated media campaigns, celebrity endorsements and donations, and direct-action protest tactics. It has publicly denounced salmon aquaculture as environmentally dangerous.

On 1 May 2018, NFIS received information that the Research Vessel Martin Sheen (RV Martin Sheen) had left its port in Hawaii on 1 May, and was en-route to Canada to support [REDACTED] research on salmon aquaculture. The vessel is US-flagged, and registered with the US Coast Guard as a research vessel. In past years, the RV Martin Sheen was involved, among other things, in Mexico to support conservation efforts on the vaquita porpoise, and in Costa Rica to conduct marine research.

Intelligence Bulletin

The SSCS has a history of collaboration and moral support with [REDACTED] marine wildlife researcher, though direct logistic support to her research activities using the RV Martin Sheen only started in 2016. SSCS supports [REDACTED] contention that salmon aquaculture is detrimental to the environment, and continues to deliver this message through media releases and a dedicated campaign dubbed Operation Virus-Hunter. Although the SSCS has publicly stated that they would be supporting [REDACTED] research, the RV Martin Sheen does not appear [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] Her current research focuses on salmon aquaculture's purported deleterious effects on wild salmon stocks and its implications on the whale population off British Columbia. [REDACTED] written several articles in scientific journals, general interest books, and electronic media, against salmon aquaculture. [REDACTED] There are a number of media articles and videos speaking of her work on salmon farms [REDACTED]

The SSCS has supported [REDACTED] research by using drones and divers in proximity of aquaculture sites. The use of drones filming employees and operations raised issues of safety, trespassing, and privacy, while the use of divers was seen as potentially unsafe due to the presence of mooring lines and other potential underwater obstacles.

ANALYSIS:

The current approach taken by the SSCS is more subtle than their reputation precedes. The SSCS leans on the local expertise [REDACTED] as well as the support of coastal communities that share their viewpoints, to empower their message on the deleterious effects of aquaculture.

[REDACTED] SSCS uses social media, press conference, and media exposure to keep their supporters aware and engaged as to their legitimate intent to support research. For example, local leaders in British Columbia, such as Chief Councillor of the Kwikwasut'inuxw Haxwa'mis First Nation Bob Chamberlain, invited [REDACTED] SSCS researchers to test any fish found within their traditional territories, including fish farms. These types of messages have led to trespassing of individuals supportive of the SSCS, waiting for the RV Martin Sheen to assist in their research efforts.

STRATEGIC CONSIDERATIONS

In 2016, DFO generated a Threat-Risk Assessment and released reporting on the RV Martin Sheen's activities. In 2017, no formal product was produced; however DFO MSOC-West monitored the vessel's activities in Canada.

The RV Martin Sheen typically winters in Hawaii. Its pattern over the previous two years has been to depart for Canada around 1 June. This year, the vessel departed one month earlier.

Hello everyone

This past week we had a number of meetings, including the Finfish Aquaculture Industry Advisory Panel (FAIAP) on Wednesday and the Strategic Working Group (subcommittee of the FAIAP) on Friday. Thanks to everyone who participated in the GIS discussion last week here at IDW.

Shelley is starting to do some organizing for BBQ season... including looking at planning something fun for National Public Service Week in the second week of June. Let her know if you have any ideas. She will also be travelling to Vancouver for 2 days of training next week for Administrators Week.

Here are a few updates for this week.

Marine Finfish

- We have received some new applications, so there are a number of amendment applications in process at this point.
- Some work is starting with AEO on looking at initiating discussions about the forward renewal of the Conditions of Licence.
- April 29 the Martin Sheen left Hawaii to prepare for another year of Operation Virus Hunter.
- There have been a number of occupations of farms in the Broughton in the last couple of weeks, some increasingly aggressive,

s.21(1)(b)

- Lice levels on a number of farms on the West Coast have been exceeding the limits, this information has been posted on public reporting web sites and has elicited a strong response from environmental organizations over the weekend.

Shellfish

Breaking news on the shellfish front, includes:

- Shellfish Integrated Compliance Team meets on Thursday
- C&P coming for meeting on traceability on Wednesday
- Todd and Gabrielle are meeting with BC, Underwater Harvesters Assoc., and Transport Canada on Thursday re: the overlapping geoduck applications
- Files up for review: Tla'amin
- There is continuing media interest in the Norovirus issue in Baynes Sound. The BCSGA continues to press the government for more action.

Freshwater

This week we sent up to the Director a briefing note on the Recreational Stocking Licence Renewal and the SEP Majors re-issuance. Once this is approved, ARM will be working with the Licensing Team to ensure that the approved conditions are uploaded into AQUIIS to prepare for the renewal. The revised COLs include fish transfer provisions are aligning with the change in transfer provisions that have been evolving since September 2015.

First Nations, Consultation and Accommodation

We have had some feedback from CFIA on the Kwakiah Fish Health project proposal, which is currently being reviewed.

ARM sent in the answers to the questions from the Treaty Negotiators to the Director, which was much appreciated. Great job Team!

It looks like the FNFC Aquaculture Coordinating Committee meeting bilateral meeting with DFO will be cancelled this week, due to low availability of participants.

Where is Brenda?

Brenda is around Nanaimo and Island Diesel Way all week!

Mornings will be taken up in various meetings and conference calls. Afternoons I might be in the boardroom or the office - Monday afternoon is the Team Leads meeting, Tuesday afternoon is the Harmonized Working Group meeting with BC, Wednesday afternoon is the Directors of Aquaculture conference call. Friday Brenda is working an early day

Just a heads' up that the Director will be working out of the Island Diesel Way office on Monday next week. If there is anything that you need to chat with her about let me know and we can set up a meeting. If it's nice maybe anyone who would like can walk over [REDACTED]

Have a great week!

Hi Claire and Joe,

Would you (or at least one of you) be available for a brief call with Nitasha Chohan (Intel Analyst) and I to just quickly go over a couple questions about the Request for Information (RFI) re: aquaculture protests? Nitasha and I have a couple questions about which product(s) would best suit your purpose, but I believe we can solve that quickly if we have a conversation about them.

Would you be able to make a brief call sometime between 08:30 and 11:00 am on TUESDAY May 08th?

Thanks,

Johanna Jenkins

Hi All,

So the Martin Sheen is expected to be back in our AOR and we're going to need to be able to produce reports of some nature on this for the season. We are going to be doing OPEN SOURCE reporting only. Which means only what you can find in the news is acceptable but that's all no Twiiter, Facebook, Instagram or other methods...Rob has set up a folder in the Drive.

L:\MSOC HQ\MSOC - West\Briefings\Other Briefings\2018\RV MARTIN SHEEN

As you can see in the drive there is a document for tracking searches. In addition, there is a report that was completed by Ruth last Friday that you can view. Please do the following:

1. I would like for the night person every day to search of news articles and track where they found them including the link and what you found. (Tracker is in folder above)
2. Log that you completed your search in the log book. Be sure to include a NIL in the log book if you couldn't find anything
3. On Mondays, I would like the night person to produce a report with any highlights from news articles and possible maps with locations if they have stopped or you have information that you can take out of the articles and transpose into some analysis.
4. Please send me the report by Tuesday morning and I will send forward if required.

This week will be a trial report as I will not be here on Tuesday. Please send me the report anyways and do the searches over the weekend. This will place less responsibilities on the person on shift on Monday if they already have all the news articles. I would like to see a reasonable report done up with locations and maps if the news articles state where the vessel is if at all possible. We see how this is going it's possible we do the report bi weekly instead of weekly but let's see how much information we get first. As always, any questions please just let me know. I appreciate everyone's help in the matter as we need to be proactive in our approach to finding information so one person doesn't get caught on shift requiring all the information with no time to get it.

Thanks

Hi Cedric,

Here's the most recent one we did from last summer. In addition, one I did from the beginning with the information surrounding the incident. These are old thought but the mission would be the same I would expect this summer.

I hope this helps. Once we get more information on the Social Media we can certainly produce more but until we are aware of our limitations I don't feel comfortable directing staff to do so.

Thanks

Suspected Route Map

The intention of M/V Martin Sheen over the course of several weeks (Operation Virus Hunter), would trace the major salmon migration route that stretches from mainland Vancouver to the north end of Vancouver Island. Along the route, the Martin Sheen will be stopping at various salmon farms to conduct audits for disease and other factors, which will be done in a non-aggressive and non-harassing manner.

Background

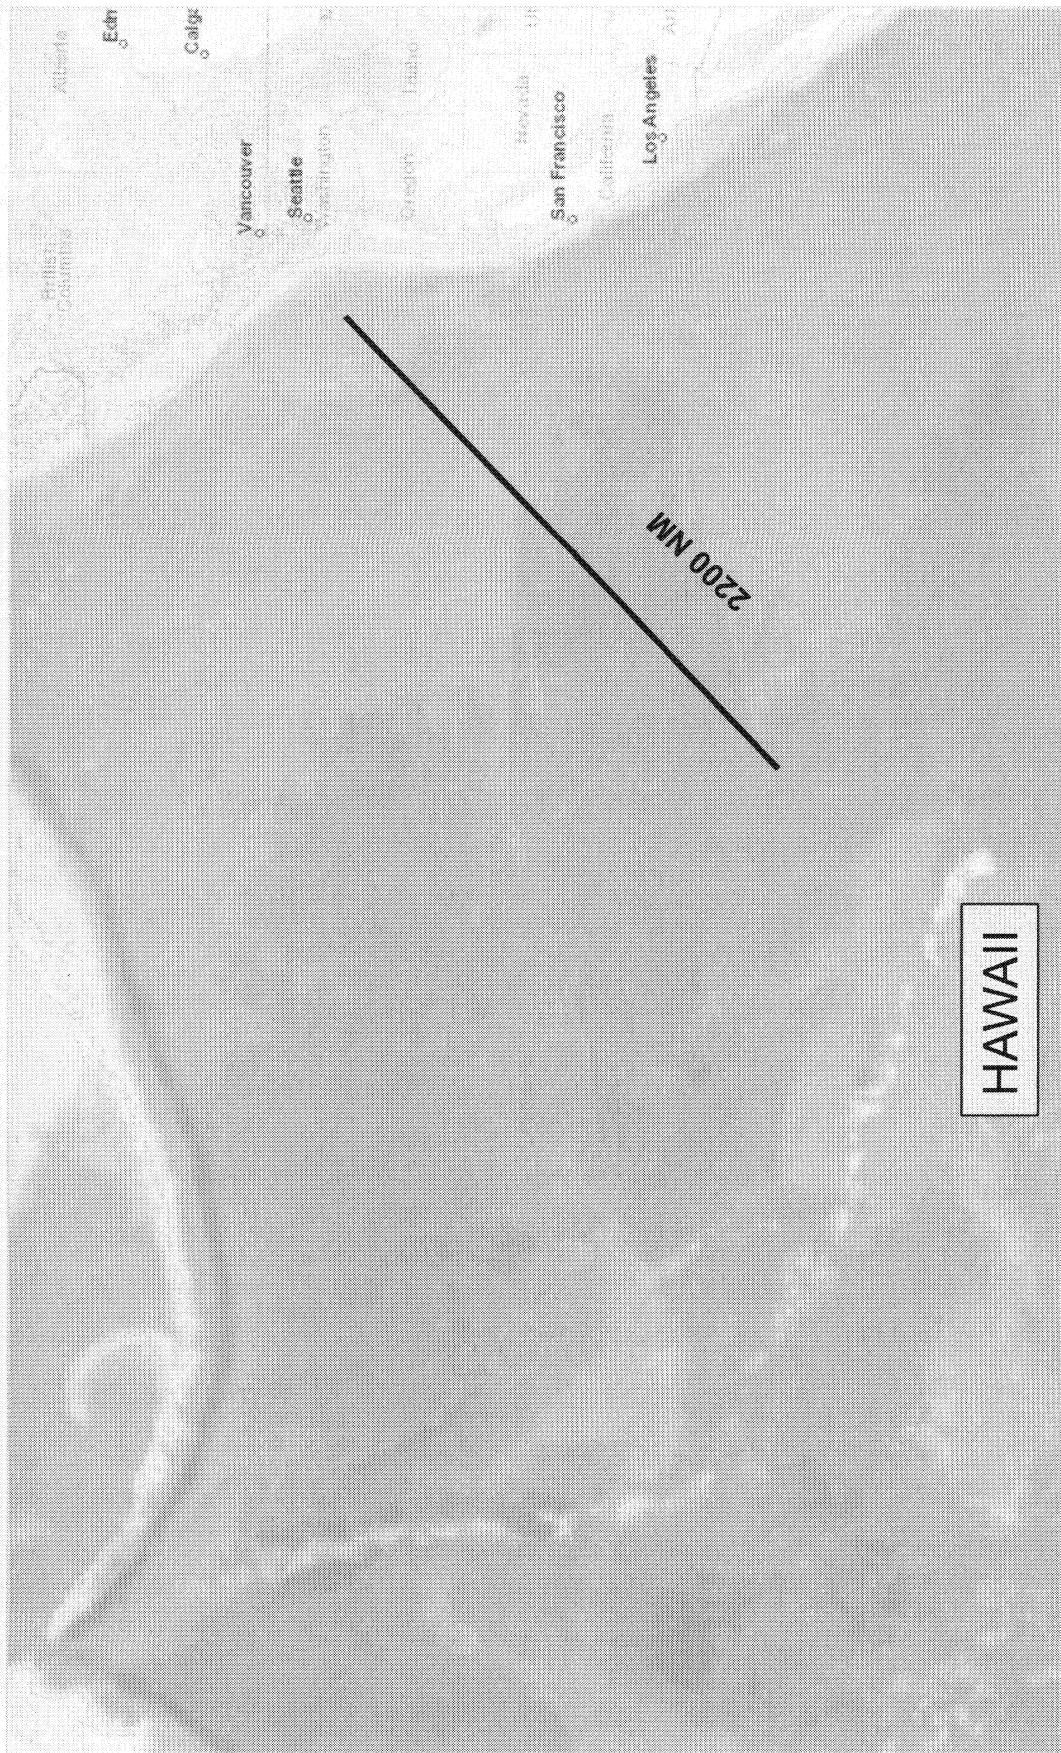

The Sea Shepherd Conservation Society is a non-profit group of activists best known for its use of direct action tactics, and are known to engage in physical confrontations aimed at stopping practices the group deem harmful. This includes scuttling vessels and destruction of property.

According to local Vancouver newspaper The Georgia Strait , Sea Shepherd sailing vessel “Martin Sheen” departed Honolulu HI for Vancouver, BC May 1st, however this is unconfirmed. The Martin Sheen will be again assisting [REDACTED] opponent of salmon farming in BC coastal waters, in her efforts to draw public support. [REDACTED] conducts her own testing under the banner “Operation Virus Hunter”, and has been sighted on multiple fish farm sites for multiple companies all on the same day. The industry has indicated that [REDACTED] associates are operating without bio-safety and bio-security protocols, which risks introducing pathogens or other biological factors to a fish farm. This can have catastrophic financial implications for operators, and may result in requiring the destruction of fish.

It will take the Martin Sheen, travelling at an average of 5knots roughly 18-20 days to complete the voyage to Vancouver. The Martin Sheen is not required to transmit AIS for the voyage, [REDACTED]

Key Judgements

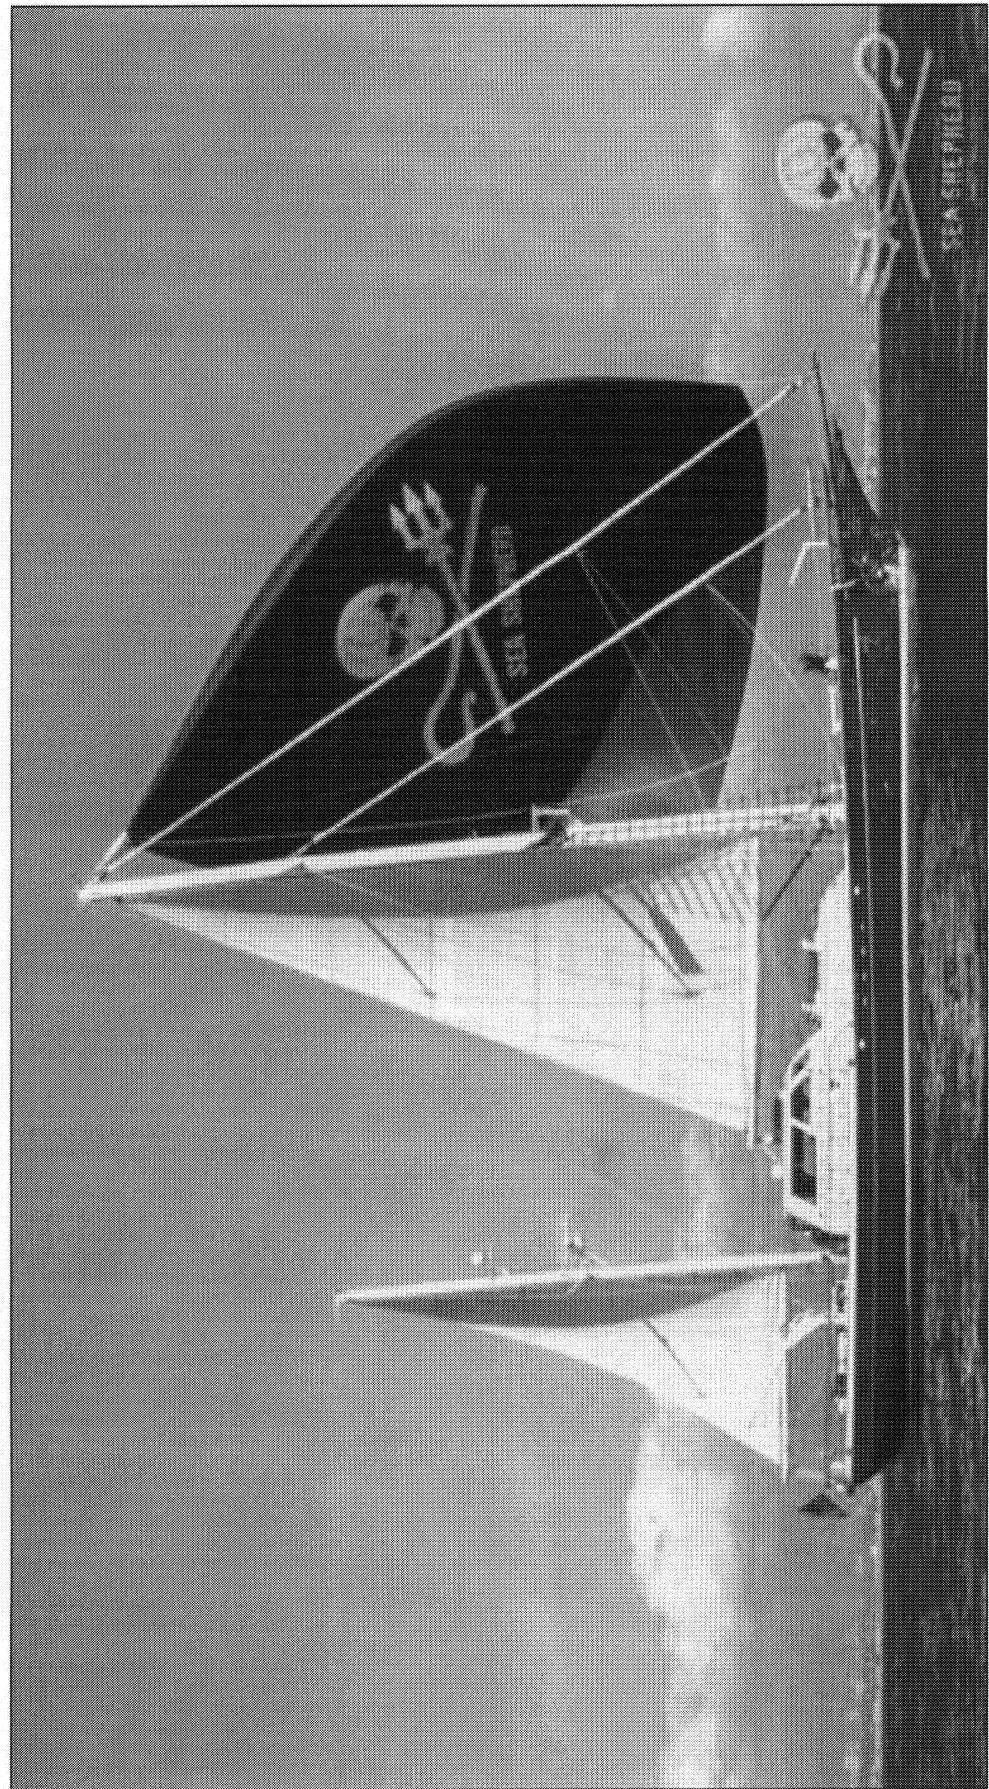

- RV Martin Sheen has announced its intent to conduct research in BC waters in support of “Operation Virus Hunter” via the Sea Shepherd website
- It is probable that protest activity will increase with the corresponding media attention of the campaign, and milder summer weather.

Situation

- In the past the MARTIN SHEEN has conducted open house style vessel tours in Vancouver to publicize the launch of their “Operation Virus Hunter” campaign. Their next port after Victoria is unknown.
- RV MARTIN SHEEN due to its size, are not required to transmit AIS, [REDACTED]
- By June 2018 a decision from the BC government must be reached whether leases for 20 fish farms along the coast will be renewed.
- As of May 19th 2018, a request for a “no go” zone around Marine Harvest Canada properties was denied, however the Judge ordered protestors to stop harassing employees and vacate the Swanson Island property. A hearing for a broader injunction order is scheduled for June 25th, 2018

Hi Derek,

As discussed, this RFI has been put on hold. Jo had a teleconference with Claire Doucette and Joe Knight on Tuesday and they confirmed that no products are required at this time.

Mike Carlson and Claire are working to establish a Protest Liaison, potentially a FO or RHQ employee, to liaise with protestors, RCMP, and NFIS. Once this person/position is determined, the request for a link chart and/or intelligence bulletins may be put forward.

Jo – please feel free to add any additional information.

Thanks,

Victoria,

As discussed, the MARTIN SHEEN apparently departed Hawaii on 1 May and is headed for BC to conduct marine scientific research. As you can see from the attached email, an inquiry has been made at the DM level to have the MSR revoked. This issue will be discussed during the MERP meeting on Tuesday morning.

Assuming its status does not change (and based on the attached email I do not believe it will) then the MARTIN SHEEN will be declared a CAT 3F VOI as per the CDS Dir and the Op LIMPID OpOrd (Draft).

Mike,

As discussed, Malick was planning to call a MERP meeting next week also in order to discuss a separate issue regarding MSRs. We would request to add this planned discussion as an agenda item for the meeting.

The issue is similar but separate, TC would like to broaden a previous discussion relating to the Sea Shepherd Conservation Society (SSCS) vessel Martin Sheen and its MSR. A member of the Canadian aquaculture industry reached out to the DM of PS and the conversation regarding authorities for MSR has gone on for the last week with CCG/DFO, GAC, TC and CBSA. I've attached the email chain with the original request and some of the back and forth discussion however the MERP would be the best place to discuss.

The regular GAC contact may be away and has advised the Julie Obonsawin should be included.

Please let me know if there's anything else that you need. I appreciate you letting us add this as you've already initiated a MERP meeting.

Good morning, Malick.

s.19(1)

Is there still a desire to convene a MERP meeting or call on this? If so, perhaps an earlier date makes more sense than a later one.

As with the other departments, the CBSA does not have additional options that would satisfy the writer under these circumstances. The CBSA does not judge the legitimacy of research activities, and if the vessel is being used for touring purposes (as opposed to research activities), it would report to the CBSA at a marine port POE and be cleared for customs and immigration requirements as per the standard procedures.

Cheers,
Donald

See trail of email below. From a TC standpoint, our role here is very limited. There is nothing TC can do.

But I am thinking the lack clarity about what we can do from a whole of government perspective, warrants that we have a conversation on it. I think this issue is a good candidate for a MERP meeting/call.

Donald: Not too sure to which extent you are aware of it, but the question originated from your department.

Subject: Urgent CBSA Inquiry - Sea Shepard Society Protest Efforts in British Columbia

Good Afternoon Deputy

Trust all is well with you. Wanted to reach out to share the following with you on behalf of the work we do with the Canadian Aquaculture Industry Alliance (CAIA).

For the past few weeks, we have been exploring between Fisheries and Oceans Canada, Transport Canada and Public Safety which government department has oversight and approval of foreign vessels entering Canadian waters for the purpose of research activities. Specifically, every spring/summer in British Columbia, the Sea Shepard Society and their vessel the "Martin Sheen" is permitted to enter Canadian waters for the supposed purpose of undertaking marine research. The Canadian researcher they publicly claim they support is [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] They have announced as of today that this vessel is departing Hawaii on May 1, 2018 to makes it way to British Columbia. However, every year this vessel is used to facilitate protests on BC salmon farms – in many cases breaching bio-security protocols and disrupting farming activities. RCMP intervention at times has been required. The sector has reached out to Fisheries and Oceans Canada and are aware that they have explored and placed additional research license conditions on [REDACTED] activities. CAIA has obtained the attached DFO research licence and of note, the "Martin Sheen" vessel is not listed as one of the 2 vessels she intends to use this year – yet we know it is on its way to BC and on social media the Sea Shepard Society has stated they are sailing to Canadian waters to aid in [REDACTED] "research" efforts. Of paramount concern is both the safety of the farms and the fish that are being grown as well as the farm workers who are ultimately harassed by the protests that frequently result and the farm occupations that can ensue.

When we reached out to DFO, we were directed to Transport Canada. We received the following response:

In terms of marine scientific research, there is no permit required from TC. If they are a foreign vessel they need permits from CBSA and DFO depending on what they are doing. But if they are doing State sponsored marine scientific research, this does require a process through GAC, in which TC is involved - but these are non-state actors.

It is challenging to prevent a vessel to enter Canadian vessels because of the law of the sea, depending on the flag/vessel size it may get inspected at a port. While TC doesn't have any intel related to Sea Sheppard – any intel should share it with the RCMP and CBSA. The RCMP is the contact if there is a problem.

We subsequently communicated through Minister Goodale's Office and received the following response today:

CBSA does not determine the legitimacy of research applications. When research authorizations are required for foreign-based applicants, they must apply directly to the Department of Fisheries and Oceans and/or to Global Affairs Canada for such authorizations. The role of the CBSA is to provide advance border-related information to foreign expeditions planning research in Canada while promoting compliance with Canadian regulations and safety procedures. The CBSA communicates all advance expedition information to regional operational areas to ensure proper resources are in place to support a well-managed, facilitative and controlled entry into Canada of identified foreign research entities. Your best point of contact is the border watch line, Toll-free: 1-888-502-9060.

Given the track record of the Sea Shepard Society and the use of their vessel to facilitate protests and not research – and the fact they are not listed as part of the DFO issued research licence, the sector has been seeking for several weeks to inquire whether third-parties can come forward and be included in a formal process to provide information or express concern before vessels are permitted to enter Canadian waters? Is there oversight of these vessels if, in fact, they are in breach of license conditions? Can a vessel be revoked or not permitted to enter Canadian waters absent being included in a research licence application? Apologies for this outreach but we have had troubles trying to get clear answers on this process. Happy to discuss further or provide any background information.

Regards and thanks

Robin,

No updates as we cannot use social media platforms to search for it unless it directly involves fisheries violation or part of an open investigation. And unfortunately, they (the vessel and crew) communicate widely on social media. Or through the media, which is how we'll have to get the information after the fact, rarely beforehand.

I will ask our NFIS crew to see if they have a positional or movement update. OK?

Victoria,

As discussed, the MARTIN SHEEN apparently departed Hawaii on 1 May and is headed for BC to conduct marine scientific research. As you can see from the attached email, an inquiry has been made at the DM level to have the MSR revoked. This issue will be discussed during the MERP meeting on Tuesday morning. Assuming its status does not change (and based on the attached email I do not believe it will) then the MARTIN SHEEN will be declared a CAT 3F VOI as per the CDS Dir and the Op LIMPID OpOrd (Draft).

Mike,

As discussed, Malick was planning to call a MERP meeting next week also in order to discuss a separate issue regarding MSRs. We would request to add this planned discussion as an agenda item for the meeting.

The issue is similar but separate, TC would like to broaden a previous discussion relating to the Sea Shepherd Conservation Society (SSCS) vessel Martin Sheen and its MSR. A member of the Canadian aquaculture industry reached out to the DM of PS and the conversation regarding authorities for MSR has gone on for the last week with CCG/DFO, GAC, TC and CBSA. I've attached the email chain with the original request and some of the back and forth discussion however the MERP would be the best place to discuss.

The regular GAC contact may be away and has advised the Julie Obonsawin should be included.

s.16(2)(c)

Please let me know if there's anything else that you need. I appreciate you letting us add this as you've already initiated a MERP meeting.

Good Morning Lauren,

Not that you need any more work but.... I have attached the action items from the May 2 FAIAP meeting. I would appreciate you taking a look and letting me know if you (1) agree to who has been assigned individual action items and (b) for those assigned to you what is the status or as important will you be able to complete prior to next meeting at the end of July.

Also, Brenda flipped me the email from Allison that included a detailed request for information on the Broughton from David Travia (?) of the province in which she stated that Brenda/I would be working with you to coordinate. I think Brenda will be calling you to discuss the details. Just to let you know I have access to much of the information required as it relates to ARM's work and am mostly free to work on this today. After that I am gone (as are you I assume) until June 1.

Hope to hear from you.

Subject: Protest Ops Plan - Background

Hi Claire,

I was going through my 'to-do' list and found the Protest Ops Plan email that you sent me earlier in the year where you provided the RCMP herring plan and wanted the #1-4 background items done up for the aquaculture protests. While I wasn't able to do it at the time, it wasn't a priority since, so it was temporarily forgotten. I spoke to Joe about it yesterday in CR to go over the information that may be required and we were both wondering if it is still worth the effort to complete, given that we are not involved in protests unless the RCMP request support. If they request support, we operate under their ops plan, not ours. If we respond to an incident of FA sec 23 at an MFF site, it isn't really a "protest" response, it's just a low-risk investigation, which doesn't require an ops plan. I'm pretty sure we don't actually need an ops plan anymore, at least under our current and expected operational plans.

Just so I know what to do with this, one way or the other, please let me know if completing the items #1-4 background is still required or if I may cross it off the list.

Thanks!

Thank you so much.

I also reached out to them this morning but have yet to get anything back.

However – there is one question in my email that pertains only to DFO.

- Does DFO have a new policy (or any policy) where independent researchers studying fish farms are not allowed to access BC waters for research?

Looking for any thoughts or explanation regarding that question.

Thank you

Greetings

I am writing regarding an incident currently taking place in Victoria, BC.

We have been notified that the Sea Shepherd's Martin Sheen has been denied entry to Canada.

We have also been told that the crew was not allowed access to BC waters because there is "no need for research regarding salmon farms because DFO already does research".

This is vessel that has come to BC numerous times. In fact it was involved in research along BC's coast just last year.

Is anyone from DFO aware of this? Does DFO have a new policy where independent researchers are not allowed to access our waters for research?

s.19(1)

I have reached out to CBSA on this matter as well. I am reaching out to you as agents cited your department as a reason to deny entry.

Any information or statement would be greatly appreciated.

Thank you so much

I take your point, Allison. [REDACTED] The main point is that DFO has no decision-making role nor influence on CBSA's decisions. The second point is that no, DFO does not restrict independent research but if individuals or organizations want to remove or sample aquatic resources for their research, then they must hold a Sec 52 licence. To date, the Sea Shepherd Society holds no such licence, nor have they applied for one. [REDACTED] has not listed the Martin Sheen as the vessel (listing the vessel and gear is part of the licence process).

Greetings

I am writing regarding an incident currently taking place in Victoria, BC.

We have been notified that the Sea Shepard's Martin Sheen has been denied entry to Canada.

We have also been told that the crew was not allowed access to BC waters because there is "no need for research regarding salmon farms because DFO already does research".

This is vessel that has come to BC numerous times. In fact it was involved in research along BC's coast just last year.

Is anyone from DFO aware of this? Does DFO have a new policy where independent researchers are not allowed to access our waters for research?

I have reached out to CBSA on this matter as well. I am reaching out to you as agents cited your department as a reason to deny entry.

Any information or statement would be greatly appreciated.

Thank you so much

Can we search NSLS for Fraser Area and North Coast as well as South Coast?

FYI - CCG MSOC-West advised the RV Martin Sheen has cleared customs into Canada in Victoria on 26 MAY 2018. CCG below was kind enough to verify that the ship was still there as of noon today.

The Sea Shepherd USA website advised some months back that there were plans for an Operation Virus Hunter III (last year was Operation Virus Hunter II).

Hi, it was confirmed today that the Martin Sheen cleared CBSA in Victoria this Saturday, she's berthed at the new marina. The vessel cleared as a pleasure craft, although CBSA MSOC mentioned the captain would be coming to the downtown office today to perhaps clear as a research vessel, although there is no requirement for them to do so.

There is no information on the vessel's next port of call. Historically the Martin Sheen has had tour days in coal harbour (Vancouver) to promote their "Operation Virus Hunter" tour, however there is no information to indicate that's the plan this year. The Martin Sheen is not required to transmit AIS, [REDACTED]

We have also received information from our regional CBSA operations, as follows:

Based on the examination and interview upon arrival local operations has determined:

- The vessel reported to Victoria through the telephone reporting center [REDACTED]
- The vessel has not notified Global Affairs Canada or any Government Department regarding their arrival and nature of their business in Canada.

- The crew that arrived on Saturday are only delivering the vessel and will be departing upon arrival of a new crew. There were eight crew on board who all met the documentary entry requirements as crew.
- The delivery crew stated the vessel and new crew will be observing fish farms and taking water samples around the fish farms but how no additional details.
- Onboard the vessel was diving gear, underwater cameras, an empty drone box which they stated was lost at sea.

Local ops reached out to their representative at MSOC. They had a briefing this morning. The level of interest on this vessel is unclear and no information was requested from CBSA. Partners are aware of the situation and can make the necessary request for information if they wish to pursue. Officers were interviewing the Captain and logistics person earlier this morning and will determine purpose of entry, full details of itinerary, who will be on board, and all details required to determine admissibility for CBSA purposes.

Once we have the information, local ops will determine next steps.

A reminder, this is the vessel that has generated some inquiries from MO. It is operated by the Sea Shepherd Society and concerns were raised by MO about the potential for the vessel to get involved in protesting as well as potentially illegal activities related to fish farming.

The vessel has, rather unexpectedly, arrived in Victoria – we were not expecting it for a few more weeks. They have reported in as a pleasure craft (there had been some speculation they would say they were assisting research work).
[REDACTED] DND, DFO, RCMP and TC are all working together through the MSOC to keep a close eye on the situation.

Media Call #1

Media: [REDACTED] / The Tyee

Question: The Tyee has learned today that Canada Customs has denied entry to the Sea Shepherd vessel and its captain [REDACTED] in the port of Victoria. Why has Canada Customs denied entry?

Media Call #2

Media: [REDACTED] / CTV News

s.19(1)

Question: I am writing regarding an incident currently taking place in Victoria, BC. We have been notified that the Sea Shepherd/Martin Sheen has been denied entry to Canada. Can you tell me why this is? This is a research vessel that has come to BC numerous times. In fact it worked along BC's coast just last year. Any information or statement would be greatly appreciated.

Media Call #3

Media: [REDACTED] 'Vancouver is Awesome'

Question: Would someone be able to confirm if the vessel/captain is still being detained and provide more information about why and if the ship will be allowed to proceed into Canada.

Answer:

It is not a practice of the Canada Border Services Agency (CBSA) to confirm/deny/speak to any one file.

Without speaking to any specific file, we can say that:

All persons, including Canadian citizens, seeking entry to Canada must present themselves to the CBSA and may be subject to a more in-depth exam.

All persons must demonstrate they meet the requirements to enter and/or stay in Canada. Admissibility of all travellers is decided on a case-by-case basis and based on the information made available to the border services officer at the time of entry.

Hello Elizabeth and Anita,

Just a heads up that it may be difficult to reach me by telephone over the next few days. My line was published on Sea Shepherd's Facebook page for people to call in protest over their ship being detained by CBSA upon entering Canada. This coincides with the upcoming closure to fishing in most of Area 20. I'm getting lots of calls and messages, so email is likely best if you need to get in touch in the near future.

I'm also away tomorrow at IOS invigilating GT-2 Fisheries Officers entrance exams.

Best,

Andrew

Linda, the below Facebook Post [REDACTED] received a response from a follower who posted the Victoria DFO office information for the public to call DFO to express their opposition to the CBSA ship+captain detention [REDACTED] referred to in his FB post - See attached image.

No indications of a protest however, just the number and address posted for the Victoria DFO office in response to comments from supporters of Sea Shepherd/Operation Virus Hunter.

Hi Claire-

My apologies - [REDACTED] I've just now been catching up on emails; I have seen what you sent me (sorry also that I was not able to help you re Monte's call today). If you have any time tomorrow we can chat a bit if you like, feel free to call my mobile whenever [REDACTED]

FYI, I spoke with some of my security contacts today re: Martin Sheen. Confirmed that they were cleared (fully) and have been able to move freely since yesterday (can relay more to you in a call). I'm trying to keep a pulse on things periodically but am not actively monitoring - it sounds like that role is falling more and more to RCMP, although I know no one wants to have blinders on either.

BTW - I look forward to seeing you on Thursday, we can talk directly then - Derek Chung and Murray will be flying in to CR, I'll be driving up.

Subject: RE: Heads Up - MV Martin Sheen

We have also received information from our regional CBSA operations, as follows:

Based on the examination and interview upon arrival local operations has determined:

- The vessel reported to Victoria through the telephone reporting center [REDACTED]
- The vessel has not notified Global Affairs Canada or any Government Department regarding their arrival and nature of their business in Canada.
- The crew that arrived on Saturday are only delivering the vessel and will be departing upon arrival of a new crew. There were eight crew on board who all met the documentary entry requirements as crew.
- The delivery crew stated the vessel and new crew will be observing fish farms and taking water samples around the fish farms but how no additional details.
- Onboard the vessel was diving gear, underwater cameras, an empty drone box which they stated was lost at sea.

Local ops reached out to their representative at MSOC. They had a briefing this morning. The level of interest on this vessel is unclear and no information was requested from CBSA. Partners are aware of the situation and can make the necessary request for information if they wish to pursue. Officers were interviewing the Captain and logistics person earlier this morning and will determine purpose of entry, full details of itinerary, who will be on board, and all details required to determine admissibility for CBSA purposes.

Once we have the information, local ops will determine next steps.

A reminder, this is the vessel that has generated some inquiries from MO. It is operated by the Sea Shepherd Society and concerns were raised by MO about the potential for the vessel to get involved in protesting as well as potentially illegal activities related to fish farming.

The vessel has, rather unexpectedly, arrived in Victoria – we were not expecting it for a few more weeks. They have reported in as a pleasure craft (there had been some speculation they would say they were assisting research work). [REDACTED] are all working together through the MSOC to keep a close eye on the situation.

DND, DFO, RCMP and TC

Jamie, is there any stipulation on the number of times they can re-enter. Can they continue to stay for the whole summer as long as they leave Canadian territorial waters and re-enter?

Subject: MV Martin Sheen - CBSA Synopsis

Hey Claire, this was synopsis done up by my Chief:

"Hi all. Just wanted to send a quick email to provide a summation of the examination of the R/V Martin Sheen. There were questions around the purpose of travel for this vessel as open-source information indicated the purpose was for research, while previous TRC entries cited pleasure. This vessel had not previously been examined in Canada. As such, a request was made through the TRC to have this vessel referred upon entry to verify the purpose of the trip and admissibility of the vessel and crew. On the evening of Saturday May 26th, the vessel arrived at Raymur Point, was referred by the TRC, and was examined by Victoria BSO's. During the course of the examination, it was determined that further information on the purpose of the vessel's visit (specifically, on whether research was being conducted or not) would be required from the Ship Operations Director, who would be joining the vessel the following day. The main concern at this time was whether the vessel would require approval through Global Affairs Canada for potential research being conducted. As such, the master of the vessel was provided an entry for further examination to the Atrium for yesterday, May 28th, at 11:00.

The CBSA NHQ Foreign Expedition and Arctic Research (FEAR) program was contacted and confirmed that, as the vessel was not a "state-sponsored" research vessel, no further approvals were needed through Global Affairs Canada. However, as it was still determined to be conducting research in Canada, it was not eligible for clearance through the TRC as a private marine vessel. The master of the vessel was provided with information on how to complete an A6 and accompanying documentation. At 15:00 yesterday, the vessel and master were cleared into Canada by way of A6 clearance, and will clear out of Canada in the same manner. Great work by all Officers and Superintendents involved in completing this examination and educating the vessel's master and crew on the appropriate reporting procedures.

Should you wish to read further on the clearance procedures required for state-sponsored and independent research vessels please see the following D-Memo (D2-1-2)":

Subject: RE: ROCs meeting

Nicole, not sure if this is something that will be brought up. The Martin Sheen has come into Canadian waters. It was held up at Customs in Victoria over the weekend as they hadn't properly reported in. Apparently, they reported in using the 1-800 # and declared as a pleasure craft and CBSA didn't agree. Unfortunately, postings on Facebook eluded to the fact that it had something to do with DFO and the work [REDACTED] was doing.

I spoke with Customs today and verified that DFO played no role in the delay. For the last two years the vessel has been using the 1-800 number to report into Canada and that shouldn't have been the case – so CBSA was just rectifying their oversight and educating the crew as to their responsibilities regarding proper reporting procedures.

However, the mechanism by which they have reported into the country (Form A6) requires them to leave Canadian territorial waters after 30 days. Then if they want to stay in Canada, they have to reapply through Customs – they can stay all summer, they will just have to leave territorial waters and reapply every 30 days.

Adrienne/Allison, I have tried to identify someone in C&P to be a conduit for information regarding the Broughton activities; however, I am really trying hard to ensure its not an aqua officer. Quite frankly, I see it as a role for our intel shop but I haven't had success moving the agenda that way. Aqua C&P has to stay firmly focused [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] you can understand our predicament – throw in the sea lice and debris issues and you can understand even more why keeping track of Broughton activity is way down on my radar. We have our Chief's meeting next week, and I am once again going to request that this initiative be assigned to someone. Whether we like it or not, senior management wants to know and somehow we do need to be tracking this. The vessel in question did enter Canadian waters – it was held up at Customs as they were not properly declaring – the hold-up had absolutely nothing to do with fisheries contrary to some facebook postings. For now Adrienne, anything you receive, please forward to Johanna Jenkins, she is our Area Intel Officer.

Just got a call from [REDACTED] MH who wanted to make us aware of a number of activities they are seeing out on their farms. How would you like me to handle these updates? I assume C&P are tracking information through their own sources? For example [REDACTED] informed me that the Sea Sheppard has been cleared to enter Canada and plans to be in Comox June 16th for the sea food festival.

Spotted whales from 240 metres like finding 'a needle in a haystack'

30 May 2018

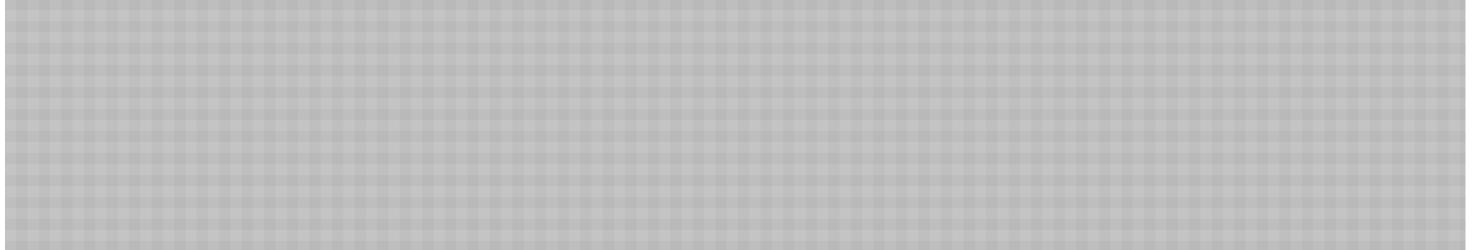

Analyst Comment: Provided for situational awareness. This article amplifies additional information from the previous one. The 'past data' comment on hydrophones identifies that the only active localization currently employed is aerial surveillance which has physical limits in time and space and can be impacted by weather. Surveillance measures should increase in the near term. Fish news report from 9 April identified that Dalhousie University is planning to employ three unmanned gliders will patrol the Gulf continuously from June to the end of November to carry out the expanded surveillance program. The gliders can also measure the density of the tiny zooplankton that right whales feed on, which is a potential predictor. Their downfall is that they are slow and difficult to quickly reposition.

New measures to protect right whales leads to confusion according to PEIFA

30 May 2018

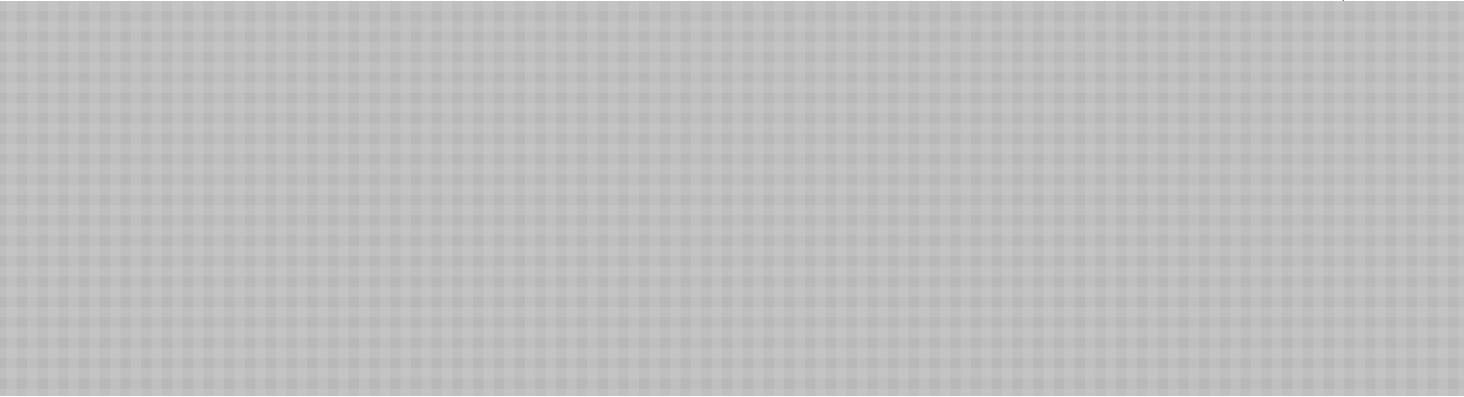

Analyst Comment: The common theme originating from fishers in the media in regards of the right whale surveillance program appears to remain the uncertainty factor. This article identifies the Fishers Association measures to reduce uncertainty. It also identifies a need for DFO to ensure full situational awareness and engagement is maintained.

Atlantic Salmon Federation Calls Out Lack of Government Consultation with Local Groups

30 May 2018

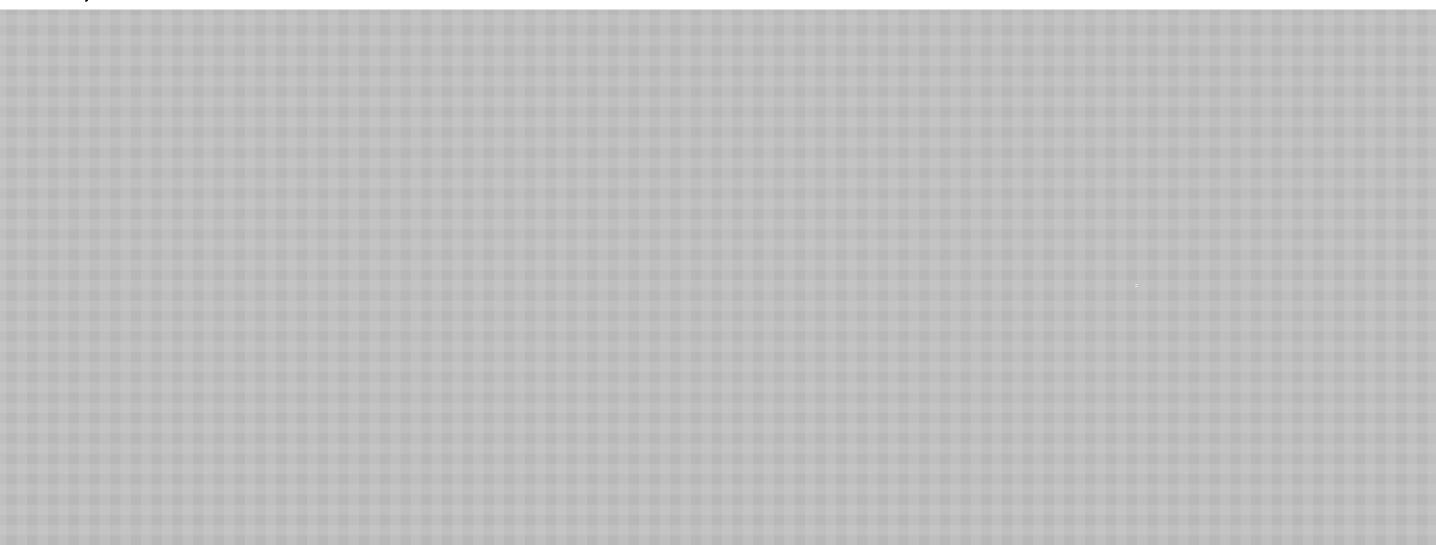

Analyst Comment: This article identifies where groups are generally falling between this federal – provincial disagreement. This article is friendlier to the DFO program than the provincial one. Overall the media focus appears to be in favor of the DFO policies, with the biggest complaints against DFO relating to the timing of the announcement.

Canada Customs Temporarily Detain Sea Shepherd Vessel Agents ask crew questions about biologist and fish farm activist [REDACTED]

30 May 2018

Analyst Comment: Media reporting on the SSCS detainment in Victoria is light. The vessel arrived on the 26th for the 3rd straight year, according to their website, to undertake Operation Virus Hunter III in collaboration with biologist [REDACTED] and indigenous peoples along the coast. Marine Harvest remains concerned against SSCS protest activities and the activist group will likely undertake protest activity, even if the Martin Sheen activities are hindered, particularly as the crew that were questioned are not the likely protest campaign crew and protest activities could readily be undertaken with small zodiac type vessels from shore. The government actions may galvanize the SSCS to successfully complete their operations.

Subject: Marine Chinook closure potential protests
Date: May-31-18 11:42:47 AM

Good day,

You may be aware of the Marine Chinook closures posted recently. The closures will take place in three key foraging (feeding) areas: Strait of Juan de Fuca, Gulf Islands and the mouth of the Fraser River. These measures have been implemented for the 2018 salmon fishing season, with monitoring to assess the effectiveness of the closures.

While we have no current information on any planned protests, it is assessed as likely that there will be related protests at 401 Burrard or other DFO locations in light of this decision. DFO SSES will be monitoring the situation and will report back with any further intelligence gathered.

In the interim, please note this for your situational awareness, and practice enhanced vigilance. Please report any information received or indicators of a protest coming to 401 Burrard or other DFO locations to myself. Should we get confirmation of a protest anywhere in the region, a message will be provided staff at those locations, enhanced lobby security will be requested, and security or a manager should be assigned to the lobby during and prior to the protest.

Thanks very much.
